Insurgents, Attacking With Tanks, Planes, Infantry and Cavalry, Are Stopped and Forced to Withdraw by Deadly Fire From Entrenched Loyalists—Bullets Whizzing Across Border Injure U. S. Soldier, Woman and Girl, While Dropped Bomb Wounds Arizona Man.

(By International News Service.)

Twelve United States army attack planes from Fort Crockett at Galveston and six observation planes from Dodd field at San Antonio, Tex., were ordered late Saturday to proceed to Fort Huachuca, Ariz., near Naco, where several persons were wounded on the American side of the Mexican border Saturday.

Rebels Driven Back.

Meantime authorities in Mexico City reported that the loyalist advance continued on all fronts. It was reported that Gen. J. Gonzalo Escobar, chief of the rebel forces in Chihuahua, arrived in Juarez to purchase supplies.

Federal dispatches said that Gen. Jaime Carrillo occupied Culiacan, capital of Sinaloa, without a struggle.

May Evacuate Whole State.

Federals are advancing slowly on the Santa Rosalia front and it was indicated that the rebels may evacuate the entire state of Chihuahua, in which event the federals would occupy the important cities of Juarez and Chihuahua.

United States officials at Washington were disturbed over reports of clashes in Naco between American and Mexican troops. Friday Secretary of State Stimson requested the war department to instruct General Lassiter to take action to protect the border from future outrages.

The decision to send the air fleet to the scene of the battle between

MRS. INEZ WARE TAKEN BY DEATH

Descendant of Revolutionary Officer Dies Saturday Afternoon.

Mrs. Inz A. Ware, 84, died at 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Inez A. French, 1742 M street, after a long illness. She had lived in Lincoln twenty-five years.

Mrs. Ware was born in Maine and came to Nebraska in 1904, making her home at Kearney. In 1907 she moved to Lincoln. Mrs. Ware was descended from colonial and revolutionary stock, her maternal great-grandfather, Peter Clinch having fought as a British officer in the Revolutionary war. He was later commandant of Fort Howe in Canada following termination of the war. For his services to the Crown, he was granted a large tract of land at St. George, New Brunswick.

Numbered among her family heirlooms was the military sash worn by General Wolfe at the historic battle of Quebec, when the British troops surprised and captured the city defended by the French under General Montcalm. A pair of silver spurs worn by a Captain Hurleyhie of the British forces in the same battle has also been handed down to the descendants of Peter Clinch.

Besides her daughter, Mrs. French, Mrs. Ware is survived by a son, Arthur H. Ware of Lincoln and a granddaughter, Miss Augusta L. French of Lincoln. The body is being held at Roberts' pending funeral arrangements.

Woman Gets Year in Prison for Selling 25-Cent Bottle Beer

HOUSTON, Tex., April 6—(INS)—Mrs. Beulah Bilton, 25 years old, today was under sentence to a year in the penitentiary for selling a bottle of beer for 25 cents, and another controversial incident has flared up in connection with prohibition enforcement. Mrs. Bilton pleaded guilty yesterday to selling the beer to policeman.

In sentencing the woman, Judge Whit Boyd flayed the law covering the case as unjust and declared the woman did not deserve to go to prison. He said he had alternative under the law but to sentence her.

Had she entered a plea of guilty to murder, burglary, or other felonies, she would have been eligible for a suspended sentence.

"It is a ridiculous case" declared Judge Boyd. "She does not deserve to go to prison. I am convinced that this is the first time she has been in trouble and she deserves clemency."

Rail Consolidation Move Is Approved

WASHINGTON, April 6.—(U. P.)—The interstate commerce commission today granted the Chesapeake & Ohio railway authority to issue 300,000 srares of common stock at par of $100 a share, and to use the proceeds of approximately $30,000,000 to purchase stock of the Pere Marquette railroad at $133.33 a share.

The decision removes all obstacles to consolidation of the two roads, both of which are owned by the Van Sweringen interests, by modifying requirements of an earlier commission decision which the Van Sweringens said were impossible of fulfillment.

LONDON, April 6—(I. N. S.)—Otto Kahn, internationa lyknown financier, today maintained complete silence regarding the $250,000 libel action filed against him in New York by Rosalinda Morini, a young singer.

"I have nothing whatever to say on the subject," he said.

He declined to state whether or not he had received formal notification of the action.

The banker has been staying at the Hotel Claridge since his arrival here from Plymouth, where he debarked from the liner Ile de France.

Inquest Into Deaths of Two Found in Car is Held Unnecessary

MADISON, Kas., April 6—(U. P.)—An inquest into the deaths of Harry H. Book, 40, oil worker, and Mrs. I. H. Bond, 32, junk dealer's wife, will be unnecessary, Dr. R. W. Moore, coroner, said tonight.

Book and Mrs. Bond were found dead today in a coupe parked on a golf course near here. A note left by Book in his pocket said he had contemplated killing the woman and himself on March 30.

The extent of their friendship was being investigated tonight.

PRAIRIE FIRE IN NORTH KANSAS

Path of Blaze Covered 350 Square Miles; Farms in Ruin.

ATWOOD, Kas., April 6.—(U. P.)—Accounts of miraculous escapes from a prairie fire which raged over almost 350 square miles of northwestern Kansas were brought here tonight by homeless victims.

An incomplete check showed three persons were in critical condition in hospitals and more than a hundred oehers were being treated for burns.

The path of the fire was a blackened waste today, with only piles of ashes to show where hundreds of farms had stood. Several small towns were damaged.

The blaze searted by the ranch of Chauncey Dewey, north of Goodland, Kas., and cut a swath five miles wide and nearly seventy miles long before it could be checked a few miles south of here. Two parallel streams on either side of the blaze prevented its spreading over a wider territory.

Those known to be in hospitals today were Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Miner, young farm couple of near Atwood, and John Walker, a farmer.

The Miners were warned of the approaching fire, but were unable to start their car in time to escape. They took refuge in a pile of rocks but the flames, leaping forty feet high, seared their bodies.

HOOVERS SPEND A HAPPY DAY IN VIRGINIA WOODS

President and Wife on Carefree Outing in Secluded Spot.

PART OF JOURNEY MADE HORSEBACK

Party Returns to Capital After Nearly 12 Hours' Vacation.

WASHINGTON, April 6—(U. P.)—President and Mrs. Hoover returned at 6:40 p. m., from their first presidential outing, spent in the Virginia wilderness. They were gone from the white house eleven hours and fifty minutes on their brief vacation.

Trail Blazing Expedition.

MADISON, Va., April 6—(U. P.)—Spring lured President and Mrs. Hoover away from the white house today for their first outing since inauguration.

After motoring nearly 100 miles into the beautiful Shenandoah national park district today, Mr. and Mrs. Hoover changed to horseback. The first lady donned a trim riding habit with leather boots and rode side-saddle with the president about two miles over a narrow dirt trail, into the heart of a wilderness.

The Hoovers set out from Washington just before 8 a. m., taking a party of half a dozen intimate friends to search in the Shenandoah park region for a suitable future fishing ground at the headwaters of the Rapidan river. On future trips they probably will carry tents and bung overnight, but today's trip was more of a trail blazing expedition.

The Hoover party drove through the beautiful Virginia valley which skirts the famous Shenandoah apple orchards country. The first blossoms were beginning to burst open under the warm April sun. Spring flowers and leaving shrubs made the trip one of the most beautiful in this section of the country.

Arriving here at Madison, nearly 100 miles from Washington, the party left the large white house lim-

BIG SLAUGHTER OF HOUSE BILLS

Death Overtakes 122 Measures in Hands of Committees.

Much Work Yet to Be Done Before End of Session.

What the representative wing of the Nebraska legislature refused to do earlier in the week it did very spontaneously Saturday afternoon, when a motion by Mr. Spencer to postpone indefinitely 122 bills remaining in the hands of standing committees was adopted with a whoop almost in the twinkling of an eye.

Only appropriation bills held by the finance committee, 28 in number, were saved in the wholesale massacre. These were specifically expected in Spencer's motion.

Ten or a dozen house measures were left on the general file, which escaped the slaughter, along with those which had previously been advanced to third reading.

Henceforth, the house committees except the finance group will give their attention solely to bills which have passed the senate and been sent over to the lower chamber.

The action taken Saturday afternoon usually marks the beginning of the end of the legislative session. It will probably be followed by similar action in the senate within a few days, so that before the end of this week both branches may be rid of all their own bills, except a few stragglers, and free to work upon each other's proposals.

May Run Three Weeks Yet.

However, it is not yet time for the homesick solons to begin packing up their grips preparatory to leaving Lincoln. Those who had fondly hoped to get away this week or next week are doomed to disappointment. The chances are it will take about three weeks to wind up the business that must be handled before final adjournment comes. Members serving their first terms do not realize this, but the old stagers know what to expect. They will be tickled to death if the end of the road is reached by April 25.

Spencer's motion to hasten the date by summarily beheading house bills not yet out of committees drew protests from Representatives Cone and Hunt, but their objections were buried under an avalanche of 'ayes' when Speaker Coulter put the question to a vote.

The list of measures put to death includes a great many which were duplicates of or similar in terms to other bills that have already passed one or both chambers. It contains quite a sprinkling of bills creating new highways, some of which were taken care of in the omnibus highway act H. R. 327.

A number of banking bills were among those put to death. Three

PAY INCREASE DENIED HEADS INSTITUTIONS

H. R. 186, Providing for Larger Salaries, Meets Defeat.

Amendment Concerning Deaf and Blind Schools Also Downed.

A hard-hearted, hard-boiled group of legislators in the representative wing turned thumbs down Saturday on higher pay for the superintendents of state insane hospitals and the warden of the penitentiary. By 35 votes to 24—nearly half of the members being absent for the week end—they killed H. R. 186, taking off the old limit of $2,500 a year, with family living quarters and maintenance in addition, and allowing the board of control to fix the salaries.

In the fees and salaries committee the bill had been amended so as to cut Warden Fenton clear out, while allowing heads of insane hospitals who have served 5 years raise of $2,750 and boosting those with ten years of service up to $3,000.

These changes were quickly vetoed when the house took up the measure. It was then considered in its original form and became the subject of spirited debate.

Mr. Davis, moving its indefinite

WIND DAMAGES WHEAT FIELDS

Strong Gale Rages in Western Nebraska Saturday Night.

SIDNEY, Neb., April 6—(U. P.)—A gale that reached a velocity of 50 miles an hour did great damage to wheat fields in this section tonight and caused a dust storm that blinded motorists, making driving hazardous.

County Agent L. D. Willey estimated the damage would total several thousand dollars to the wheat fields and that several hundred acres would have to be reseeded. The storm area extends from 30 miles south of Sidney to 20 miles north.

At times the dust became so thick it was difficult to see more than 30 feet ahead. Several small buildings were reported as being unroofed by the strong wind, which was estimated to be stronger than that which did damage at Beatrice, Norfolk, and Hastings in eastern Nebraska Friday.

NORRIS WRITES IN BITING IRONY ON GANN AFFAIR

Senator Sends Mocking Letter to Stimson on Social Hubub.

SUGGESTS RULING BY WORLD COURT

Asserts Issue Overshadows All Others and World Waiting.

WASHINGTON, April 6—(I. N. S.)—In mocking irony, Senator George W. Norris, republican, Nebraska, today asked Secretary of State Stimson to settle the "extremely important question" of where Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, sister and hostess of Vice President Curtis, should sit at social functions in the capitol.

Corridors which buzzed to excited gossip when the vice president requested reversal of the order of former Secretary of State Kellogg that Mrs. Gann would outrank diplomats only in her own home at the table, gasped as the usually serious insurgent leader Norris poked biting fun at the whole hubub.

"Either decide it without delay or officially report a disagreement on your part to the president of the United States and ask him to submit it to the World court," Norris concluded after a long, semi-serious outline of the case.

The letter called attention to the dinner to be given by Senor Davila, Chilean ambassador, next Thursday night, at which the Chilean has declared he will seat Mrs. Gann according to the ruling of the state department. Regarding this situation the Nebraskan said:

"It is extremely important that society know, without delay, whether the vice president's sister shall sit next to the dark-skinned official from Liberia or whether she shall be on the right or left of the slant-eyed statesman from Shanghai.

Greatest of Issues.

"The League of Nations, the World court, the maintaining of a big navy, the conducting of a war in Nicaragua are all important and may affect the peace of the civilized world," Norris continued, "but they pale into insignificance beside the great question that is now agitat-

COLLEGE VIEW FIGHT PLANNED

Sentiment Strong For Protesting Result of School Bond Vote.

Enemies of Annexation Also Unwilling to Admit Defeat.

College View groups favoring and opposing annexation plan to protest the outcome of the vote in the suburb last Tuesday on the question of issuing bonds of $125,000 for the building of a new high school, it was learned Saturday. In addition the opponents of annexation may seek to have the election on this question declared null.

An injunction will be asked to prohibit the village board from certifying the results of the election, it is said. Affidavits that many persons illegally were denied the right to vote and that others voted who were not qualified to cast their ballots will be filed in support of the petition for an injunction.

The vote on the school bonds was 428 for, and 418 against, but a 51 per cent majority is needed for the proposal to carry. Unless all nine of the mail votes to be counted Monday night favor the bond issue it has lost.

Those citizens who think that a new high school is needed in College View immediately, fear that if the suburb is consolidated with Lincoln a new school building will not be constructed for at least four or five years.

"Lincoln is in no position to give us help," declared Ed. F. Degering. He thinks there was enough irregular voting that the bond issue should have carried but declares that there was a sufficient majority for annexation that there seemed to be "a clear cut case on it."

If Lincoln does not annex College View another vote on the bond issue within the next thirty days is favored by Sam Gatenby, a member of the village school board. If the suburb is consolidated he thinks Lincoln can take care of the problem.

Sam Loomis, a high school teacher and a member of the council, hopes for a recount on the school bond question. The challengers at the polls told voters they must own real estate or have children of school age in order to vote on the bond question according to Mr. Loomis. He says that all persons who have real estate, personal property or who are the wives of husbands of persons possessing real estate, or the parents of children of school age should have been permitted to vote.

DOUBTS WISDOM OF ATTEMPT TO CONTROL LOANS

McFadden Says Reserve Board Has No Right to Fix Rates.

Claims Stock Speculation Not Harming Business or Industry.

PHILADELPHIA, April 6—(U. P.)—Representative Louis T. McFadden Pennsylvania, chairman of the house banking committee, sharply questioned the soundness of the federal reserve board's policy of attempting to suppress excessive stock speculation in an address to Five O'clock club here tonight.

McFadden said the board's policy may cause the public to lose confidence in the stock market, and that the federal reserve management cannot prevent the loaning of call money or the buying and selling of stocks.

"If the present restrictions that are being applied by the system are continued, the high interest rate may make it too expensive for corporations to finance themselves," McFadden said.

"I don't think that it has been shown that any positive harm thru increases of brokers loans is being done to business and industry or to employment. The total amount of rediscounting by member banks, when compared with a year ago, is only slightly above that which was

Young Salesman Who Killed Wife to Die

DENVER, Col., April 6—(U. P.)—Harold I. Weiss, 26, dapper young salesman who killed his wife because she "kept having babies," must hang for her murder. A jury so decided here today after deliberating all night.

The man who told police he shot his wife "because she loved me and I never loved her," heard the verdict in silence.

The slaying occurred the night of February 13. After taking Mrs. Jaffa Weiss, 32, mother of three young children, out for an automobile ride, Weiss chased her through a residence street and shot at her five times. A bullet hit her in the back of the neck, causing death.

LEADERS IN HOUSE ARE DETERMINED TO RESTRICT PROGRAM

Speaker Longworth Insists Work of Special Session, Opening Next Week, Must Be Limited to Agricultual Relief and Tariff Revision, But Senators Feel Differently— McNary Cooperative Marketing Bill Favored by Committees of Both Branches.

WASHINGTON, April 6.—U. P.)—A dispute between senate and house leaders over the program for the special session of congress beginning a week from Monday has developed as the result of the decision of the house dictators to hold the program to farm relief and tariff revision.

THE WEATHER.

OMAHA, April 6—The weather outlook for the period from April 8 to April 13, inclusive, follows:

Upper Mississippi and lower Missouri valleys: Much unsettled weather during week, probably at least two precipitation periods; frequent changes in temperature.

Nebraska—Unsettled Sunday, local showers except probably some snow in northwest portion; cooler in east and central portions; mostly fair Monday; cooler in southeast portion.

Kansas: Unsettled Sunday, cooler in west and north portions and by afternoon or night in southeast portion. Mostly fair Monday; cooler in southast portion.

The house leaders, at the instance of Speaker Nicholas Longworth, decided no other than these two subjects could be considered at President Hoover's special session, and have attempted unsuccessfully to persuade the senate negotiators to hold their program within those limits. The senate leaders, including Senator Watson of Indiana, recently elected head of the majority in the upper house, insist that they cannot control under their liberal rules the subjects to be considered.

They want to pass a repeal of the national origins provisions asked by Mr. Hoover and some other legislation.

Plan Prompt Action.

In retaliation, the house leaders have decided upon a straight program. The farm relief bill is to be taken up as the first order of business a week from Wednesday under rules which will require its disposal within a week. The tariff bill then will be considered in the house under the same limited debate restrictions, which will insure final action within two weeks.

Unaided by any of the debate restrictions of the house, the senate leaders are in a quandary. They have proposed that the farm bill should be considered first and hoped the house would have the tariff bill ready for consideration as soon as they finish the farm bill. They find,

TWO BUSINESS MEN ACCUSED

Auburn Men Charged With Theft of Large Quantity of Eggs.

(Special to The Star.)

AUBURN, Neb., April 6—With the arrest of two prominent Auburn business men, local authorities expressed the belief Saturday that the "Easter egg theft" case, which officials have been investigating for the past two weeks has been solved.

Charged with the theft of 82 cases of eggs both Roy C. Reed, Burlington ticket agent, and W. D. Dunlgan, manager of the Auburn Fruit & Produce Co. were arraigned in County court here Saturday. They waived preliminary hearing. County Judge C. O. Snow fixed bond for each at $2,000 and set April 15 as the date of hearing.

Several prominent Auburn men signed bond for the two defendants. Both Reed and Dunigan are middle aged men and have families living in Auburn.

The car of eggs was loaded at Auburn three weeks ago for shipment to a Falls City concern. The night after the Burlington car had been prepared for shipment it was broken into and the 82 cases of eggs stolen, it is alleged.

For the past two weeks the Burlington has had a special agent here investigating the case.

BELIEVE FARMER TRIED KILL SELF

Lad Jelinek, 28, of Wilbur Found With Bullet Lodged in Brain.

Lad Jelinek, 28-year-old farmer living nine and one-half miles west of Wilber, was in St. Elizabeth's hospital in a critical condition late Saturday night with a bullet from a .22 rifle in his brain as the result of what is believed to have been an attempted suicide early Saturday evening.

Jelinek was discovered lying in a pool of blood about 6:45 Saturday evening by his wife. A .22 rifle lay by his side. Mrs. Jelinek called a doctor, and County Attorney Tom Dredla at Crete was notified. He had his driver take him to Wilber where he picked up Sheriff Henry A. Greer. Dr. H. Hein was just starting and made the trip with them. Dr. R. C. Kirschman arrived just a moment ahead of them.

After the nature of his wound had been determined Jelinek was rushed to Lincoln and taken to St. Elizabeth's hospital where X-rays were taken and he was placed under the care of Dr. C. H. Arnold. X-rays revealed that the bullet which had entered the middle of his forehead had lodged in the center of his brain.

According to County Attorney Dredla, Jelinek and his wife had been in Wilber in the afternoon. They returned to the farm about 3:30 intending to plant some trees. Mrs. Jelinek told Dredla.

Mr. Jelinek went to a neighboring farm to secure a cultivator and brought it home. He was sitting in

Dry Enforcement Has Cost America Quarter of Billion

WASHINGTON, April 6—(U. P.)—Prohibition enforcement by all agencies of the federal government most concerned in that activity during the past nine years will have cost between $250,000,000 and $300,000,000 by June 30, 1929, it was learned today.

This total is made up of prohibition expenditures by various agencies of the treasury department charged with detecting dry law violators and the justice department which prosecutes them.

The largest amount of enforcement of prohibition is spent by the treasury, whose bureau will have expended an aggregate of $170,000,000 for the nine years ending June 30.

REBELS HURLED BACK AT NACO

the American cavalry patrol and the Mexican rebels was made for the purpose of "preventing further accidents" from rebel air aids.

NACO, Ariz, April 6—(U. P.)—Mexican rebels today made another determined but unsuccessful effect to drive the federal garrison out of Naco, Sonora, Mexico.

Firing across the international line, the insurgents first wounded an American soldier and later a woman and a young girl.

Meantime they flew their airplanes over American soil and wounded an American citizen and destroyed American property by dropping a bomb in the center of the business district.

Pvt. Jone Finezee of Troop E, Tenth U. S. cavalry, was shot in the chest by a rebel band when his detachment challenged the insurgents as they came across the international border to get seventeen sacks of bombs, left by a smuggler.

The United States cavalry patrol found the bombs on the American side, three miles east of Naco. Four men remained on guard over the bombs while two others returned to Naco to get a truck.

The men who remained to watch the contraband heard a body of rebels approaching in the semi-darkness. The troopers challenged and the answer was a volley of shots.

Mexicans Flee.

Finezee fell with a bullet in the chest while his companions replied to the rebel fire and the Mexicans fled. Finezee was brought to the army hospital tent here where it was learned he was not seriously hurt.

The general rebel assault on Naco began shortly after this skirmish with the United States patrol.

American residents were driven form their homes and business houses a Mexican woman resident of this town was wounded and Miss Lydia Eberling probably was disfigured for life when a rifle ball struck her in the mouth. The wounded girl is a daughter of William Eberling, well known Naco merchant.

For more than four hours bullets raked the streets of this town and crashed through windows and into residences.

Many citizens sent their families to Bisbee, Ariz., while those remaining here sought refuge behind brick walls and other available shelter.

Bullets From All Sides.

Since the rebels attacked the town across the border from both flanks and from the front the bullets came into this city from every side.

Throughout the engagement rebel planes flew over American soil where hey were safe from federal fire, only to swoop back over the federal lines to drop bombs.

One of the dropped bombs fell in the very heart of the business district here. It struck and destroyed an automobile and shook windows in buildings throughout the town.

Charles Newton, an American garage owner, was struck in the hand by a splinter from the bomb.

Gen. Frank S. Cocheu, in charge of border operations, was here at the time and reported the situation to Washington. At the same time he sent a staff officer with a message of protest to Gen. Fausto Topete, the rebel commander.

When the federal commander, General Gonzalez, refused to agree to a short truce to permit the passage of officer, Capt. T. M. Rundell of the Tenth cavalry deliberately rode between the rebel and federal lines to deliver the protest.

Rebel Leader Gives Promise.

Captain Rundell returned with a letter in which General Topete promised there would be no further bombing. He said that he had instructed his airmen to use only machine guns in the future.

The battle, itself, resulted in a complete victory for the federal garrison. The rebels began the assault with tanks, airplanes, infantry and cavalry.

They were met and stopped by a deadly fire from the entrenched federals. Each succeeding attack was similarly halted.

At times the rebel tanks approached to within a few yards of the trenches, only to be driven off by federal machine gun fire.

The assault continued for four hours with rebel casualties heavy. One entire line of rebel infantry was mowed down by one federal machine gunner.

The insurgents took their dead and wounded with them as they withdrew. The federals claimed more than fifty rebels were killed and many more were wounded.

The federals said they suffered "practically no losses."

During the fighting 300 men arrived to reinforce the garrison at Naco. The men were those interned at Fort Bliss since they fled from Juarez when that city fell to the rebels.

Try To Cross Border.

Once during the battle an American squad under Lieut. R. W. Curtis discovered Mexican rebels attemping to flank federal trenches by approaching from the American side of the border. The rebels were driven back across the line.

All the buildings on ten farms in the territory, were destroyed.

The tornado passed over, but did not strike Cuba City, Belmont, Benton and Argyle ,tearing down telephone poles and trees.

MINNEAPOLIS, April 6—(I. N. S.)—The casualty list from a tornado which swept Minnesota, Wisconsin and Iowa last night, dipping to wreak its destructive force at intervals, may reach twenty dead, it was estimated tonight.

Reports from towns struck varied, but more bodies were being discovered in debris of the storm which resulted in property damage now placed in the millions. More than sixty were injured.

PAY INCREASE DENIED HEADS INSTITUTIONS

postponement, declared that the institution heads are now getting the equivalent of $5,000 a year each, taking into consideration their board lodging, household furnishings and supplies, telephones and other items paid for by the state. He was opposed to opening the doors for what he declared would mean a general increase of salaries from top to bottom in the state institutions, throwing a big additional burden upon the taxpayers.

Compares With Farmers.

"I haven't heard of any bill to shove up the prices of oats, corn and other things the farmer produces and sells," Davis continued.

"Why should we load them down with this extra expense? The institution officials are doing good work, but they are drawing good pay for it in comparison with other people."

Mr. Andrews took an opposite point of view, saying that the "help" in the institutions has all received an advance of at least 50 per cent in pay during recent years, while the supervising and managing officers are on the same basis they were a quarter of a century ago.

This plea was reinforced by Mr. Bishop, who declared the superintendents and the warden are worth to the state two or three times what it pays them for their services.

Mr. Jackman characterized the measure as "a Lancaster county bill" and predicted that if the heads were raised it would mean an increase all along the line.

Liberal to Solon's Mother.

When it came to appropriating $5,000 for the relief of Mrs. Catherine Lowry of Omaha, mother of Representative Vincent Lowry, on account of the fatal shooting of her husband twenty years ago while making an arrest in his capacity as a police officer at South Omaha, the house exhibited more generosity.

Over the protest of Mr. Jackman, who recalled that a bill to provide for the two orphan children of an officer in his home county, Perkins, who was killed in the performance of his duty, had been turned down two years ago, the Lory measure, H. R. 225, was advanced to third reading with only a handful of votes against it.

Speeches in support of the bill were made by Messrs. Johnson (Lancaster), Regan, Cone and several others. Mr. Bowring at first opposed it, but later joined the majority. Jackman's motion for indefinite postponement was beaten on a standing division.

"This is rank discrimination," declared Mr. Jackman. "Anybody who lives in Lincoln or Omaha is taken care of, but people out in the state get no consideration. I promise you that if I am in the legislature two years from now that Perkins county claim will be presented again."

Deaf, Blind Schools Stay Put.

The proposed constitutional amendment transferring the state blind school at Nebraska City and the state deaf school at Omaha from the board of control to the state university regents met its Waterloo during the afternoon. This was Mr. Kehm's bill, H. R. 194, intended to cure the defective procedure last year which caused the same proposition to be declared invalid by the Supreme court, after it had received a majority of the votes cast upon it at the November election.

Mr. Van Kirk offered an amendment substituting a special commission comprising three members appointed by the govenor, with the state superintendent as a fourth member ex officio, instead of the board of regents as the body to manage the two schools. When this was voted down, he drew in another amendment putting them under the state superintendent alone. The house rejected that idea also.

To save the bill from impending defeat, Mr. McKay moved to report progress on it, but a substitute by Mr. Rundle to kill it outright was carried with a large majority.

Against Butter Substitute.

H. R. 561, stiffening the present legal restrictions against imitation butter, was approved for passage after Mr. Burke told the house that the creameries, dairymen and farmers wanted it. The bill is aimed especially, he said, at a Kentucky product, whose chief ingredient is a vegetable oil, which is sold as a cooking compound but is put up to resemble butter and can be used as a substitute for it.

Speaker Coulter wasn't so sure that this might not hit the oleomargerine industry, in which the beef cattle raisers of western Nebraska are interested; but Burke assured him it wouldn't, and Coulter withdrew his motion for indefinite postponement.

Mr. Aurand, a farmer member, didn't think the bill should pass, inasmuch as it would hinder the sale of an article used by poorer people as a substitute for lard, rather than butter.

H. R. 134, requiring Douglas county contractors to report all new buildings constructed by them, as well as alterations and additions to told ones, to the county assessor, was sent to third reading.

The house adjourned at 3:30 p. m. to meet again Monday morning at 10 o'clock.

QUICK PASSAGE OF FARM RELIEF BILL IS LIKELY

however, that plenty of time is permitted for consideration of any legislation which any senator desires to bring up and they are at a loss to find methods to prevent senate consideration of their bills.

Favor McNary Bill.

A poll of the senate agricultural committee taken by the United Press tonight indicated a majority of 10 to 5 in favor of the McNary co-operative marketing bill, providing a revolving fund of $300,000,000 in government funds to be loaned to co-operative organizations so that they might market their products in an orderly manner. A similar majority in the house committee has been assured. This means the McNary bill will be reported as the first order of business in both houses and probably will be passed.

In the senate committee the poll showed those in favor of the bill include:

Republicans: Capper, Kansas; Norbeck, South Dakota; Frazier, North Dakota; Gould, Maine; Thomas, Idaho, and McNary.

Democrats: Smith, South Carolina; Randall, Louisiana; Kendricks, Wyoming, and the farmer-lobarite, Shipstead.

Norris Expected to Oppose.

Those expected to vote against the bill are:

Norris, Nebraska, republican; and four democrats, Heflin, Alabama; Caraway, Arkansas; Wheeler, Montana, and Thomas, Oklahoma.

The lineup indicates the farm relief bill can be disposed of within the time limit set by the house leaders.

It is expected to pass both the senate and the house within a week after congress convenes, but after its disposal the program of the house and senate leaders diverge. Senators desire to pass a reapportionment bill, consider some prohibition amendments, like that of Tydings for modification of the Jones act, national origins and numerous relief bills.

As matters stand the senate probably will run footloose and free, sitting until August or later while the house cleans up the two major items of business within the first three weeks, taking three day recesses thereafter, which practically amounts to adjournment, with short sessions to act on senate bills and amendments.

Turn To Hoover Again.

WASHINGTON, April 6—(U. P.)—The house agriculture committee tonight appointed a delegation of five to call on President Hoover in a final effort to have him outline the administration's views on farm relief legislation.

The delegation, a sub-committee authorized to write the long awaited agriculture bill, is composed of Representative Purnell, republican, Indiana; Aswell, democrat, Louisiana; Williams, republican, Illinois; Kincheloe, democrat, Kentucky, and Chairman Haugen, republican, Iowa.

Meantime it was decided Secretary of Agriculture Hyde would be asked to appear before the sub-committee to outline further his department's idea in the event Mr. Hoover continues to maintain his silence. Other farm experts of the department will be called into conference from time to time to advise the committee on technical phases.

The senate agriculture committee concluded its farm relief hearings today and Chairman McNary is expected to call at the white house early next week to ascertain the president's views for his committee.

It has been decided, however, that the new senate and house bills will create a federal farm board of not more than seven members who will be paid a salary of from $10,000 to $15,000 annually.

Other features certain to be incorporated include establishment of stabilization corporations to handle surplus production and the appropriation of about $300,000,000 for stabilization work.

HIGHWAY PATROLMAN SLAIN.

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., April 6—(UP)— A quarrel between two youths proved fatal for Rufus Phillips, 46, highway patrolman, here today. The shooting followed a fight between Tony Eden, 27, Evansville, who was shot in the arm and Owen Ross, 22, who disappeared after the shooting. The quarrel started after a midnight dance at Evansville, an Arkansas -Oklahoma border town.

life if the wings caught fire, he slid the plane into a dangerous sideslip for the entire 1,000 feet and maneuvered the flames away from the wings of the big plane.

Allen made a successful landing and emerged from the flaming craft only a few seconds before the gas tank blew up and demolished the plane. He suffered a severely scorched face.

"Boy, that was one great thrill!" the flier exclaimed as the doctors were working on him. "As soon as the motor began to blaze up the wind whipped the flames back into the cockpit and I couldn't even see what I was doing. I had time to take one look over the side to make the landing and then the flames caught me in the face.

"It was the greatest thrill of my life," he repeated, smiling in spite of his seared face. The physicians said his injury was not serious.

"Unless this decision is expedited very serious interference will result in many important social activities. Until it is known definitely where the vice president's sister is going to sit, it will be impossible for many socially - minded Washingtonians to properly shine in society, in accordance with their social and financial ambitions. Many social functions are awaiting anxiously and brothlessly for your decision.

"Not only is society in our country suffering in suspense, but the question seriously affects our international relations. Your predecessor officially gave notice to all ambassadors assembled in Washington as to just where the vice president's sister should sit and all nations assembled in our capital city have taken official notice. This decision has been appealed from the entire world is watching your official action with intense interest.

Just a Common Citizen.

"I have no personal interest in the decision. I am only interested and I am writing as one of the common, ordinary citizens, who, in a very small way, contributes in the shape of taxes towards the payment and the upkeep of this great mysterious social sham which towers in importance over questions of national and international import. If you delay this decision too long, the common people of America may have their eyes opened and may discover that issues in campaigns, usually fought out along national nad international lines, are second in importance to the social functions of our capital city.

"We have just emerged from a campaign where we talked about the tariff; we argued about farm relief; we secretly and covertly talked about the pope; we were agitated somewhat about world peace questions, the League of Naitons and the World war, but the common people did not seem to realize that these were all bluffs that they were only deceptive surface indications of an agreement about political matters and domestic matters, when as a matter of fact, the real contest, as is now shown by the agitation going on in the civilized world, was whether, if we elected a vice president, who was a widower and whose hostess was to be his married sister, the entire superstructure and underpining of civilized government was going to be shaken to the very foundation with dangers of controversies, even leading to war, until it could be officially determined by you where the vice president's sister should sit at the table or, indeed, whether she should have any dinner.

Rule on Husbands, Too.

While you are deciding this question, you might just as well also decide what is going to happen to the vice president's sister's husband. Just as soon as you have determined where his sister shall sit, you will be confronted at once with the problm of finding a place at the table for her husband.

"Toping that, without further delay, you may relieve official society of the terrible suspense in which it now finds itself, I am,

"Very truly yours,
(Signed "G. W. NORRIS."

HOOVERS SPEND A HAPPY DAY IN VIRGINIA WOODS

ousines and packed into six small cars as the roads from here on into the Shenandoah wilds were impassable to big cars.

Fishing License for Hoover.

At Criglersville, a few miles beyond here, the party halted while Mrs. Hoover went into a cottage at the roadside and changed from her street dress into the riding habit. The president remaining outside in the car, was approached by W. E. Carson, a resident, bearing a Virginia fishing license made out to "Herbert Hoover, Palo Alto, California."

Riding four miles further over the dirt road, the party again halted. Six horses were waiting. Mrs. Hoover, wearing her riding habit, black leather boots and a black turban, mounted her horse and, followed by the president, who still wore his dark business suit and high stiff collar, disappeared into the wilds.

Lunch was carried in small cardboard boxes. Other members of the party were dressed in rough army breeches, puttees, and soft flannel shirts.

Mrs. Hoover was the only woman in the party, but with her knowledge of camping and outdoor life generally she was more than a match for some of the men in the party.

The horseback ride was nearly two miles and led to a spot best described as being five miles from the nearest rural free delivery. At last the president was away from office seekers with nothing around to bother him but the fish.

The president's party included Secretary of Interior Wilbur, Dr. Joel Boone, white house physician, and several friends.

Fairyland of Blossoms.

The drive beyond Madison was over a narrow dirt mountain trail, which winds through the picturesque valley beside the Rapindan river. A mile from Madison the presidential party passed even beyond the limits of the R. F. D., mail routes into a virgin, springtime fairyland of blossome and buds.

The fishing site and picnic grounds was within twenty miles of Montpelier ,the old home of James Madison, and not more than fifty miles from Charlottesville, the site of Thomas Jefferson's famous Monticello. Ideal weather prevailed today.

Practically the entire route to Madison was through historic battlefields of the Civil war. One roadside marker near the Rappahannock crossing memorialized the spot on which Gen. Robert E. Lee last reviewed the confederate cavalry; another marked the last major engagement of Stonewall Jackson's forces.

Mrs. Hoover was delighted by the colorful scenes spread before her as she sped through acres of white apple blossoms splotched with purples, reds and delicate spring greens in the Rapidan valley. The outing in the woods beyond Criglersville was a three-hour picnic and the party started back for Washington shortly before 3 p. m.

Liner Paris Is Still Aground

NEW YORK, April 6—(U. P.)—Attempts to float the French liner Paris, which went ashore at Bay Ridge in New York harbor today, were unsuccessful tonight. Approximately 1,000 passengers were aboard.

Fifteen tugs attempted to pull the liner from a shoal onto which it had run, but even with the assistance of flood tide, the liner held fast.

The agents, when the tugs were unable to move the ship, established a chain of motorboats to carry passengers ashore for the night. Another attempt to float the vessel will be made tomorrow. Passengers had their choice of remaining aboard or going ashore.

BIG SLAUGHTER OF HOUSE BILLS

more of the measures backed by the Nebraska league of municipalities saw their finish. These were H. R. Nos. 20, 21 and 28.

116—Lukens' luxury tax bill on cigarets soft drinks, malt and syrups, and flavoring extracts.

made necessary by the export gold.

Objects to Price Fixing.

"I do not consider that the federal reserve management has any authority to fix prices except insofar as authority is granted to them to manage the total volume of credit and to maintain the gold standard, and I believe that is corporate profits do not warrant the present price levels of securities that the market will, within itself, correct this situation if given the opportunity.

"In the present preciptate fall on the stock market it was interesting to note that the prices of commodities fell in unison with the price of stocks. The average ration is 71 per cent, whereas the legal requirement is 35 per cent on outstanding federal reserve notes and 40 per cent on deposits, so I do not see why we need to be alarmed about reserve ratio."

SMALL TRADERS FRIGHTENED OUT

Professionals Do Bulk of Trading on Exchange Past Week.

Business Reviews Express Satisfaction Over First Quarter.

BY W. S. COUSINS.

NEW YORK, April 6—(I. N. S.)—The federal reserve board's review of credit conditions was a very much misunderstood document, and as a result the movements of stock prices on all the important exchanges of the country were confused and irregular.

Many of the small traders who were forced or frightened out of the market by last Tuesdya's big smash have remained on the outside, and the professionals had matters pretty much to themselves on the New York stock exchange this week.

The return flow of funds to banks in the latter part of the week had the natural effect of easing the strain in the money market. Call money, which started the week at 15 per cent, wound up the six-day period at 6 per cent, with offerings at 5 per cent in the outside market. The reserve board complains about the lack of funds and high money rates as a money hardship upon the business corporations, but industrial concerns are loaning nearly half of the six billion dollars total of speculative loans on the stock exchange, and the same corporations are receiving the 10 to 20 per cent interest charges exacted therefrom.

End Week at Peak of Rise.

Industrial stocks started the week 2 to 10 points below the previous week's close and ended the week at the peak of steady increase. Exceptions were seen principally in the oil shares, which received a setback in the department of justice's interpretation of the anti-trust laws and the statutes defining "restraint of trade."

Week end reviews of business and finance expressed general satisfaction with the amount of business placed on the books of the industrial corporations in the first quarter of 1929. Earnings of the representative manufacturers and distributors of the products of American factories in this period have been quite satisfactory, running from 20 to 25 per cent above the same months last year.

In many industries, production for March and for the first quarter set new high records for the periods, and the recessions in a few lines, most, of them seasonal, are not regarded seriously. A steady decreaese in the number of business failures and in the total liabilities of failed concerns, is also a favorable commentary.

A Moderate Decline.

Bradstreet's reported a lateness in spring planting of cotton and other crops due to weather conditions. Most farm products declined moderately this week, continuing tendencies noted in the latter part of March.

Unfilled orders for railroad locomotives at the end of March were 488, compared with 178 on the same date a year ago. Fabricated structural lettings in the last five weeks have averaged 60 per cent above last year's average for the same period. Advance orders in the copper trade are running the best in the whole post-war period and the outlook is bright.

Wheat Closes Lower.

CHICAGO, April 6—(I. N. S.)—Wheat closed ½c lower on the Chicago board of trade today, with heavy selling on weakness at Liverpool and reports of general rains or snow in the Canadian west. May sold within less than 1c of the lowest price on the crop. Corn was unchanged to ⅛c off and oats ⅛ to ⅜c up.

For the week wheat was off 2¾ to 3⅞c, corn 3⅞ to 4⅜c and oats ¼c lower to ¼c higher.

Bearish news and liquidation by longs depressed the wheat market. Short covering was active at times, but offerings generally proved too heavy for the demand. Crop news in this country was favorable with moisture conditions satisfactory and the winter wheat stand bright. Private estimates suggested yields of from 563,000,000 bushels to 570,000,000 bushels. Winter killing was lighter than anticipated. Flour business is quiet. Weather conditions in the Canadian northwest were generally favorable and all indications point to the largest wheat acreage ever known in the three provinces. Cables were irregular and export demand moderate.

Corn slumped with wheat. Liquidation was heavy and buying power light. The cash situation continues unchanged. No new export business was reported.

Livestock Score Gains.

CHICAGO, April 6—(I. N. S.)—All classes of livestock scored gains the past week. Hogs were up 25c, steers 50 to 75c, cows and heifers 25c. Lambs added 25c.

Hogs sold unevenly during the week. Light receipts early pushed up prices, top being $12.05, but on later trading prices eased only to go higher again near the week's finish. Dressed pork in the east had found a rather draggy outlet and as a result local shipping orders declined somewhat, having much effect on the market. Receipts for the week were 119,000 against 143,000 last week and 139,000 a year ago. Late top was $11.80, with many good grades at $11.50 to $11.75. Good heavy hogs were quoted at $11.25 to $11.50.

An unusually light cattle run of 35,000 this week, together with the termination of the Lenten season, caused prices on all killing classes to soar. Top for the week reached $14.75 for weighty cattle, with many selling at $14 to $14.50. A week ago arrivals numbered 46,000 and a year ago 37,000.

Fat cows ranged from $6.75 to $10.50, with an active trade. Heavy heifers moved at $9 to $12. A reduction in the supply of calves resulted in an advance of $1 to $2 in prices. Most of the calves ranged from $14 to $17.

Sheep receipts for the week were 67,000 against 61,000 last week and 67,000 a year ago. Demand was active. The best lambs sold at $17.75. Culls brought $14 to $15. Ewes ranged from $5 to $11.50.

Chicago Cotton Lower.

CHICAGO, April 6—(I. N. S.)—Cotton closed 36 to 48 points lower today. Trade was light and sentiment mixed.

Government weekly weather report was favorable. The boll weevil report from Washington indicated "Boll weevil emergence from 1929 season is indicated at 101.7 per cent per ton of moss in Texas against 74.5 per cent in 1929." The Liverpool cotton market was higher most of the week.

Closing prices here today were 6 to 8 points lower, May 19.80, July 19.88, October 19.72, December and January 19.75.

HOOVER'S DRY MOVES BEING EMBARRASSED

Action of Wisconsin, Violence of Agents Worrying Drys.

Wet Leaders Jubilant Over Events Since Inauguration.

WASHINGTON, April 6—(I. N. S.)—President Hoover's efforts to find some solution of the prohibition puzzle, and to secure more universal respect for the dry laws, have been considerably embarrassed during the first month of his presidency by a remarkable series of recent prohibition "incidents" calculated to inflame public discussion.

At the very time Mr. Hoover has been casting around for a "high type" commission to investigate all angles of the law enforcement situation and recommend remedies, Wisconsin voted this week to repeal her state enforcement act, and similar action has been started in the legislatures of Illinois and Missouri. And New York and Maryland legislatures again refused to pass an enforcement code.

Thus five of the largest and most populous states of the union, which cast their votes for Mr. Hoover last November, are either off the prohibition reservation, or are threatening to get off and leave it to the federal government to enforce the Volstead act.

Events Since Inauguration.

These "incidents" have all taken place since Mr. Hoover stood bareheaded in the rain on the steps of the cbapitol inauguration day and appealed to the country to have more respect for the eighteenth amendment.

Taken in conjunction with the public clamor over the Jones act; the killing of the Aurora mother by state agents who invaded a home without a legal warrant; the sinking of the Canadian schooner, I'm Alone, starting a controversy with England, France and Canada; the indictment of one dry congressman for having a trunk filled with liquor; the narrow escape of another; the boarding and searching at pistol point of Stuyvesant Fish's yacht in New Rork harbor; then admission by the treasury that federal agents have killed sixteen citizens in recent months—these and lesser incidents within the month have combined to keep prohibition frothing on the front pages of the newspapers daily.

Prohibition Still Issue.

It is beginning to dawn upon administration leaders that the wet-and-dry issue, which some fondly hoped was settled at the polls last November, is still a very lively corpse.

The events since March 4 have spurred both the wets and drys to greater endeavor.

Two national prominent women, Mrs. Charles H. Sabin of New York, and Mrs. George Orvis of Vermont, have resigned from the republican national committee, on which they served for years, in order to work for modification of the present dry laws.

The association against the prohibition amendment, well financed and including in its membership some of the outstanding industrialists of the country, took a prominent part in the Wisconsin referendum, and is planning more intensive work in other states.

Drys Also Industrious.

The drys are no less industrious. They held a week's jubilee meetings in Washington immediately after inauguration, but perplexed and somewhat alarmed by the events of the last few weeks, they are hard at work again.

Both wets and drys are eagerly awaiting appointment of the president's prohibition investigating commission.

Mr. Hoover is understood to be experiencing considerable difficulty in obtaining the services of the men he wants. He realizes that every member of the commission is going to be subjected to the most searching scrutiny as to his views on prohibition, his record, and his public utterances on the subject. It is his hope to obtain a commission that will command the respect and confidence of the public at large, whatever the professional wets and drys may think of it.

Louisville Has New Telephone System

Latest Improvements Installed So That Expansion May Be Properly Cared For.

(Special to The Star.)

LOUISVILLE, Neb., April 6—Louisville's telephone system was cut over to a new common battery system.

Due to an urgent need for improved telephone service and because of the growth that has taken place in the last year, Louisville has required an expansion of service, resulting in new telephone instruments for all subscribers and a new two position full feature common battery switchboard. This will do away with the hand ringing as a means of summoning "central."

The building has been remodeled and rearranged to accommodate the new facilities. The operating room has been enlarged. More than 180 new instruments have been installed.

Dealock Reached In DeKing Inquiry

AURORA, Ill., April 6—(U. P.)—Investigation of the dry raid slaying of Mrs. Lillian DeKing reached deadlock today when State's Attorney George D. Carbary appealed to a Circuit court for relief from an order issued by Attorney General Oscar E. Carlstrom that he must prosecute Deputy Sheriff Roy Smith, one of his own dry raiders, for killing Mrs. DeKing.

Judge John K. Newall, who received the petition several days ago, issued an order that Carlstrom supplant Carbary, which will be presented with another petition Monday asking for a special prosecutor. The petition will be presented by attorneys representing Joseph DeKing, husband of the slain woman.

Prior to receiving a letter from Charlstrom stating that he would not remove Carbary from the prosecution, Judge Newall said he would name a special prosecutor.

It was thought unlikely that Judge Newall would defy the attorney general and remove Carbary from the case.

Carbary also will present evidence to the grand jury concerning Eugene Boyd Fairchild, dry investigator, arrested on a charge of perjury. A coroner's jury recommended that the grand jury inquire into Fairchild's false affidavit about purchase of liquor from Mrs. DeKing. According to custom, Carbry will be obliged to investigate that angle of the case also.

Fairchild was released in bonds of $1,500 in order to give him time to employ legal counsel.

TRAFFIC BUREAU ANNOUNCES NEW FREIGHT RATES

The chamber of commerce traffic bureau Saturday announced the following changes in freight tariffs to Lincoln:

Brick in carload lots from Kansas City, 12 cents per 100 pounds; Atchison, 11 cents; and St. Joseph, 11 cents. The previous rate was 10 cents. The new rate is effective April 15.

Effective April 27 the rate on clay will be 40 cents per 100 pounds from Aurora and Ivie, Utah. The rate now is 50 cents. On this same date radiators and boilers in carloads will cost $1.25 per 100 from Lincoln to Durango and Farmington, N. M. This is a drop from $1.41½ and $1.70.

A rate of 47 cents has been in operation on flax seed in carlots from gulf ports, but it expires July 8. The former rate was 67 cents.

There will be a drop of 7 cents a hundred pounds on pipe, cast iron and fittings in less than car lots from Birmingham, Ala. The old rate of $1.15½ does not change until May 5

A rate of 26 cents will be published soon on sawdust from Cloquet, Minn. The rate now is 28½ cents.

Effective May 1 a new rate will apply from interior Iowa stations on the Chicago & Northwestern line to Lincoln. It provides for the application of eastbound Mississippi river rates as maximum on westbound traffic. This will result in a saving of ½ cent, 4½, 4 and 2 cents on first, second, third and fourth class freight.

HOMESTEADERS FACE CONTESTS

Four Important Cases Soon to Be Tried at Alliance.

(Special to The Star.)

ALLIANCE, Neb., April 6—There are four outstanding homestead cases on the docket for trial before J. H. H. Hewett, register of the government land office here. In the case of the United States vs. Floyd L. Youeney, it is charged on the part of the government that the defendant failed to make sufficient improvements on his homestead claim of 477 acres in Cherry county. Improvements must amount to a value of $1.25 per year for each acre of land.

A case of the government against Charles Dalton is similar to the Youeney action. It is alleged that Mr. Dalton failed to make enough improvements on his homestead entry. He made entry on 320 acres of Cherry county ranch land.

A large portion of land in Knox county that was caused by the Missouri river changing its course is the cause of two contests for homestead claims, on file with Judge Hewett here. One contest is between Evelina Johnson and Edward Tonner for 77 acres in Knox county, and another contest case is between John S. Honey and Minnie M. Davis over 144 acres of land in that county. Mary Goin has filed for homestead on 127 acres of this land. Depositors will be taken in these three cases in the Knox county district court.

Wilkins Will Explore Earth's Axis at Pole

Plans Undersea Study to Determine If Depression Extends Through World.

LOS ANGELES, April 6—(U. P.) Capt. Sir Hubert Wilkins, famed polar explorer who flew here from New York to discuss plans for a submarine cruise in Arctic seas and who intends to fly over Antarctic regions within the next few months, will leave by airplane for Salt Lake City tomorrow, he announced today.

Sir Hubert, who has flown successfully over both Arctic and Antarctic oceans, layed preliminary plans for his proposed submarine trip to the North Pole to chart unknown drifts and depths and determine whether or not the earth's axis is a wide depression whose abysmal depths extend from pole to pole, as claimed by scientists.

A specially constructed undersea craft with wheels and contrivance to allow men to emerge in diving suits to drag it free of obstacles beneath the frozen seas and numerous other protective features which would enable it to overcome obstacles such as never before have been encountered, would be necessary for the contemplated cruise, the explorer declared.

"Although I am here to discuss plans for the submarine trip," Sir Hubert said. "It must be delayed until some time next year. In a few months I shall start on a second trip of exploration in the Antarctic and of course, other expeditions must await my return—if I do return.

"Definite plans are being made for the submarine venture," he continued. "There is nothing new in the idea, although the combination of difficulties to be met and overcome in the polar seas will offer a greater test than has ever before been accorded a submarine."

Sir Hubert was confident of success in the proposed venture.

"The plan has been in my mind for fifteen years and has been analyzed in detail," he concluded.

Governor of Kansas Calls Conference to Move Surplus Grain

TOPEKA, Kas., April 6—(U. P.)—Believing Kansas is facing a serious grain transportation situation, Gov. Clyde M. Reed tonight called a meeting of railroad representatives and shipper for Monday, April 15.

The group will discuss temporary rate reductions to gulf ports, a step that will enable Kansas to dispose of her surplus of low grade export wheat now on hand.

Estimates show that there are 50,000,000 bushels of wheat in Kansas elevators with many millions more on the farms. Terminal elevators are also said to be carrying a heavy supply.

Dr. Pool to Direct Biology Course In Rocky Mountains

The botany department of the University of Nebraska will offer biology courses in the Rocky mountains during the first six weeks of the 1929 summer session. The work in the mountains will be under the personal direction of Prof. Raymond J. Pool, chairman of the department of botany, who has conducted similar projects for the last three summers.

The session will be held at Camp Olympus in the Rocky Mountain National park beginning June 11, and continuing for six weeks until July 19. College and high school instructors of botany, biology, and nature study, and college students wishing to supplement their training may register.

The principal course, general in scope, will utilize the varied resources of the mountain environment to present a broad view of modern biology, with particular reference to flowering plants and forests. An advanced course will be available for those with considerable training in plant taxonomy or ecology and who will be able to work independently or with minimum guidance. Registration in the former course is limited to thirty, in the latter to ten.

Classes cover the region thoroughly by means of an arranged series of field trips by auto bus and on foot. It has been the custom to take three all-day trips and one or two half-day trips each week, together with two overnight camping trips.

CANDIDATES FOR CITY COUNCIL

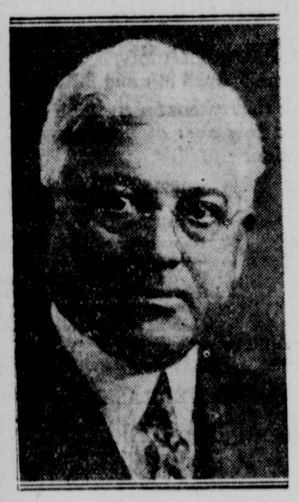
CANDIDATE FOR MAYOR



Wise Economy

City expenditures must be kept within the amount allowed by the charter. This can be done by wise economy.

Development of Public Parks and Playgrounds

The city government should foster the growth and development of the city both in business and as a beautiful and wholesome place in which to live. Our new parks should be developed, but the smaller close-in parks, used mostly for children's playgrounds must not be neglected.

Better Use of Municipally-owned Utilities

All municipally owned utilities should be maintained and operated for the benefit of the people and the development of the city.

Full Enforcement of Laws

All laws should be strictly and impartially enforced. Dishonesty in public office must not go unpunished.

Primaries Tuesday April 9th

MR. C. E. PREVEY

has served this community ably and faithfully for twenty-seven years. There is no one who knows our city better than he. In the twenty-seven years he directed the welfare work there was not one dollar misspent or unaccounted for. No man in public life was able to make public dollars go farther in meeting the demands of the service and carrying out a constructive and progressive program of social work.

Lincoln needs to practice economy in its city affairs and must do so until a charter amendment makes it possible to be more liberal in certain directions.

Believing in his ability and integrity we recommend him to the voters as a splendid man to be elected as a City Commissioner.

   (a) A fire station for South Lincoln.
   (b) A Public Safety Building and a garage for city motor cars and trucks on Market Square. (Allen Cowgill believes that these buildings should be built in five sections as the money becomes available, avoiding a bond issue and payment of interest thereon.)

3. An annual inventory and check of city property and tools as well as an audit of city funds.

Favoritism at the city hall must be stopped.

Our citizens were shocked and humiliated at the manner the city council recently handled the misuse of city funds. Dishonesty in public office must not go unpunished and the city must not compromise with wrong doing. Our municipally owned utilities were established by vote of the people and must be honestly administered for the protection of our people.

All parks should be developed but first attention should be given to close in parks easily accessible to those who most need parks.

By careful and intelligent use of city money it will be possible to save enough from the present tax levy for a new city building on North Tenth street to be built one unit at a time; also for fire barn in South Lincoln.

I favor impartial enforcement of all laws and pledge myself to that end.

LINK DISCUSSES TREE PLANTING

Beautification Program for State Outlined In an Address.

Myriad of Organizations Take Part in State Arbor Efforts.

"Tree Planting and Landscape Beautification" was the subject of a talk given Saturday morning over KFAB by J. T. Link, as part of a program being carried on over the state to encourage beautification of the state through tree development.

The address follows:

"The value of trees has always been recognized and more so in recent years, as is shown by the establishment of an Arbor day in every state in the union and in all civilized countries of the world. Each year the president of the United States proclaims an American Forest week in which he calls upon all citizens to consider thoughtfully and constructfully our forest needs.

"In 1926 Governor McMullen inaugurated what is known as the Nebraska plan of reforestation. Last year the public schools under the direction of Supt. Charles W. Taylor took a leading part in the tree planting program. The schools planted 11,402 trees on school grounds. The agricultural etension service of the University of Nebraska, under the direction of W. H. Brokaw, distributed 682,000 tree seedlings among 2,600 farmers in every county in this state during the month of April. This year the department will distribute close to 900,000 seedlings, beginning next week.

"The United States Forest service planted 1,000 acres of pine transplants on the Nebraska National forests in Thomas and Cherry counties. The annual planting program in Nebraska's national forests calls for the planting of 1,000 acres annually. The bureau of game and fish planted 25,000 pine transplants on one of the state fish and game reserves in Cherry county.

"The railroads of Nebraska were loyal supporters of this program and forty-two station grounds were improved by tree planting. The Burlington railroad, cooperating with the agricultural extension service and farmers adjoining the right of way, planted 7,000 trees on the Sterling-Holdrege division between Holdrege and Grant. The project was to beautify the right-of-way, serve as an experimental snow fence planting, and furnish a field shelter belt for cooperating farmers. As a part of the Fremont project, 2,800 trees were planted, pruned, and watered in one day by labor contributed by the citizens of Fremont.

Beautify Landscape.

"This year's plan includes the forestry and tree planting idea; it fully recognizes that trees, the giants in the plant world, constitute a large element in the beauty and grandeur of the landscape, and that they have always had a great influence upon man's existence and development, but the plan also takes special recognition of Nebraska's needs, and so it includes beautification by means of trees, by the planting of shrubs, vines, and flowers. There is an apparent need for forestation for commercial production in our state, but this phase of development is not to be made the major issue this year; the plan rather emphasizes the environmental, educational, and aesthetic effects to be gained.

"To give special emphasis and official recognition to this work, the governor has designated the week from April 15 to April 22, ending with Arbor day, as "Tree Planting and Landscape Beautification Week." He has appointed a state committee for the 1929 campaign to formulate a plan for this year's work. The committee has evolved a comprehensive program which appeals to every citizen individually and to any organization to which he may belong, or in which he may use his influence to beautify Nebraska.

"The following is a list of places involved in the beautification program: Country, town and city homes; public schools, including rural, city and consolidated, state teachers colleges, the University of Nebraska; churches, with reference to their church buildings, church grounds, parsonages, welfare homes, hospitals, cemeteries, church schools, academies and colleges; institutions under the state board of control; industrial grounds; railroad grounds; highways, tourists parks, gas stations, and hotels; county and state fair grounds; state parks and recreational grounds; cities and towns, with reference to their streets, parks, hospitals, cemeteries, golf grounds, ball parks, and other civic developments; farms and ranches, with reference to shelter belts, woodlots, game protection, prevention of soil erosion, and planting for nut, post, pole, and lumber production; property belonging to various clubs, societies and other organizations.

All On Committees.

"All the institutions mentioned are represented on the state committee and on the subcommittees. The governor, in appointing this committee and specifying its duties, calls attention to an emphasizes the importance of this campaign of tree planting and landscape beautification.

"The committee is assisted by the state forester, the extension forester, representatives of the Nebraska National Forest service, the Federal Forest service, and other state and federal departments as well as the department of the university that gives technical advice to the selection, planting, cultivation, and care of flowers, shrubs, and trees. State Supt. Charles W. Taylor is chairman of campaign week and will bring the matter to the attention of the schools of the state.

"In agreement with the governor's plan and that of the committee, Dean Condra of the Conservation and Survey division of the University of Nebraska, who has been appointed state chairman of the committee, has prepared a bulletin on "Tree Planting and Landscape Beautification." The bulletin is dedicated to the memory of the pioneer planters of Nebraska, men "who have left their footprints on the sands of time:" J. Sterling Morton, the founder of Arbor day, Robert W. Furnas, Charles E. Bessey, C. S. Harrison, Isaac Pollard, William Solley, Peter Younger, and Julius Ami Sandoz, and is also dedicated in recognition of those who beautify Nebraska with flowers, trees, vines and shrubs.

Bulletin Has History.

"The bulletin contains a short history of the present plan, it emphasizes Nebraska's contribution along these lines. Nebraska has given the world an Arbor day; it is called the "Tree Planters' state," a name in keeping with its history and ambitions. The Nebraska plan has been copied by other states, because it enlists the popular suppore of so many citizens and produces results. The plan as followed in Nebraska is scientific, practical, and effective in meeting the needs of Nebraska.

"It's features as they now stand are as follows: 1. There is a definite agreement among the agencies involved as the state committee, conservation and survey division, the agicultural experiment stations, extension service, the nurserymen of the state and the Bessey nursery. 2. The Bessey nursery is to produce trees for the national forests and for distribution by the extension service for shelter belt and woodlot purposes. 3. The agriculeural experiment stations are to grow stock for planting on state lands and on state institution grounds. 4. The commercial field proper is to be occupied by the nurserymen. 5. State and federal departments are not to grow flowers, vines and shrubs for distribution. 6. Plans for each year's campaign are to be formulated by the state committee and the agencies named before, and submitted to a citizen's meeting to be held at the capitol, the governor presiding. 7. The plan as adopted at such public meeting is to be furthered by the committee during tree planting and landscape beautification week.

"The bulletin also contains the names and addresses of the committee on technical information from whom information may be obtained as to the planting of trees, not only how, but also what to plant. It has short articles on the value of tree planting and beautification of the home, school grounds, church grounds, cemeteries, state institution grounds, industrial grounds, railroad grounds, highways, parks, gas stations, and hotels. Finally the bulletin contains a list of references on tree planting, many of which may be obtained free of charge.

"The bulletin came from the press last week and has been sent to all members of the committee and subcommittees, to the newspapers of the state, to the officials of the various religious organizations, civic organizations, farm organizations, welfare societies, to the county superintendent, city superintendents, the higher institutions of learning, state senators and representatives, state and county officials, and others. This bulletin is called "Bulletin 2, Tree Planting and Landscape Beautification." Anyone interested may obtain a copy of this bulletin by sending a requese together with a two cent stamp to pay postage to the Conservation and Survey division, Station A, Lincoln, Nebraska."

SMITH UPHELD IN DEKING CASE

Dr. Wilson Defends the Shooting by Prohibition Agents.

WASHINGTON, April 6—(U. P.)—The shooting of desperate liquor law violators by prohibition agents was defended here today by Dr. Clarence True Wilson, general secretary of the board of temperance, prohibition and public morals of the Methodist Episcopal church. He also expressed qualified approval of wet-drinking, dry-voting members of congress.

In an interview with the United Press today, Dr. Wilson indicated that, in his opinion, the frequent shootings involved in the enforcement of national prohibition are for the most part necessary because of the desperate nature of the liquor law violators.

We cannot take soft methods in dealing wtih that class of criminal," Dr. Wilson said.

Shoot As Last Resort.

I do not know the circumstances surrounding each case, but in most instances where prohibition officers have shot they have done it as a last resort and they should be commended for bringing a law resisting criminal to time, rather than condemned."

Wilson included in his defense the shooting of Mrs. Lillian DeKing by an Illinois state enforcement officer. That agent shot in self-defense, he believes.

It is an outrage for him to be tried for manslaughter," Wilson said.

Several other current phases of prohibition enforcement were discussed by Dr. Wilson. The repeal of the life for a pint" law in Michigan, he said, was due to the influence of Governor Green, a wet.

He is a wet and wants to cater to the wets so as to insure his re-election," Wilson declared. But I never advocated the adoption of the Michigan law," he added.

LERNER STORES TO OPEN BRANCH

New York Ready-to-wear Firm Leases Store at 1211 O Street.

Lerner Stores, Inc., of New York City, will take possession of the building at 1211 O street November 1 and will establish a branch ladies' ready-to-wear store, it was learned Saturday. The building will be remodeled involving an expenditure of $25,000, it was announced.

Deeds for sale of a lease to the property for $55,000 by Eli Shire and Jennie Shire were filed Saturday in the recorder of deeds office.

Tentative plans of the firm indicate the store will be opened about Jan. 1, 1930, according to Mr. Shire. Remodeling of the front and inside of the building will be started Nov. 1, it is planned.

Under terms of the contract, Mr. Shire received $11,000 on execution of the contract. The balance will be paid in four annual installments of $11,000 each beginning Jan. 2, 1930. The lease will run 86 years or until Feb. 1, 2017.

The Lerner Stores maintain branches in other leading cities in the United States.

Mr. Shire took over a 99-year lease from the Kostka Drug Co., on Nov. 8, 1918. On March 4, last, he gained complete control of the property through another lease from B. O. Kostka and several other part owners.

The New York firm will pay Orlando and Calvin Webster rental of $500 a month. The original lease made to the Kostka Drug Co. in 1917 was for $415,800 payable in monthly rental of $350.

SAYS HER LOVER KILLED HUSBAND

Iowa Woman Claims Tice Attacked Mate When Found in Home.

DAVENPORT, Ia., April 6.—(I. N. S.)—Breaking a silence lasting more than a week, Mrs. William Hartney of Davenport, today named Ralph Tice, 39, Davenport, as the slayer of her husband. Tice is under arrest.

According to Mrs. Hartney, Tice slugged her husband to death during a quarrel over her affections when Hartney found the man in his home. Mrs. Hartney, police claim, permitted her husband to lie unconscious in the home without medical attention for two days. A grocer boy called officers to the house to investigate. Mrs. Hartney is being held in the detention home for further examination.

FARM HOME BURNED.
(Special to The Star.)

ALLIANCE, Neb., April 6—The farm residence of W. F. Pyle, 12 miles north of Alliance, burned to the ground yesterday while the family was away. The residence was large and modern. Two chicken incubators in operation in the basement of the structure are believed to have caused the blaze.

As Rogers Sees It

NEW YORK, April 6.—The papers are quoting things from Mr. Coolidge's latest article, so explain this paragraph: "A strong group of the party in and outside the senate made the mistake of undertaking to oppose Mr. Hoover with a large number of local candidates, which finally resulted in their not developing enough strength for any one candidate to impress the convention." Why has it been considered a "mistake?" Socially, everything is quiet today along the Potomac. If we can just keep everybody from giving a dinner, we may get out of this yet.

Yours, WILL.

HER SIDE GIVEN BY MRS. INMAN

Wife of Wealthy New Yorker Admits She Kicked Him.

RENO, Nev., April 6—(U. P.)—That the "boys and girls" of her acquaintance lived rather informal lives and exchanged kisses in bedrooms was testified today by Helene Patton Inman, who is contesting the divorce suit of her husband, Walter P. Inman, wealthy New Yorker.

Mrs. Inman said that it was no infrequent occurrence for the kisses to be exchanged and that such amatory advances particularly had taken place in her bedroom because there were lots of big chairs there.

The wife also admitted that at one time she had kicked her husband, but added that "I was sick of that sort of thing,' 'and "my feet were all I had left."

"That sort of thing," she had explained, was being held almost powerless by her husband and being beaten.

"Yes, I kicked him," she answered in response to a question. "He held my hands with one of his. I was sick of that sort of thing—had enough of it—so, well I kicked him."

The trial session opened with Mrs. Inman taking the stand and being questioned relative to her legal counsel and the possibility of her husband attempting to "frame" her.

Tells of Interview.

She told of an interview with Emanuel B. Cohen, New York attorney, who represented both her and Inman in a property settlement, and said that Cohen had told her "money would do anything."

Just previous to her statement she had been asked;

"Did you believe Cohen in regard to statements relative to framing you?"

Mrs. Inman testified that after she and her husband had separated she had received numerous telephone calls from men who refused to give their names, but said she was well acquainted with them.

She said the men asked her to "go places," but that she did not go as she knew she had never met them.

Previous testimony of Mrs. Otto Schmitt, Mrs. Inman's maid, that she had been asked by the wife to "stick around and we'll get all of Walker's money" was branded false.

Asked if she had had any talk with Otto, the butler, concerning being in love with him, as was previously testified, she answered;

"Oh, dear me, no."

SIX LOSE LIVES IN IOWA BLAZE

Twelve Others Injured in Escaping From Des Moines Hotel.

DES MOINES, Ia., April 6.—U. P.)—Six persons perished in a fire that destroyed the Kirkwood hotel here today. Twelve other guests were burned or injured in their escape from the burning structure.

The dead:

Mrs. Theodore Watson, 'Red" Jerru, a waiter; W. P. Radler, Thomas Coates, all of Des Moines, and two unidentified bodies.

Theodore Watson, husband of one of those killed, was probably fatally injured when he jumped from a window to the street. Cora Broecker, 20, of 49 Melbourne avenue, southeast, Minneapolis, also suffered injuries.

Origin of the blaze was undetermined. Police, however, were investigating a report that a "wild party" was in progress on the fourth floor shortly before the fire was discovered.

There were approximately 150 guests in the hotel when the fire was discovered on the fourth floor. Escape was easy for those on the lower floors, but nearly a score were rescued by firemen from the upper floors.

Jerrio, seriously burned, was killed when he jumped from his room on the fourth floor.

Damage was estimated at $150,000.

KANSAS PUZZLED BY CURTIS FUSS

Home Folk Take Up Gossip About Social Ranking of Mrs. Gann.

TOPEKA, Kas., April 6—(U. P.)—Kansas is gossiping, too, about the "diplomatic fuss" raging in Washington over whether Dolly Curtis Gann should sit at social functions.

In some statehouse circles tongues are wagging almost as glibly as in Washington's inner circles.

Kansans do not understand what has happened about the Curtis family in the nation's capital.

"Why, Charley Curtis is just as plain as an old shoe," his home state constituents replied to Washington stories implicating the vice president had become "high hat Charley."

But because Mr. Curtis is Kansas' favorite son and Mrs. Gann is a favorite daughter, none allow themselves to be quoted here.

Mrs. Gann is regarded as a "good fellow" in her home state.

In fact, she deported herself so well in the Curtis campaign that old time politicians remarked, "Dolly Curtis is a better politician than Charley."

They had opportunity to verify this in Kansas City last summer when Mrs. Gann played an active part in Curtis headquarters, with a friendly smile and handshake for every person who came to boost "our Charley for the presidency."

There are some of the Kansas constituency who feel "the national capital is being shown how to treat a lady from Kansas."

The Now Famous Herb Extract Called HERB JUICE Established Phenomenal Sales Record

Over Million Bottles Sold in Past Year

Mass of Evidence Given by Local People Fully Corroborates Claims for Celebrated Medicine

Druggists Astounded at the Tremendous Repeat Sales and Beneficial Results Obtained from Its Use

HARLEY DRUG STORE, Big Downtown Druggist, 11th and "O" Streets, Sells More Than 300 Bottles In Single Day

People amazed by actual results of this medicine. Now selling at the rate of 3 bottles minute, 180 bottles hour, 4,320 day, 30,240 week, over million yearly. Seems almost unbelievable that any one medicine would reach such a phenomenal sales record, but when you realize how quickly it gives results in the most obstinate cases and brings back the joys of living then you will understand why it has been proclaimed the greatest medicine on the American market.

Miller's Herb Extract, known as Herb Juice, is said to possess a combination of herbs, barks, roots and berries not found in any other preparation, the one medicine that is different. It is absolutely purely vegetable, pleasant tasting, effective, good for children, grown folks and old people.

Thousands of people from all walks of life, in every city where it has been introduced, are singing its praise and giving public testimonial statements for publication that their friends may read and learn of its powerful cleansing and health restoring power. Many Lincoln's most prominent citizens among the masses reporting renewed health. Space here permits only a few of the many thousand commendable statements on file in the office of the laboratories.

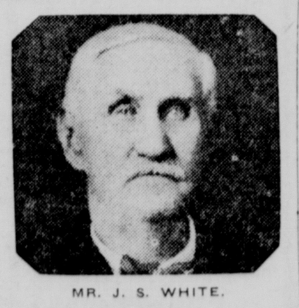
MRS. L. A. BEASON.

"The rheumatic condition is a thing of the past, neuritis pains bother me no more since I got my system thoroughly cleansed by using Miller's Herb Extract. Liver, stomach and kidney disorders I do not have to contend with now for my entire system is in fine condition. I am happy to state that I can eat the food I wish without suffering tortures from gas pains and indigestion. I was losing weight for a year or more until I used the Herb Extract, now I have normal weight, a good appetite, plenty of vim and energy for one of my age. I feel supple, well and strong all the time. I've lived in Lincoln for the past twenty years. I have many friends and good neighbors to whom I am always praising Miller's Herb Extract for the good health it brought. They rejoice at my wonderful improvement in health. Many of them are now using the great medicine with gratifying results. I'm glad it's so, for I think Miller's Herb Extract is the most wonderful remedy that any one can use to thoroughly cleanse the whole system, driving out all impurities and building up a rundown condition. I am speaking from experience, and it's a pleasure genuine to praise and recommend such a wonderful medicine to all ailing people. I know it is the greatest medicine I ever used, greatest health restorer known to me. All my folks, even down to my granddaughter, have been wonderfully benefited by the great Herb medicine."

CIVIL WAR VETERAN EXPRESSES HIS GRATITUDE

Although He Is Well Advanced in Years, He Finds Life Great With Good Health for His Daily Companion. Praises Miller's Herb Extract.

The power of nature's great medicine triumphs over and over again. Old people say it is the greatest health restorer and body builder ever placed on the market. Yes, it's great for old folk, grown people and children—people in all walks of life praise it sincerely for beneficial results. It is a household remedy in millions of homes. The reason: It gives complete satisfaction. It's Miller's Herb Extract, for years called "Herb Juice." Mr. J. S. White, well known Civil war veteran, heartily declares that the Herb Extract medicine is the only remedy he could find to keep him healthy and in an active condition. "Without an equal, I think," recently stated Mr. White in an interview with the Herb Extract man.



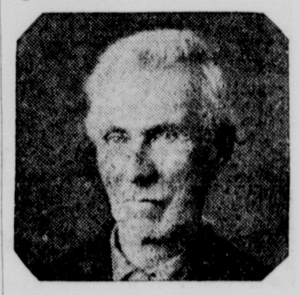
MR. J. S. WHITE.

"I was dreadfully run down and broken in health several months ago," continued Mr. White, "and the fact that I never derived any special benefit from the different remedies I used, made me somewhat skeptical about trying anything else. First, my daughter used Miller's Herb Extract; she got wonderful results from just a bottle or two. She insisted that I give it a trial, which I have already done, and the good results, lasting benefits, in fact, the good health this wonderful medicine brought me, prompts this statement solely for the benefit of other sufferers. I needed a good medicine, and I certainly did find it in Miller's Herb Extract. Those awful gas pains, nervous indigestion, the sluggish liver I had for months, rheumatic and neuritis pains, chronic constipation and all the ills which caused my ill health were overcome through the use of the great Herb Extract remedy. Now I feel different altogether—yes, like a different man in every way. Although I've lost my eyesight, I have good health, feel strong in mind and body. The nervous condition does not bother me nowadays. I have a keen appetite, splendid digestion, free from indigestion and gas pains. Bowels, liver and kidneys function in fine order. I intend to continue taking Miller's Herb Extract occasionally for I know it is the only remedy to keep me healthy and feeling fine all the time. I think it is the greatest system regulator one can buy or use—yes, it is without an equal, I think. I do not hesitate to call Herb Extract or 'Herb Juice' the world's greatest system cleanser and health restorer. To every ailing person, I heartily recommend its use."

LINCOLN MAN REACHES A RIPE OLD AGE, 80

His Wife Is 77, Married 54 Years Ago; They Carry On, Now In Good Health, Happy and Satisfied, Praising Miller's Herb Extract.

Here in Lincoln, (Neb.) as in most every place under the sun, age is no barrier to health and happiness when nature's great remedy, Miller's Herb Extract, for years called "Herb Juice" is used to keep renewed strength, energy and vigor in the body. A few bottles of this great health remedy proves its power. Mr. T. H. Utterback, well known and highly esteemed truck farmer and gardener, residing at 2933 Potter street, Lincoln, Nebraska, says he feels as well nowadays as when he was only forty-five years old. Praises Miller's Herb Extract above every remedy for good results and lasting benefits.



MR. T. H. UTTERBACK.

"I read Mr. Wing's testimonial in the Lincoln papers several months ago, and being in need of a good medicine at that time, I took advantage of the opportunity to test out this medicine to my entire satisfaction. Yes, indeed, Miller's Herb Extract called Herb Juice is by far the greatest medicine I ever used. No wonder at all to me now, that the people say it is the world's greatest system cleanser and regulator. It is the only medicine I ever could find that would thoroughly and completely cleanse my system and free me from chronic indigestion, constipation, rheumatism, torpid liver and weak kidneys. Those terrible ills ruined my health years ago and I tried most everything in an effect to regain my health. I can conscientiously and very truthfully say that Miller's Herb Extract gave me more genuine relief, lasting benefits and satisfactory results in every way than any medicine I have ever taken, and I've used dozens of different remedies, too. Now since using only four bottles of this good Herb medicine I feel as spry as I did when I was only forty-five. I am now eighty years of age, my wife is seventy-seven, we have been married fifty-four years. And the fact that we have found a medicine to keep us in a healthy condition, naturally, we are happy, satisfied and contented with our lot. The rheumatic pains are gone, gas pains, sluggish liver, weak kidneys, irregular bowel action troubles me no more. I am hearty, eat with a keen appetite and the best part all my food digests remarkably well. I am able to climb a flight of stairs, feel supple and fine all the time. Yes, I feel mighty well for an old man. My wife joins me in hearty praise for the great Herb Extract remedy which brought us health and happiness. We most heartily recommend it to everybody.

NEW REMEDY IMPROVED HIS HEALTH 100%

The Great Herb Extract Remedy Known as Herb Juice Scores Another Victory for Well Known Lincoln Man.

"One hundred percent better in every way. That's how I feel since using Miller's Herb Extract (formerly called Herb Juice.) It has done wonders for me, hence it has not only my endorsement but my heartiest recommendation," said Mr. M. E. Littrell, well known carpenter, who resides at 4719 Cleveland avenue, University Place, Lincoln, Neb., in a recent statement to the special representative.

"Nothing succeeds like success, hence the fame of Miller's Herb Extract is growing by leaps and bounds from one end of the country to the other. It is helping thousands of people who were never benefited by any medicine or treatment before. This great Herb Extract preparation acts upon the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, cleansing, purifying and regulating the whole system, thus bringing quick, glorious satisfactory and lasting relief to suffering humanity."

HER ONE DESIRE IS TO HELP OTHERS

Feels Sure She Can Be of Service to Ailing People If They Will Only Follow Her Suggestion.

"It is a pleasure to express publicly my hearty endorsement of your wonderful Herb Extract remedy known as Herb Juice. I feel that every sufferer of constipation, stomach, liver and kidney disorders should know of this great tonic-laxative. It has done more for me than any medicine I have ever used, hence I am glad to recommend it to others," said Mrs. Ada Hammond, 932 No. 30th St., Lincoln, Neb., in a recent statement to the special representative at Harley's Drug Store.

MRS. ADA HAMMOND.

Continuing, Mrs. Hammond said, "I have been a sufferer from chronic constipation, indigestion, acid stomach, gas pains, nervousness, headaches, etc., for 25 years, (nasal catarrh) trouble also sinus. My food would fail to digest, would sour and cause gas to form on my stomach. I would suffer those dreadful gas attacks regardless of how light my diet, was constipated all the time, which made me extremely nervous, could hardly sleep at all. My ailments had me in a pretty badly rundown condition. No matter what I tried nothing seemed to give me any satisfactory or permanent relief. I kept hearing and reading so much about your herb medicine known as Herb Juice and so many users recommended it so highly for troubles similar to mine that I decided to try it myself. I began to note beneficial effects after taking the first few doses. It seemed to go at once to the source of my trouble and give me relief such as no other medicine had ever done. Now after taking a course of this medicine I am feeling better in every way than I have in years. I am no longer troubled with constipation, indigestion, sour stomach, gas pains or headaches, sleep better and feel better in every way. It has also relieved my sinus trouble to a greater extent than any remedy I have ever used. It is the greatest system cleanser and general health restoring remedy I have ever found. Not only do I heartily endorse this great medicine, but urge other like sufferers to try it on my recommendation. If a sufficient amount is taken regularly and properly I feel confident they will enjoy the same pleasant results from its use that I have."

IT'S THE GREATEST MEDICINE I EVER USED

Said a Well-Known and Highly Esteemed Lincoln Lady, Praising Miller's Herb Extract. Gets Rid of Rheumatism and Neuritis.

"I am seventy-eight years of age and feeling fine. I want it plainly understood that no medicine I ever used would accomplish for me what Miller's Herb Extract (formerly called Herb Juice) has, in freeing me from rheumatism and neuritis. I know by actual test that it is a wonderful system cleanser and body builder. I was in poor health for a long time, and only through the use of the Herb Extract remedy did I find a suitable medicine to restore me to health and strength," said Mrs. L. A. Beason, highly esteemed aged woman, residing at 4602 Adams St., Lincoln, Neb., who numbers her friends by acquaintances.

Hundreds call daily to see the Herb Juice Medicine Company's special representative, who has established headquarters at Harley Drug Store, 11th & "O" Sts., to learn more of this great medicine that is bringing health and happiness to so many Lincoln citizens.

SCOTT EXPLAINS INTANGIBLE TAX

Commissioner Issues Statement Relative to Division of Receipts From New Law.

State Tax Commissioner Harry W. Scott issued a brief statement Saturday explaining that intangible property, under the new law which went into effect just before April 1, bears only one tax, the proceeds of which are split up among the state and its local subdivisions of government. He said:

"A number of inquiries have come to this office as to whether or not the 2½ mills tax on Class A intangibles and the 8 mills tax on Class B intangibles, is the total tax charged for this kind of property.

"Some people have the idea that this tax is for state purposes only and that county, school and city taxes will also be charged against this property. The 2½-mill tax on money and the 8-mill tax an other intangibles are all that are levied against this kind of property. In other words, if a man has $1,000 in money, his total tax will be $2.50. If he resides in the city, the $2.50 will be divided as follows:

"One-sixth to the state general fund, one-sixth to the county general fund, one-third to the city general fund, one-third to the school general fund.

"If the taxpayer resides outside of the city, the $2.50 will be divided in this manner:

"One-sixth to the state general fund, one-sixth to the county general fund, two-thirds to the school general fund.

"On other intangibles, such as notes, stock in foreign (non-Nebraska) corporations and other securities, the total tax on $1,000 will be $8, and the $8 will be distributed to the different funds in the same manner as shown abive."

Developments in the aviation industry as it effects Lincoln have been progressing rapidly the past week, it was learned Saturday. Simultaneous with the announcement that a groundplane phone station is to be located here, it has been learned that there is a move on foot to organize in Lincoln an air transportation company.

Under the tentative proposal the company would be a syndicate of Lincoln men. The purpose would be to establish air lanes in all directions with Lincoln as the hub of the system with passengers and express being carried along with light freight, and possibly eventually mail. The plane factories are here, it is pointed out, and there are plenty of landing fields. Couple this with the fact, advocates of the plan declare, that some of the largest air transport companies in the country are considering Lincoln in new routings of lanes, and there should be no hesitancy on launching the enterprise.

According to Secretary Whitten, secretary of the chamber of commerce, Lincoln already has a place in the aviation world. Almost daily, he says, he is receiving letters asking for inforation in connection with some phase of the industry here. Many of these are concerned with flying schools, although not a few ask about the number of plane factories and the type of planes manufactured.

One company already has virtually agreed to include Lincoln in its routing of an airplane from the Gulf of Mexico to Canada. Now another is negotiating for a location here in connection with a route from the east into the northwest and probably western Canada.

Announcement that the groundplane phone station is to be located here was ade by the Boeing Air Transport, Inc., holders of the air mail contract between Chicago and the Pacific coast. The same announcement added that Lincoln will be one of the division points. According to the announcement the service will be installed simultaneously with the inauguration of an expended plane service featuring ships that will carry eighteen passengers. These will come to Lincoln.

How soon this will be depends in a measure on how long it takes to get the municipal airport in condition for the landing of planes. Mayor Hedge and City Engineer Erickson have been rushing operations at the port and it is hoped that the new runways will be ready for use before the middle of May.

Seniors Will Get Practical Work on State Newspapers

Dr. C. H. Oldfather, professor of ancient history and languages at the University of Nebraska, has been assigned to translate from the Greek "Diodorus of Sicily" for the Loeb classical library. His work will be the first translation of Diodorus into English and is expected to be about thirteen volumes, the longest single work for this collection of classical authors which now numbers about 350 volumes.

The value of Diodorus' work is historical. He was not an original writer, but collected history of many periods of ancient times, and compiled the first history of all the peoples of the Mediterranean world up to the time 59 B. C. Many writings of early historians were lost but some periods of these are preserved in Diodorus' collection, as he traveled extensively and used the writings of others.

Professor Oldfather made a previous contribution to the Loeb classical library about six years ago, translating "Asclepiodotus," a Greek writer ,which is now included in one of the volumes of the collection.

Journalism seniors of the University of Nebraska will get their first taste of the real newspaper world when they report to various editors in the state for a week's work from April 15 to 20. This is in accordance with an addition to the requirements for students of the school of journalism this year.

Twenty editors in the state have expressed willingness to take students for a week's experience on their papers. Several others are expected to make definite arrangements. These papers will all be within a radius of 150 miles because of transportation difficulties, although a number of papers farther away from Lincoln have offered to take students.

The plan, in general, is to assign one student to each paper. Similar methods are in use by other schools of journalism in the country but these are mostly "team" methods, by which several students are sent to each paper. Assignments will be made with view to the type of work the students expect to do after graduation.

This requirement, new this year, is to insure some practical experience to all graduating students. All expense will be paid by the students and they will receive no pay for their work. The assignments will come during spring vacation so only two days of school will be missed, and absences on those days will be excused.

FAIRBURY, Neb., April 6.—Extensive improveent plans contemplated for some time by the St. Joseph and Grand Island railway at this place are about to become a reality, civil engineers of the railway having spent much time the past two onths in the city, about the present station grounds and freight yards, which have been used by the railway for more than forty years.

FRUIT OUTLOOK IS PROMISING

Severe Winter Leaves Southeast Nebraska Trees Unharmed.

(Special to The Star.)

STELLA, Neb., April 6.—Southeastern Nebraska has the promise of a full fruit crop, with no demerits or handicaps at the present time. All fruits passed through the severe winter without damage from the weather, and the ost delicate of them all, the apricot, is now a gloriously blooming tree, with a full percentage of blossoms.

Home grown apricots as a crop in this locality belong to the modern age, and during the last few years some families in southeastern Nebraska have had a few extra bushels to sell. Here and there an aged apricot tree is seen, but most of them are of mediu size, ome of the younger trees are seedlings.

At Brownville, the heart of diversified fruit culture in Nebraska, everything at the presene time is centered on the spring culture of the fruit, and the town and surrounding country present the appearance of a well kept garden.

"Jason" Believed Largest Cat

JASON LYING ON A 36-INCH TABLE COVER.

(Special to The Star.)

PIERCE, Neb., April 6—Perhaps the largest cat in the United States is Jason, an 8-year-old common house cat. Jason stands 16 inches high and weighs 20 pounds. His length, measured from tip to tail to fore head, is more than 36 inches.

In mythology it is "Jason of the Golden Fleece," or "Jason the Red." In tatology it is "Only Jason." Jason is owned by Mr. and Mrs. T. G. Hall, Pierce, and has made his home in this city since he was three years old. Most of his life thus far in Pierce has been spent in the Hall variety store, where he is the object of much attention and comment.

Lately Jason became very much bored with so much attention and was taken to the Hall home. There he is becoming too fat and lazy to take an active interest in the things going on around him, even leaving unmolested his worst enemies, the dogs. While staying at the store Jason cleaned up on nearly every dog in town, at least he was respected by all dogs in the city and all kept their distance when Jason was sighted.

When it comes to intelligence, Jason has it over most cats. His intelligence is almost human. He seems to understand when spoken to and likes to have people talk to him. He sits up on his hind legs for all his food. Every morning he has his bowl of shredded wheat and milk, then retires to a large rocker besides a radiator and spends the day napping. He seems to enjoy listening in on the radio, for whenever it is turned on he makes himself comfortable in a large chair beside it.

Jason's maternal grandmother was a full blooded yellow Persian cat, his mother a beautiful tiger colored cat, and his father a thoroughbred Angora. Jason himself resembles a Persian cat. He is a golden yellow with tiger markings, has a rather large and bushy tail with a white tip, and is quite a snob.

He was born in Lincoln and spent the first three years of his life in that city.

TEACH METHODS OF ENFORCEMENT

Central Idea is Value of Education for Chief Weapon.

WASHINGTON, April 6—(I. N. S.)—The high-powered executives of the nation's leading dry organizations are attempting to evolve new and more scientific methods of carrying on a campaign of education for support of the eighteenth amendment.

The old-fashioned ideas of painting the saloon as the chief instrument of the devil and of displaying flaming posters showing ragged children being beaten by a rum-soaked father have been tossed into the waste-basket.

Instead, there has emerged a new scheme of displaying prohibition as a necessity in an age of machinery when the average man must attain a high point of efficiency or take a place in the rear ranks of the world's procession.

Cherrington Father.

Ernest H. Cherrington, general secretary of the department of education of the Anti-Saloon League of America, is regarded as the father of the new idea.

The characterization by Herbert Hoover of prohibition as "a noble experiment" has been accepted, although some strong prohibitions still complain of this statement and declare that prohibition is a permanent accomplishment far beyond the experimental stage.

"The imperative need for a new type of education work in harmony with the intellectual process of the present age is evident," said Cherrington in a review of the accomplishments of his department.

"Arguments that made their appeal a generation ago need to be rephrased to meet the conditions of a changing era. Much of the data upon which the older prohibition propoganda was based is antiquated.

Many Problems.

"The increasing mechanization of industry, the steadily decreasing safety margin on our highways crowded with automobiles, the pyramid structure of installment buying which rests upon the integrity and earning capacity of the abstinent worker, the extension of mass production in industry, where a single drinker may throw a whole factory out of step, the maintenance of the enormous reservoirs of liquid capital made available for modern finance by the steady accumulation of savings banks deposits by a sober people, with scores of other significant economic factors, must be fully considered in connection with any proposed solution of the alcohol problem."

Referring to prohibition as an experiment he said:

"We are working out in the United States experiments whose significance is, or will be, worldwide. For the first time in history a great nation has attempted a social policy so far-reaching as the complete prohibition of beverage alcohol. If this policy is sound, as we believe it to be, we must insure its success in the United States not alone for the sake of the United States but because of the world-wide possibilities involved."

OLDSMOBILE IS WELL RECEIVED

1929 Models Continue to Draw Approval of Motorists.

The 1929 Oldsmobiles continue all of the qualities which placed Oldsmobile in an enviable position last year and to which have been added desirable refinements.

During 1928, Oldsmobile made one of the largest gains registered in the industry increasing production and sales approximately 64 per cent over 1927, which had been its best previous year. From the start of the spring business throughout the entire year it exceeded previous high records month after month.

The success of Oldsmobile was a direct tribute to the astuteness of the leading automobile critics. When the car was first displayed at the New York Automobile show, automobile editors of the important newspapers and trade magazines hailed it as a distinct achievement. Several critics proclaimed it "the car two years ahead." Others declared it established a new style. Technical experts praised its engineering qualities.

The opinions of these critics were reflected by the public demand. Month after month production was maintained at the highest peak compatible with the rigid manufacturing and inspection policies of the Oldsmobile. Nevertheless supply failed to keep pace with demand. A huge building program was put through to meet the increased demands.

Production of the 1929 Oldsmobile started in mid-December and is following a manufacturing schedule calculated to keep every one of the 2,500 Oldsmobile dealers in this country supplied with cars throughout the year. The schedule is far larger than ever before in the company's history and it is believed that new high records will again be made during 1929.

The Oldsmobile which was so successful in 1928 has been retained in all fundamental lines and engineering specifications with the addition of many desirable improvements. Those made in the engine have resulted in the development of 62 horse power and even finer car performance.

Greater beauty has been wrought by several interior and exterior refinements. An even finer grade of mohair upholstery enhances the interior of the closed cars, while new adjustable front seats provide additional driver comfort. External refinement consist of new color combinations, fully extended radiator shutters, a new type of cadet visor, larger head lamps with chromium plated supports and the addition of an Oldsmobile crest on the radiator. The name plate has been placed on a chromium plated bar connecting the head lamps.

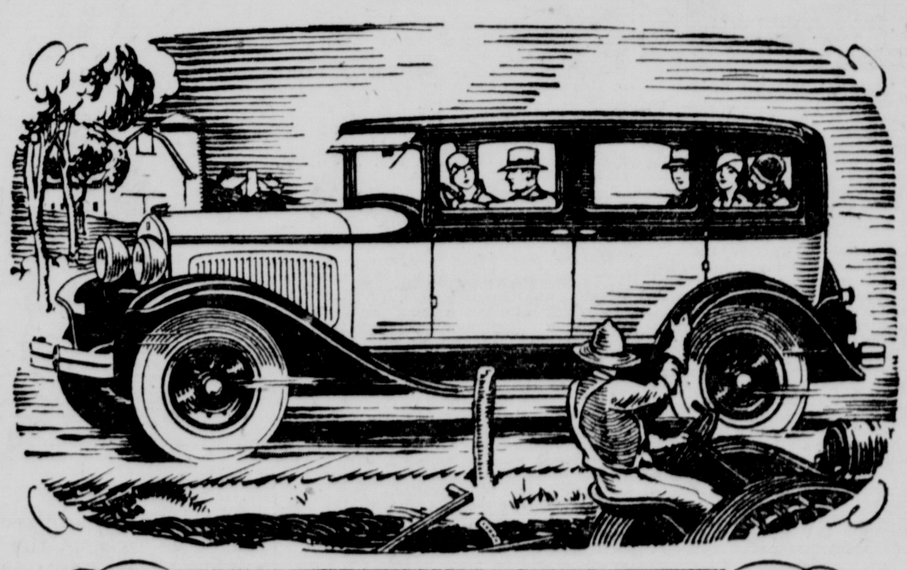
Quality is the Keynote of what People Say about Plymouth

PLYMOUTH
AMERICA'S LOWEST-PRICED FULL-SIZE CAR

FULL SIZE



THE SMART FULL-SIZE FOUR-DOOR SEDAN, $695

When people discuss Plymouth, quality is the keynote of their conversation.

They say most complimentary things about its Chrysler smartness, its charm, its slender-profile radiator, its graceful "air-wing" fenders, its arched windows, its chromium-plate bowl-type lamps.

They comment highly on Plymouth's full-size dimensions, its richness and spaciousness, its wide, deep seats, its exceptional leg-room.

Plymouth—product of Chrysler engineering and craftsmanship—has been so named because its endurance and strength, ruggedness and freedom from limitations so accurately typify that Pilgrim band who were among the first American Colonists.

They refer glowingly to the powerful performance of Plymouth's 45 h. p. engine, of Chrysler "Silver-Dome" principle—its speed, its pick-up, its ability on hills, its smoothness, its quietness.

They speak of Plymouth's safety—of its full-size Chrysler weatherproof internal expanding 4-wheel hydraulic brakes, its rugged full-size chassis, springs and axles. They praise Plymouth's amazing economy in fuel, oil and upkeep.

After all, it is only natural that people should talk more about Plymouth's fine qualities than they do about its low price—for the Chrysler-built Plymouth is, first and last, a motor car of intrinsic quality and value.

OAKLAND PLANS NEW GUARANTY

Reconditioned Used Cars Will Carry Written Protection.

Part of National Good Will Program of Company.

PONTIAC, Mich., April 6—Another progressive step recently taken by a prominent automobile manufacturer toward better business methods in the merchandising of used cars, came to light here today when the Oakland Motor Car Co. announced adoption of a national policy under which all Oakland-Pontiac dealers will be asked to furnish a written guaranty with all reconditioned used cars.

Under terms of the guaranty, parts are furnished free to replace any found defective during the first 750 miles of driving, provided the mileage is run up within thirty days after the sale. The car also may be returned within forty-eight hours after the purchase if it proves unsatisfactory and the fullpurchase price applied to any other car, new or used, of equal or greater value in the dealer's stocks.

A written guaranty printed on lithographed bond paper is issued by the dealer to the purchaser at the time of the sale, while all cars carrying the guaranty also have a windshield sticker on which is printed, "Reconditioned guaranteed Good Will Used Car."

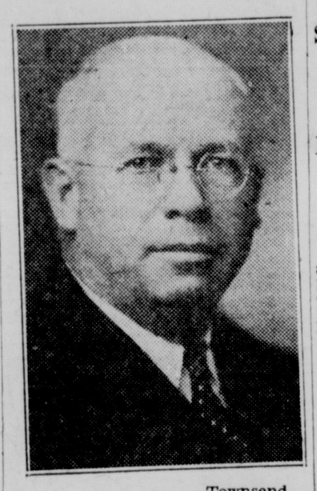
The object of the new plan, according to M. L. Buck, manager of the used car department, is to provide the purchaser with concrete evidence of the good faith of the dealer who makes the sale.

"Many of our reconditioned used cars are priced within the range of the cheapest new car," Mr. Buck stated. "If the money were invested in the small new car the purchaser would receive a standard warranty with it. In making a similar purchase of a good used car, he is entitled to a like measure of protection.

"We know that our dealers' reconditioned used cars are capable of performance comparable to a small new car. Consequently we aim to give the purchaser full assurance of our faith in the car by backing up our claims in writing."

The used car guaranty applies only to those cars which have been thoroughly reconditioned and refinished under the Good Will plan—a policy inaugurated some years ago by Oakland to lend individuality to the quality used cars handled by the Oakland dealer organization. The familiar figure of "Good Will Oakland," with hte slouch hat and the inevitable stogie, is well known throughout the country through his association with the used car business of this company's dealers.

Waddle Talks To Goodyear Dealers



—Townsend.

G. A. WADDLE.

One hundred and twenty-eight Goodyear dealers and salesmen of southeast Nebraska heard Mr. Waddle, assistant general sales manager of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co., of Akron, O., speak on "Going Ahead with Goodyear," following a banquet Friday night at the Cornhusker hotel.

Turning from a discussion of modern rubber manufacturing methods, Mr. Waddle told of the progress being made by Goodyear in the field f aeronautics. The Goodyear company has supplied the government as well as private individuals, with blimps and semi-rigid airships for a number of years past, said Mr. Waddle, and at present a huge airship dock, 1,200 feet long, 325 feet wide and 200 feet high is under construction in conjunction with the plant at Akron. There is not an obstruction in the entire dock, which is so lareg that fourteen football games could be played on it simultaneously, according to one statistician's estimate.

Mr. Waddle closed his talk with a six-reel motion picture showing the latest methods of tire manufacturing and the improvements being put into the new Goodyear products.

GRAHAM - PAIGE PRODUCTION HIGH

Deliveries for March are Nearly Double Same Period in 1928.

Graham-Paige, with its new line of 1929 models, continues to surpass production records, to meet the demand for the improved cars on five different chassis.

March production of 9,610 cars brought the total for the first quarter of 1929 to 25,284, nearly double the figures for the same period last year, when 13,125 cars were built.

The success of the Graham-Paige has not been confined to the United States, the demand in foreign countries having grown so rapidly that export shipments for the first quarter totaled 3,554, exceeding the total for the first seven months of last year. Export overseas shipments in March alone were 1,330. Canada took 666 cars, which is a new peak figure for Graham-Paige business in that country.

The factory's records of retail sales, for both United States and the rest of the world, show 15,407 deliveries for the first three months of this year, as compared with 6,309 sales in the same period last year.

The new foreign distributors have recently extended the export field for Graham-Paige to Manila, Porto Rico, Caracas, Venezuela and Bogota, Colombia.

AUTO OUTLOOK FOR 1929 GOOD

Several Factors Make Industrial Outlook Unusually Bright.

Prominent Development of Year is Widespread Use of Trucking.

Sales volume in the truck, bus and motor coach field for 1929 appears unusually bright from surveys of the market represented by the world-wide dealer organization of Dodge Brothers, according to Howard E. Sneathen, director of the company's truck sales.

Outstanding factors in supporting this outlook are:

1.—General prosperity shared alike by industrial and agricultural districts.

2.—Construction of additional thousands of miles of paved roads and street widening projects.

3.—Stabilization of foreign markets, opening larger export possibilities.

4.—Engineering and mechanical improvements of new models that represent desirable features for more economical and dependable operation.

5.—The growing demand for fleets of trucks on the part of corporations expanding its motorized delivery service because of its many advantages.

"The year 1928 represented an increase of 16 per cent in production sales volume compared to 1927," said Mr. Sneathen. "These figures alone show the remarkable growth of the industry, and indicate that just as the public is profiting by every development of the automobile ,it is likewise reaping the benefits of the increased use of the motor truck, bus and coach.

Importance Trucks Grows.

"A prominent development during the past year has been the moves of the truck manufacturer to furnish a unit that exactly meets the particular requirements of any owner. Every effort has been made to completely cover the transportation field, so owners can operate in the most economical and practical manner. In our own company, the varied truck capacities, wheel bases and body styles are designed to meet the demands of 96 per cent of all hauling requirements.

"Trucks are playing a big part in the changing diet and styles of America. On the tables of city residents are found an increasing amount of fresh fruits and vegetables. Milk drinking is increasing. Blanket distribution made possible only by the short speedy hauls of motor trucks from cities are bringing the rural districts the latest styles and fashions in wearing apparel. Even the wash tub is fading as an institution under the onslaughts of armies of laundry men riding in swift fleets of motor trucks.

"In the present compteitive markets, enterprising business firms are increasing business and lowering costs by operating efficient motorized delivery service. The utility of the commercial car, which alone determines sales, is being constantly advanced by numerous engineering improvements.

GRIDDERS TRAIN WITH PLYMOUTH

Auto Transformed Into Bucking Machine by Michigan Coach.

Players Try to Carry Car Backward With Wheels Sliding.

Rugged power, unusual strength, and stamina are essentials in both football players and good automobiles. When Coach Tad Weiman of the University of Michigan wishes to develop these qualities in his players, he turns to the automobile for the features he desires.

With the opening of the spring football training season at the University of Michigan, Coach Waiman devised a new and unique method of eliminating the winter kinks from his players. The players were met at the field with a Plymouth coupe driven by the coach and attached to the front bumper of which was a 12-foot beam. This device makes an ideal bucking machine and serves admirably in training the athletes in the fine points of line bucking.

Coach Weiman sits in the driver's seat and directs the players who put their shoulders to the beam and buck the car with all their power. The car rolls backward a few feet until Coach Weiman applies the brakes. The car comes to a sudden stop. When the players can carry the car backward with all four of the wheels sliding, they are learning something of what it means to meet a tough foe on the gridiron.

The Plymouth car used by Coach Weiman for this purpose is ideally suited for the work. The Chrysler internal expanding hydraulic four wheel brakes assure positive brake control under all weather conditions. The internal expanding principle of construction of these brakes eliminates any possibility of dirt, water, or other foreign substance entering the brake drums and causing a loss of breaking power. The sturdy front bumper built directly to the chassis acts as a barrier that will withstand any pressure that the team can exert.

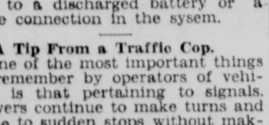
MOTORS AND THEIR CARE



Trouble in Electric Starter

If the electric starter will not crank the engine ,do not continually depress the button until the trouble is located. This condition may cause arcing at the brushes, which will burn the commutator. Starter trouble is most frequently due to a discharged battery or a loose connection in the sysem.

A Tip From a Traffic Cop.

One of the most important things to remember by operators of vehicles is that pertaining to signals. Drivers continue to make turns and come to sudden stops without making any attempt to signal those in the rear what their intentions are. Under the traffic regulations, an operator of a vehicle is suppose to give a timely signal by hand, or in some other unmistakable manner. This same ruling applies to an operator of a vehicle or a driver who is about to turn either fram a stand still or while in motion. This particularly is important when turning to the left. An operator of a vehicle, before backing, should give ample warning and avoid injury to other vehicles and pedestrians.

Inspection of Car New At Hand.

Spring is the proper time to arrange for a complete checkup of the car. The work amounts to nothing more than minor adjustments which assure the car owner not only satis factory operating effeciency but avodance of unnecessary repair bills, for sometimes a small ailment is a forerunner of hidden weakness developing which can be brought to light only by an inspection. This is why the inspection and overhauling is so necessary to keep the car in the best operating condition. Fresation in the crankcase cause formaquent use of the choke and condention of an extra amount of sludge in the lubricating system—important reasons wh ythe entire oiling system of the car should be replenished with clean and heavier oil and the oil filter checked by the service man. Carburetor adjustment should be checked; fuel lines cleaned; breaker points adjusted; ignition system examined for faulty connections, and generator charging rate set for driving in warmer temperature.

Worth Remembering.

Riding the clutch is an easy habit to get into, but a hard one to get out of. Become accustomed to slowing the car down with the use of the brake only. This save the clutch and also gives one better control of the car in wet weather.

Conserving Power of Car.

A good driver never will labor his engine needlessly. Shift into a lower speed when climbing a steep grade. Conserve the power as much as possible, and by doin gthis, there always will be reserve power to fall back on. New drivers and often more experienced ones start the car at night with all the lights turned on. It would be more tdvisable to turn on only what is necessary, namely, the dash light. There is no need to strain the battery too much.

Getting Out Of a Skid.

One of the greatest dangers of driving is bring the car out of a skid. Skids are caused by applying the brakes and clutch at the same time, through uneven roads, or by puttin gon speed on a wet surface when the rear tires are thread worn In the first case release both the clutch and brake until the wheels start pulling against the engine, thus slowing them down. In the second case the driver has to use his own judgement as to the cause of the skid and bring the car away from such a spot. It is needless to sa ythat in the lase case the only advisable thing to do is to refrain from speeding with tires in such condition. In any event a short swerve in the opposite directions of the skid will right the car.

Brakes-another All-American feature that arouses owners' enthusiasm . . .

In thick traffic . . . where quick, sure deceleration is imperative. On slippery pavements . . . where equalized action is the crying need. In hilly country . . . where ordinary brakes heat up and drag and sometimes stall the engine. Under all these conditions Oakland brakes have proved their superiority.

It is only natural that Oakland brakes should be remarkably efficient. Among the first American manufacturers to adopt four-wheel brakes, Oakland has had six years to develop them to their present perfected state. The brakes which owners of the New All-American Six endorse so enthusiastically were selected after two years of testing four distinctly different types.

Internal-expanding . . . they are fully protected. Unaffected by mud or rain or ice. As a result they maintain their high efficiency in any weather. They are always positive and smooth in action . . . always exceptionally quiet.

Their design is extremely simple . . . unusually free from "floating shafts" . . . "compensators" and the like. No equalizers are required. Braking does not interfere with steering. No lubrication is needed and a single adjustment is good for 10,000 or more miles.

In Oakland's brakes there is ample clearance between drum and shoe . . . eliminating "drag." This . . . plus the fact that minimum pressure is required for effective braking . . . means greater length of life for the bands.

Yes . . . Oakland's brakes are far from ordinary. But the same is true of everything else in the New All-American Six. Come in . . . and we will show you how much more it offers for its price.

Prices $1145 to $1375, f. o. b. Pontiac, Michigan, plus delivery charges. Spring covers and Lovejoy Hydraulic Shock Absorbers included in list prices. Bumpers and rear fender guards extra. General Motors Time Payment Plan available at minimum rate.

FIGHTS LINED UP FOR LINCOLN RING

Matthews, Garcia Slated Square Off April 15 At the Liberty.

George Manley, Big Boy From Denver, Also on Lincoln Book.

BY "CY" SHERMAN.

Legalized fist fighting in gobs and clusters — a saturnalia of knuckle-whirling under state commission supervision—looms on Lincoln's sport horizon. Harry Lavine, business agent for Harold Matthews, Lincoln's mighty mite, hopped up on the publicity counter Saturday night with the announcement that his protege has been matched for a 10-round main event encounter with Frankie Garcia, tough fellow of St. Joseph, Mo., date of their rumpus being Monday night, April 15.

Before Manager Harry's ballyhoo had ceased to echo, Promoter Billy Hale, acting for the Maccabees, broke loose with a pronunciamento to the effect that George Manley, noted Denver heavyweight, would square off against a husky opponent in a main event wrangle during the week of May 22. Both battles are to be staged at the Liberty theater, this city.

Long Hunt for Opponent.

Conclusion of arrangements by Lavine and Matchmaker Moon, acting for a local National Guard company, for the Matthews-Garcia tangle climaxed 10 days or more of a hunt for a suitable opponent for the hard-socking Lincoln midget. Garcia was one of several boxers first considered, but the deal ran into a hitch when Garcia sent word that he had been injured in training and had been advised by his physician to take a short vacation before resuming fist-slinging.

Garcia wired the information Saturday that he would be ready to shoot the works April 15 and Matchmaker Moon quickly closed the deal. Garcia will be coming in with a substantial weight advantage over the Lincoln mite. The Joetown battler will be under contract to scale at 118 pounds, whereas Matthews seldom balances the beam at more than 114 and easily could step into a ring at 112.

Garcia' Fine Record.

"We preferred to take a lighter boy than Garcia," Manager Lavine said Saturday night, "but we had been wiring for a week or more to every western fight center and were having no luck in drumming up an opponent. Harold will be spotting the St. Joseph boy five or six pounds, a margin that may make it tough for the mite.

"I have letters from a friend in St. Joseph advising me that Garcia is rated as a fine prospect in bantam circles. He had had several bouts, winning every start and never once taking the rap for a knockdown.

Mite Picks Tough One.

"Harold, as I dope it, will have to tend to his knitting while in training this week, as I figure he will be tackling the toughest boy he has ever faced.

"Harold broke into professional boxing exactly a year ago. He has had 18 bouts, winning nine with knockouts and losing one decision on a foul, although he had the edge in the milling when an accidental low blow cost him the verdict."

A card of five bouts and 30 rounds of boxing is being arranged for the April 15 carnival, with Ted Gartin, local welter, going on in the semi-windup.

Manley High-Grader.

Promoter Billy Hale's successful dicker for the services of George Manley undoubtedly will appeal to the fans who like their bites big. Not since Ace Hudkins achieved a two-round knockout in a local bout last June has fist fighting in Lincoln been able to attract a mitten-whirler of national reputation equal to that possessed by the Denver heavyweight.

During a six-year career, Manley has battled many of the top-notchers, and the record book discloses that he stands credited with a decision over Johnny Risko, the Cleveland baker boy. In two tussles with Tommy Loughran, world's champion light-heavy, Manley dropped a 10-round decision and held Tommy to a draw in the second affair. As a matter of fact, fighters of the Manley class seldom show their wares in Lincoln.

Bible Puts Husker Gridsters Through Paces In First Spring Practice Clash

"Orange" Battles "Red" In Regulation Football Combat of Four Periods; Contest Scoreless Until the Final Plunge, When Halfback Art Perry Drives Across to Register Only Touchdown of the Day; Head Coach Expresses Pleasure Over Showing By Members of Nebraska U. Squad.

BY GREGG McBRIDE.

Cornhusker football prospects, while nothing to shout about from the campus cornices, looked fairly good as Dana X. Bible, new head grid coach, sent his spring training squad through a practice game at the Memorial stadium Saturday afternoon.

Three Teams In Action.

More than three complete teams saw action during the drill, the squad being pretty well stripped of veteran material by the heavy demands made by track and baseball, now in the collegiate spotlight. It was, nevertheless, a most satisfactory exhibition from the standpoint of early fundamentals and team spirit, the whole-hearted fashion in which the boys mixed it on the gridiron indicating that spring practice in the camp of the Cornhuskers has taken on a serious aspect.

Orange Wins, 6-0.

The "orange" team grabbed a 6-0 victory at the expense of the "reds," if that statement means anything to the sport fans. Head Coach Bible had the teams pretty well scrambled throughout the afternoon, the effort being made to enlist two teams of equal strength, rather than to place on the field first and second combinations.

The near-perfect fashion in which the Cornhusker coaching staff succeeded in balancing the scales may be seen from the fact that the "orange" team scored on the last play of the game.

Perry Goes Across.

An intercepted pass gave the victors possession of the ball on the "red" four-yard line and Art Perry, former Lincoln high halfback, promptly hurried the pigskin across the final chalkmark for the only score of the afternoon.

During the Saturday skirmish the Cornhusker players concentrated their attention on the one formation and plays passed out during the first week that Head Coach Bible has had charge of the spring drill.

From Punt Formation.

The boys were working from a punt formation and double wingback, with a few passes thrown in to add to the general merriment of all concerned. The teams had been drilled in offense and defense

FROSH SMASHES VARSITY RECORD

First-Year Shot Putter Hurls the Iron Ball Over 46 Feet.

Hugh Rhea, Arlington freshman, provided the fireworks for the track program arranged by Coach Henry F. Schulte at the University of Nebraska Memorial stadium Saturday afternoon. Rhea got 46 feet 2 inches with the 16-pound shot, surpassing the varsity record in the iron ball event nearly two feet.

Varsity and frosh vied with each other to turn in sterling performances. Varsity high lights were in the 440-yard dash, 110-yard sprint and half-mile run. The frosh cut loose in the shot and half-mile.

Campbell Wins Thriller.

Captain Campbell won an exciting quarter-mile when he came up in the last 50 yards to win the event in 50 3-10 seconds. Wyatt, Currier and Mays were close on his heels. Art Easter was clocked in 10 seconds for the 100-yard dash, while Milton "Alphabet" Januelwicz won the 880-yard run in 1 minute 59 2-10 seconds.

Fullrod, former Midland college runner, also turned in a fine mark in the 880-yard event. His time was 1 minute 59 5-10 seconds.

Hokuf Wins Discus.

Bevard, varsity record-holder, won the javelin with a cast of 186 feet 1 inches. Clauss, first-year member of the squad, pulled into second with a heave of 170 feet 5 inches. Steve Hokuf, Crete freshman, hurled the discus 126 feet 1 inch for a first place.

Steffan of Norfolk, non-varsity competitor, broke the tape ahead of Lowe in the 220-yard dash, but was spotted a five-yard handicap. Lowes' time was 22 seconds. Steffan ,with a three-yard handicap, was second in the century.

Lamson, Tomson Absent.

Willis Lamson, whose sensational hurdle work scored a first at the Texas relays, was nursing a cold Saturday and did not compete. Fleming took the high barriers in 15 4-10 seconds, while Thompson won the lows in 24 5-10 seconds. Cobe Tomson, varsity broad jumper, and Claude Rowley, shot putter, also were absent from the meet.

Same Old Ballyhoo.
Muffing the Good Ones.
Biting Off Real Chunk.
Writer's Paralysis.

Mr. Tunney having killed his Spanish bull and Mr. Dempsey having officially blasted his way into Gotham fight promotion, one is compelled to confess that neither one of these late kings in the fist racket is overlooking the importance of keeping the upper lip in prime trim for blowing the ballyhoo. In other words, a lot stranger things might happen than for Gene and Jack to suddenly fare forth with an arrangement for another two-million dollar fracas.

Gene's case, however, is different. Jack frankly admits that fighting is the game he loves, and if he isn't in the thick of it as a combatant, he purposes to stay in as a promoter, whereas Gene has has million, earned with his knuckles, and his bride, Polly, has so much wealth that Croesus, in comparison, would look like a piker.

Nevertheless, we are unable to muff the fact that Gene, arch hater of publicity for the past several months, went out his way to appear in a Spanish arena, then and there plunging a sword into a bull's neck, whereupon the populace howled in high glee.

Gene's stunt, we suspect, shows him up as an interesting, resourceful spoofer. The great disciple of pugilistic uplift, who professed that his pet devotion was Shakespeare, has discarded his mask as a hater of the public's vulgar gaze, so it may not be a far step from the bull ring to the prize ring. But Polly, the heiress, may have a lot to say as to that. Fifty millions surely could be a powerful convincer.

TEXAS QUINTET TOURNEY WINNER

Athens Bests Oklahomans In National Meet By 25 to 21.

CHICAGO, April 6—(U. P.)—A great passing offense and ability to make practically all shots count for points, tonight gave a husky team from Athens, Tex., the high school basketball championship of the United States.

To win the title, the Texans defeated the strong Classen high team of Oklahoma City, 25 to 21, in the final game of the eleventh annual interscholastic tournament.

Hard fought throughout, the final game taxed the endurance of both teams. Each had played six games and both were tired when they came on the floor tonight.

Athens Finishes Strong.

The Athens team, the best fourth period quintet of the tournament, lived up to its endurance reputation and finished strong tonight.

The Texans' six victories were scored over Cleveland, Tennessee, Central high, Oklahoma City; Naugatuck, Conn.; College Grove, ..; Jackson, Mich., and Classen.

...ssen exhibited the greatest individual player ever seen here in Andy Beck. A fine leader, Beck jockeyed his team through its first five games in great fashion.

All his scorers stopped by the Athens defense tonight Beck took over the point making and scored five field goals from near the center of the court.

The bullet like pass of the Texans was responsible for much of their success. Taking advantage of its height the Athens team used a high, hard pass which baffled all opponents. The success of the pass was due to the fact that Athens scores almost all its points on short shots after the ball had been worked in under the goal.

Joes Loses To Classen.

Athens reached the finals by defeating Jackson, Mich., 27 to 13 this afternoon and Classen won the right to play tonight by defeating Joes, Colo., 29 to 23, in the semi-finals games.

Joes came back tonight to win third place by defeating Jackson, 21 to 17.

Brockton, Mass., won the consolation tournament tonight. The Brockton team defeated Morton, of Cicero, Ill., 17 to 10.

This year's tournaments drew forty entries all either state champions or runners up, from practically all sections of the country. Score:

STUDENTS SEEK BUY OFF COACH

Undergrads Willing Pay Coin to Unpopular Bagshaw.

SEATTLE, April 6—(U. P.)—The "Battle of Bagshaw" tonight had declared an armed truce, with members of the opposition and defense absent from the city over the week-end, and further encounters were not expected until Monday.

The special faculty committee, acting for Dr. Lyle M. Spencer, president of University of Washington, refused to sanction the outright purchase of the contract of Enoch W. Bagshaw as football coach of the institution, as proposed by student opponents of the coach.

Smith Troy, president of the associated student board of control said that if Bagshaw refused the direct offer of the students to take the money due him on his coaching contract that has three years to run and withdraw from the situation, he was at a loss what step to take next.

HUSKER NINE ON ROAD NEXT WEEK

Four-Game Trip to South Ushers in Ball Season At Nebraska U.

Coach Rhodes Has Green Outfit and Prospects Not Encouraging.

BY GREGG McBRIDE.

Baseball being a renewed sport in University of Nebraska athletic circles, the diamond outlook at the Cornhusker institution is very much in the dark this season as the squad rounds into condition for the opening game.

A Big Six conference rule against scheduling games with non-conference teams has forced Baseball Coach "Choppy" Rhodes to divide his squad for practice purposes and while it has not given the diamond mentor an opportunity to test his outfit with outside competition, it has convinced him that he has 18 or more hustling ball players with a generously supply of pep and enthusiasm to offset the lack of experience.

Southern Trip First.

The Nebraska schedule opens with a tough assignment for the Cornhusker nine. A southern trip, which calls for two games with the University of Oklahoma at Norman and a pair of contests with the University of Missouri at Columbia, means the Huskers will be drawn into competition against teams that have had the advantage of more favorable weather for early training. Coach Rhodes, therefore, is none too optimistic over the outlook for the opening four-game series.

Pitching Prospects.

Leading twirlers on the varsity horizon, as evidenced by early games, include Clair Sloan, Cornhusker backfield ace during football season; Ther Pickett, brother of John of early varsity fame; "Hank" Armatus, Columbus boy, who looks like the real goods. Other leading contenders inclue Pochop, a left-hander, Urban, Bittner, Salisbury, Strek, Buhrman, Gauger, Roberson and Wondra.

Catchers who have been getting the call are Snygg, Halbelsen, L. Williams and Gaston. Snygg, former Omaha athlete, perhaps is looking the best.

Rivalry At First.

Lewandowski and Swanson are blazing the trail among the candidates for first base, with Harvey Grace ready to step in should either falter. Grace, if not at the initial sack, will be found patroling the outfield, his hitting being the best of the squad during spring work. The Mascot youth, however, has been on the shelf during the past week because of illness.

"Buster" Betts and Seldon Davey are arguing out the second base position. Davey, a cagester, reported at the close of the baseball season.

Third and Short.

Keyes and Row are in the race for the third sack, with Keyes having a shade the better in the fielding. Poppe and M. Williams look like the best of the shortstop aspirants.

The outfield presents a problem, with Ullstrom, Witte, Grace and Maser probably the selections, the latter having been bothered by a lame hand the past two weeks. Other leading candidates for the garden positions include Decker, Allen, Smith and Kotab. The Nebraska baseball schedule:

Nebraska's Schedule.

April 19, 20—Missouri at Columbia.
May 3, 4—Kansas Aggies at Lincoln.
May 10, 11—Haskell Indians at Lincoln.
May 17, 18—Kansas Aggies at Manhattan.
May 20, 21—Oklahoma at Lincoln.

Injury Jinx Cuts Wide Swath In Lineups of Majors On Eve of Start

BY GEORGE KIRKSEY.

NEW YORK, April 6.—(U. P.)—Major league managers are making final preparations for the opening of the baseball season 10 days hence. Injuries and the failures of rookies to come up to expectations have caused several managers to revise their lineups. The clubs hardest hit in this respect are the Philadelphia Athletics, St. Louis Browns, Detroit Tigers, Chicago White Sox, Brooklyn Robins and Pittsburgh Pirates.

Orwoll Fails at First.

Joe Boley's "dead" arm and the failure of Ossie Orwoll at first base have brought a shakeup in the Athletics' inner works. Jimmy Foxx has moved from third to first and Sam Hale placed at third. Jimmy Dykes probably will start the season at shortstop, although young Joe Hassler's play has made a favorable impression.

Dan Howley has given up hope of developing a rookie third baseman from Ed Grimes. Leonard Dondero and Ed Roetz and has shifted Frank O'Rourke from second back to third base. Oscar Melillo will be at second base. Tom Jennins, a hard hitting outfielder from Wichita Falls, will be used as a pinch-hitter for Melillo when necessary and a rookie infielder used in Melillo's place after the latter leaves the lineup.

Schuble Flat Fizzle.

Heinie Schuble, the highly touted shortstop from Houston, has failed to impress Bucky Harris with the qualifications as a major leaguer and changes have been necessitated in the Detroit lineup. Harris probably will start the season at second himself and shift Charley Gehriger to shortstop.

Charles Cissell, the $123,000 shortstop, may start the season on the White Sox bench as a result of his disregard for training rules. Bill Hunnefield or George Redfern will replace him. Bud Clancy will be at first base in place of Art Shires, the Texas play boy, who attempted to incite mutiny against Lena Blackburne. Shires has been sent to his home at Italy, Texas, awaiting further orders.

The Brooklyn Robins are perhaps in the worst shape of any major league club. Del Bissonette at first base is the only fixture in the Robins' infield and the outfield is far from settled. It is still problematical whether Glenn Wright's arm will permit him to start the season at shortstop. Jake Flowers, second baseman, is still weak from a tonsilitis operation.

Country Boy Puts One Over On City Slickers of New York Commish

BY DAVID J. WALSH.

NEW YORK, April 6.—Having seen Chicago stage one championship fight in which either of the principals stood to make $40,000 by losing, New York will now pull one for the old album. It is putting on a bantamweight championship next Friday night in which neither of the fighters can win the title. It isn't difficult to get that way if the attendants are careless about re-lining the cell on the first of the month.

Title Fight Without Titles.

Anyhow, the fighters who will fight for a title they can't have are Kid Chocolate of Cuba and Bushy Graham, the perennial contender. Bushy being one of those lads who is always handy when somebody wants to prove something. The last time, for instance, he helped Charley Phil Rosenberg prove that he, Charley, no longer was a bantamweight and, therefore, no longer champion. On his own behalf, Bushy proved that he had the naive faith of an early Christian.

The contract they privately made for him gave him only a lot of exercise and the right to live.

Putting On the Bowser.

It resulted in the New York commission putting the bowser on everyone concerned for a period of one year, which probably accounts for the fact that the commission has declined to give titular absolution to the Chocolate-Graham winner Friday. In other words, the only championship element the occasion will lack is the piffling detail of no championship being involved.

Mr. Chocolate plans to out-fox the commission by coming in at 118 pounds, thus placing himself in a position to be elected to the title by acclamation. This is very knowing work, indeed, as the fight has been set at the championship distance of 15 rounds and only La Barba will be left for purposes of the run-around when it is over.

Where Bushy Gets In.

Where does Graham figure? As usual, he sees to figure in a manner most un-smart. They had to get the bowser off him again, as a matter of fact, before he could start to figure and Bushy seems to be a lad who needs plenty of advance warning before the figuring is scheduled to begin.

This particular bowser introduced a new figure into a plot that already was complicated beyond redemption. He was only a country boy, as they say, and he came trustingly to the great city, where villainy abounds. Naturally, the city fellers were all for plucking him for what he had. But he fooled them; he had nothing. That is, Morgan Bird of Wilkes-Barre had nothing when he came.

Umpire-Manager Kicked Away a Wonder Pitcher

Hubbell Back to Minor Loop, Only to Blossom as Phenom for Giants

NEW YORK, April 6—Every time Frank Navin of Detroit sees the name of "Hubbell" in the Giant lineup, he clutches wildly at his thinning thatch, jerks out a few more hairs, thinks of George Moriarity and thereafter emits groans of anguish and despair.

Yes, 'Tis Sad Story.

It is a sad story, mates. But, after all, what else can you expect when a club owner gathers an umpire unto himself, and tries to make a manager out of him?

Navin can blame Moriarity for the technical blunder, but the Tigers' boss himself is the real culprit. Anyway—

Navin made Moriarty manager of the 1928 Tigers. The escaped "guesser" took his cageful of Bengals to San Antonio for spring training. Included in the group was a left-handed transmitter of horsehide covering and its spherical contents.

Rode the Tigers' Bench.

Whether Moriarity knew that Hubbell was a member of the squad, or mistook him for a volunteer bat boy, is a matter of debate.

But there isn't much debate on the point that Hubbell got as much chance to display his wares in a Detroit uniform as Gilda Gray would get with hers at a D. A. R. convention.

Hubbell was on the training premises, day after day, hoping with his every emotion that Moriarity would let him strit his stuff and help him in polishing off the rough edges so that he might make the major league grade. Hubbell wanted to bring gladness to the heart of Navin, which for so long has ached for the possession of a truly great pitcher.

Never a Chance to Show.

"But I never got a chance," relates Hubbell. "The only time anybody paid any real attention to me was when the squad had to be cut. They noticed my name on the roster and chased me right along to the Beaumont, Texas, team."

Grimly determined to "show up" the Tiger crowd, which had plastered him with an "N. G." label, the port-sided Hubbell went to Beaumont and flashed such miraculous stuff that scouts galore were killed, and many distressingly wounded in the free-for-all brawl to get him.

Giants Grabbed Him.

The Giants won, took Hubbell captive, hurried him along to their Gotham tepee and, as soon as they had bedecked him in their own war paint, they turned him loose against the enemy. The left-handed kid, showing no more nervousness than if he were laboring on a grammar school lot, pitched as glittering for the Giants as he had for the lowly Beaumont club.

"If that kid had arrived a month earlier to bolster up my wobbly staff, it's likely we would have won the pennant," confided McGraw before the end of 1928.

Going Great This Year.

Down in the Giants' training camp this spring Hubbell has been performing with increased brilliance. His speed seems greater, his curves more deceptive and his control well-nigh perfect, and he has the poise and the wise head of a weather-beaten old-timer.

"He will win 25 or more games for us this year," gloat the gleeful Giants, as they see in Hubbell a mighty battering ram to use in crashing through to pennant heights. And then those Giants, loudly seconded by the experts, add the something that brings those low moans from Frank Navin:

"He's a $150,000 pitcher that the Tigers kicked aside and we got him for a song!"

JAPAN SOLDIERS PLAYING RUGBY

TOKYO, April 6—(I. N. S.)—Rugby football has been accepted by the Japanese army as a semi-official course, according to the new supplement to the military drill regulations published by the Army Department.

In military language the English pastime is referred to as "Ball Battle" with fitting changes made in the position of players. The full-back, for instance, is called the "gateway defense," the three-quarter line, the "third-line of battle," the half-back position "the second line of battle" and the forward ranks, "the first line of battle." The goal posts are termed "the gateway."

AMERICAN TEAM AWAY THIS WEEK

Premier Yankee Golfers Embark Wednesday for Ryder Cup Test.

Special Quarters Fixed Up on Mauretania to Practice Enroute.

NEW YORK, April 6—The members of America's Ryder Cup golf team, who sail from New York for England Wednesday, April 10, to defend the international trophy against the pick of Great Britain's professional linksmen, as well as to play for the British open championship, will not be lacking for practice during the Atlantic crossing. Every provision is being made to keep the ten golf argonauts in perfect physical fettle for the tests with the Britons at the end of this month and early in May.

The Ryder cup matches will be played over the Moortown course, near Leeds, April 26 and 27, and the British open classic will start May 6 at Muirfield, near Edinburgh, in Scotland. America's golf argosy embarks shortly on the Maurentania, the greyhound of the seas, and officials of the Cunard line have just announced that they have arranged to provide the American invaders with every facility to help them maintain their fine golf form on the journey across.

Practice on Upper Deck.

A portion of one of the upper decks of the giant liner will be set aside for constant use by Captain Walter Hagen and his mates. Several driving nets will be installed, as well as apparatus registering the distance on drives. Miniature putting "greens" will be available; also obstacles for chip shots.

Every section of the United States is represented in the Ryder cup lineup. hTe east, middle west, far west and the south have capable standard-bearers on the array, which consists of the following:

Personnel of Team.

Walter Hagen, captain, Detroit; Johnny Farrell, Gene Sarazen and Joe Turnesa, New York; Horton Smith, Joplin, Mo.; Ed Dudley, Los Angeles Cal.; Al Espinosa, Chicago; Leo Diegel, New Mexico; Johnny Golden, Paterson, N. J.; Al Watrouse, Detroit.

Smith and Dudley are the two new members of the squad, all the others having figured in the overwhelming victory over the British team at Worcester, Mass., in 1927. Smith is the latest scintillant in the golf firmament, and is expected to make a brilliant showing on his first visit to foreign lands. During the winter campaign, just closed, young Smith—he will celebrate his tyenty-first birthday in England, May 22—won seven major tournaments and a total of nearly $15,000 in prize money. These included the $15,000 LaGorce open event at Miami (first prize was $5,000 in cash and $1,000 in gold plate); the Florida open championship at Jacksonville and the North and South open at Pinehurst last week.

Dudley Second to Smith.

Dudley finished second to Smith in the LaGorce classic, two strokes back of the Joplin sensation, and the performances of Smith and Dudley abroad will be noted with keen interest by golf followers throughout the world.

Hagen's showing in the LaGorce tournament, in which he tied for third place, at 292 strokes for the 72 holes of medal competition, only three shots behind the victorious Smith, presages a possible "repeat" for this "lion of the links" in the British open. Recently Hagen won the international four-ball team championship with Leo Diegel from Farrell and Sarazen in a 36-hole match that was not decided until the final green, where Hagen's birdie three settled the issue.

The Grand National steeplechase was first held in England in 1839 and has been staged ever year since, though the races from 1915 to 1919 were regarded as substitute affairs.

Maj. Gen. John A. Lejeune, former commandant of the marine corps and now superintendent of Virginia Military Institute, is a strong believer in sports.

The Way Side Tee.

BY GRANTLAND RICE.

A young professional golfer from Joplin, Mo., is starting for an invasion of England and Scotland this week that should turn out one of the most interesting stories of golf. Horton Smith's trip across the Atlantic recalls a far different invasion just twenty-five years ago, when Walter J. Travis put the first dent in British golf supremacy. No two invaders were ever more different. Smith won't be twenty-one until the Ryder cup matches and the British open are over. Travis had never swung at a golf ball until he was thirty-five years old. He was past forty—around forty-one or forty-two—when he went afteh tre British Lion. Horton Smith at twenty has blazed a trail that no golfer has ever followed before for a five or six months' stretch. Horton Smith and Walter Travis, making their first invasion, were over twenty years apart in age. No one gave Travis a chance over the long, hard Sandwich links, where hard hitting is a big factor, but he was just long enough to clear all the bunkers as they continued to move the tee back near the final matches. Travis has been credited with winning this 1904 championship with a putter, but he happened to win it with wood and iron as well. You win no championships at Sandwich with a putter.

Horton Smith gets his first foreign test in the team matches at Moorland park. Dr. McKenzie, who has helped to rebuild this course, called up recently to say that it would be a fine championship test, calling for all-round skill. Smith's fame has already traveled across the big water hazard and he will be followed by greater crowds than he has ever known. There were 3,000 or 4,000 after him at La Gorce, Miami Beach, and about as many at Pinehurst. But in England and Scotland he is likely to look upon 15,000 or 20,000 making an inspection of his golfing wares. They will all want to see the golfer who has stampeded such golfers as Hagen, Armour, Farrell, Sarazen and others for month after month. And whatever happens, they will see a golfer able to meet every requirement that a great golfer needs.

This next invasion of British golf will carry more than its share of high spots. In addition to Smith's first shot at foreign conditions, Hagen, the present title holder, will make a terrific bid to bag his fourth British crown. Hagen is always a leading factor in British golf championships, where he ability to save strokes is a winning factor. Then there will be Johnny Farrell's attempt to hold and wear two crowns at the same time. Farrell is now U. S. open champion of the United States. Another feature will be Gene Sarazen's determined effort to win a British title. Sarazen failed to qualify in the wind and arin of his first trip and las spring, when he had a great chance, a buried ball in a bank guarding a stream failed to help him a lot down the stretch. As it was, he finished only a shot or two back of Hagen.

This will be one of the strongest and one of the most interesting teams the United States ever sent to Great Britain. It looks strong enough to win the Ryder cup tests against British pros, but when the British open starts ti will have to watch Mac Smith and Tommy Armour. Mac Smith has decided that it is about time a Scottish Smith supplanted the Missouri Smith. Mac went over some time ago to get thoroughly set for the effort of his life. He was playing better golf than ever when he went across with more confidence in his ability to set a fast pace and hold it. This next championship at Muirfield early in May will bring together one of the greatest fields that ever fought for a title, and it is almost sure to return a record number of thrills before some survivor leads the field.

Just how many thousands of golfers are facing the new campaign with the fear of slicing in possible estimate. But their number slicing over their heads is an im- their hearts and the shadow of is legion piled on legion. The hook may get you into more trouble than the slice, but the hook has a better feel and usually a longer run where the sliced ball has the taste of ashes and the feel of complete surrender.

Any scientist woh can take the slice out of golf would be conferring a boon to humanity, since it si something that eats into the soul of such a human army.

How can the slice be cured? This is rather a large order, since a number of things can lead to this heavy malady. It might be of more benefit to take up the main cause of slicing, for if this main cause is cured there will be much less likelihood of any minor causes developing trouble. One famous expert says that the main cause of slicing is starting the club back with the right hand in control. Another says that it is not pivoting or turning, "leaving the left shoulder behind." It so happens that these two faults work together who takes the club back with his right hand in full control is almost certain to leave his left shoulder behind, which merely means that the left shoulder doesn't pivot enough.

If the left side, left shoulder, left hip and left knee are turned sufficiently and properly toward the right on the back swing, then the right hand and arm will hardly have control of the back swing. If you watch most bad slicers you will see an almost total absence of pivoting or turning? They face to the left of the course to allow for the slice and keep their bodies almost rigid. When the left shoulder is locked or stopped during the back swing the golfer is almost certain to bring the club head across the face of the ball on the down swing. It is almost impossible under this condition to swing "from the inside out." He will be sure to swing from "the outside in." And the worse he slices the more he will lock or check that left shoulder.

The club head should be taken back on an arc slightly inside the line of flight and it should come down on an arc slightly inside the ball.

To get this effect it is necessary to let the left shoulder turn freely and comfortably toward the right on the back swing. One can do this and still slice for other reasons, but one will be much less likely to do so.

Here are just a few suggestions for those golfers who are constantly bothered, annoyed, harassed and dismayed by slicing:

1—Start with a square stance, not an open one.

2—Get the left hand more over the club shaft, with the back of the left hand showing.

3—Be sure on the body turn toward the right that the left shoulder isn't locked or checked or left behind. Let the left side turn naturally and easily, just as if you were drawing back to throw a baseball.

These three things will prove to be a big help in curing a slice.

The next step is to concentrate on hitting with the club head and not rushing body, hands and arms in too far in front of the club head.

If the hands are rushed through before the club head reaches the ball it is impossible to keep from slicing. But when one lets the body turn to the right as fully as it should turn, which is well around, it is then much harder to rush the body and hands in ahead of the swing—at least too far ahead.

The club head has a long way to travel. The body has only a short distance to move. If there is lack of body turn on the back swing, then the body is far ahead of its place on the down swing.

What part of the body should leave the pivot or body turn? It is my belief that the turn should come as one part, left heel, left knee, left hip and left shoulder all working together as far as they can. This turn can't be made in sections. It must be one well-linked turn to the right as the weight begins to leave the left foot and flow to the right. Nine golfers out of ten are afraid to pivot. They are too badly cramped, too tense, to let the left side swing around in a natural, comfortable way. But they can get the feeling of this with more practice, thinking along these lines as they swing the club.

HIGHS ON MARK IN HOME RELAYS

Free Junket to the Drake Games as Reward to Best Team.

The first event on the Nebraska interscholastic track program is scheduled to get under way April 8-20—the annual home course relay championships. Events on the relay card are the 440-yard, 880-yard, mile and two-mile relays.

The relay compet is one of a series of home course affairs arranged by Coach Henry F. Schulte, head track mentor at the University of Nebraska, the competition being calculated to boost the interest and improve the caliber of track in Nebraska high schools.

Best Teams to Des Moines.

Athletes wil compete on their home tracks and forward their results to Coach Schulte, the evening of April 20. The Nebraska mentor then will compile the results and enter the first three teams in each event in the high school section of the Drake relay carnival.

E. H. "Red" Long of the College Book Store, Lincoln, will sponsor the appearance of the best relay team in the Drake carnival to be held in Des Moines, April 26 and 27.

Numeral Awards.

Additional numeral awards to Nebraska high school athletes for proficiency in track and field sport were announced Saturday evening by the University of Nebraska athletic department as follows:

Arnold — Herman Nelson, full blue.

Culbertson — Carrol Eisenhart, Adam Brecht, half blue.

Kimball — Kenneth White, full blue.

Harvard—Clayton Schwenk, half blue; Clyde Higgins, full blue.

The opening game on Penn's baseball schedule this year is with Drexel, but seldom is the game played because of rain. This year was no exception to the rule.

By GRANTLAND RICE.

THE CHANCE FOR 9 2-5.

Bracey of Rice Institute has been timed in 9-25 seconds, with a slight wind at his back. His trainer still believes he is good for 9 2-5 over this route without a favoring wind. The same belief is held concerning Percy Williams, the Canadian Olympic champion. His trainer also is sure that Williams will do 9 2-5 for the hundred before 1929 has dipped into past history.

The main difficulty comes in adjusting split seconds to yards. A fifth of a second at this clip means nearly two yards. Measurements to be nearly true, or timing, must be made in tenths of a second. And even this is difficult work. One sprinter might beat another by a yard and yet both might run in 9 3-5, since one yard would represent less than a fifth of a second.

Some sprinter will be timed in 9 2-5 before the year is over in all probability. Whether he will meet all the conditions of timing and judging and wind is another matter.

NURMI AND THE MILE.

There was a time some years ago when Nurmi, under the best of conditions, pressed to the limit, could have run the mile around 4:06. He believed that he might even beat this mark. But there is small chance now that he will ever equal his own record again of 4:10 2-5. He has run himself out of some of his stamina or some of his speed, to judge from recent exhibitions. Nurmi has been in hard competition now at least for 10 years. The old elastic spring or the young elastic spring in one's legs doesn't last forever. He is still a great distance runner, but I doubt that any one will ever see again the great Nurmi of 1924, when he ran away with the Paris Olympics. He might have beaten 4:08 for the mile at that time, if there had been any mile to run. He had the speed and the stamina on that occasion to beat any one in the world from the mile to the marathon, inclusive.

THE TEST OF FORM.

The test of form is consistency. For example, a ball player hitting in bad form might get three or more hits any one afternoon. But he is never going to lead the league.

A golfer with serious faults might shoot a 70. On a certain day there might be a blend of faults that worked out for good result, largely by accident. Such a golfer would never have a chance for a championship. Lack of form, or lack of the right form, would soon eat into his nervous system.

Form, after all, is nothing but a mastery of the fundamentals. To many it means grace and other fancy trimmings. It is possible to look fairly awkward and still have fine form. Honus Wagner was not the most graceful ball player in the world, but his playing form was almost flawless.

Why is it that certain competitors, apparently backed up by good form, never get anywhere? Largely because they are not temperamentally fitted for competition. Their form is only flawless when there is no heavy pressure at hand. Almost any golfer can show good form at flicking the head from a dandelion or thumping a cigar butt. Hitting a ball over penalizing hazards is another problem. In the first case they are relaxed. In the second they are as full of tension as the average modern fighter is full of alibis.

It is an old story in these dispatches, probably harped on too often, but form and a certain amount of relaxation must work together. Certainly form and high tension rarely travel the same road.

"I want my football men," says Rockne, "mentally keen but physically relaxed." When you get that combination you have something to beat.

TWO HARD LUCK RECORDS.

In the matter of hard luck pitching episodes, two of the records belong to Theodore Breitenstein and King Brady, from older days. I saw Breitenstein have a no-hit game at hand, with only one man left in the ninth inning. One more man to retire and a no-hit game was on the record. This last man cracked a low line drive through the box that broke Breitenstein's ankle, laid him up for two months and practically ended his career.

Just before that King Brady pitched a no-hit game against New Orleans and was beaten, 5 to 0. The score doesn't always tell the complete story.

A recent supreme court decision was handed down 67 years after the first hearing. How old will that leave Max Schmeling before his managerial troubles are decided?

"Big Train" and Alex Greatest of Right-Handers

Statistics Show This Pair Wonder Hurlers Even In Major Record

BY FRANK G. MENKE.

NEW YORK, April 6—In all baseball history the careers of no two players so closely parallel each other as those of Walter Johnson and Grover Cleveland Alexander who, for many years, were the ranking right-handed aces in their respective leagues.

Big Train Longer On Track.

Johnson became an American leaguer in 1907 and withstood the withering blasts of big time volleying for 21 seasons; Alex started as a National leaguer in 1911, has completed 18 seasons, is embarking on his nineteenth and still has enough of zip and cunning to warrant the thought that he may tie "The Big Train's" durability record.

The gross totals of the men naturally show Johnson leading "O' Pete" in practically all grand totals departments of the pitching art, for the reason that he operated for three more years than old Grover has thus far.

The Grand Totals.

But when all those figures are reduced to a basis of annual performance, the closeness of the race is really astonishing when it is realized that it has been carried on for a generation in rival leagues and under conditions ever changing.

Here, first of all, are the grand totals.

	Johnson	Alex
Pitching years	21	18
Games worked in	802	665
Innings pitched	5,924	5,009
Games won	414	364
Games lost	276	197
Strikeouts	3,497	2,140
Bases on balls	1,405	923
Hits allowed	4,924	4,605

Per Season Averages.

Reducing it all to per-season averages, it is found that Johnson appeared in 38 games each year, either as starting or relief pitcher, while Alex figured in 37 games per year—a remarkably close duel.

Johnson's busiest years were 1914, when he labored in 51 struggles, and 1912, when he was participated in 50 games. Alex made his "iron man" showing in 1915, when he pitched 49 games, while his next best performance was 1911 with 48 games.

The Yearly Performances.

When the innings pitched during the careers of each is reduced to complete nine-inning games, it shows that Johnson slung 658 complete baseball dramas, while Alex has registered 557 full games. When that is averaged down to yearly performance, the astonishing fact is revealed that both Johnson and Alexander averaged exactly 31 full nine-inning games per season during their careers.

And just as strange is the arithmetic which shows that Johnson averaged 20 victories per year through his 21 seasons, while Alexander also was averaging 20 triumphs through all of his 18 seasons.

Strikeouts and Passes.

Johnson was Alexander's superior in the matter of strikeouts, but Alex balanced up affairs by displaying more perfect control, i. e., yielding fewer free tickets to the first station.

Here are the final figures which detail the soul-stirring, neck-and-neck race that was run through the years by the two greatest right-handers uncovered since Christy Mathewson's day and who can be rated surely as the peers of the immortal "Big Six":

Statistical Comparison.

	Johnson	Alex.
Years in baseball	21	18
Total games worked in per season	38	37
Total 9-inning games per season	31	31
Average victories per season	20	20
Average defeats per season	13	11
Strikeouts per season	167	120
Bases on balles per season	67	51
Hits allowed per season	238	260
Strikeouts per 9-inning game	5.3	3.7
Bases on balls 9-inning game	2.1	1.7
Hits per 9-inning game	7.5	8.4

Denver Gets in With Heavy Candidate

DENVER, April 6—(I. N. S.)—A new heavyweight candidate who will seek the crown vacated by Gene Tunney has been discovered in Denver—according to his manager.

Ray Melli, known to the boys around North Denver as the "Iron Man," is the heavy, and Frankie Scozza Primavera is the manager.

Melli is 19 years old; six feet tall; weighs 175 pounds, and started working out this week to attain his ambition of gold and glory in the heavyweight ranks.

RUSSIAN OFFICER SETS SKI RECORD

Red Army Soldier Reels Off 1,636 Miles In 64 Days.

MOSCOW, April 6—(I. N. S.)—A long distance Russian ski running record has been established by Gregory Koropotkin, 29-year-old officer in the Red army, who travelled from Omsk, Siberia, to Moscow, 1,636 miles, in 64 days.

Koropotkin twice narrowly escaped death, once when attacked by wolves in the Siberian forests at night, and again when he was forced to cross a half-frozen swamp in the valleys of the Ural mountains. He fought the wolves off with his revolver, shooting at the eyes that gleamed through the dark, and by sher force of human strength pulled himself out of the morass by clinging to weeds. The weather during the trip varied from 10 to 50 degrees below zero.

Arrived in Moscow, Koropotkin told reporters he made the trip for his health and that he felt fine. He lost two pounds in weight and insists that he is an inch shorter than when he started out.

Pug Demands Balm For Hurt Reputation

SAN FRANCISCO, April 6—(I. N. S.)—George F. Hogan, once known as "One Round Hogan," is "humiliated and mortified."

And so he has on file today in superior court a suit for $750,000 damages against a motion picture company and sundry "John Does" for producing the motion picture "One Round Hogan."

Hogan's complaint recites that between 1910 and 1915 he gained his "One Round Hogan" sobriquet by quick knockouts in the prize ring. In 1915, however, he "reformed," married, raised a family and wanted to forget his prize fighting career. And then came the movie bearing his now distasteful monicker as a title, and "showing pugilists stripped to the waist pummeling each other and knocking each other into unconsciousness."

All of which humiliation "ruined his health and held him to the ridicule of his friends," Hogan alleged that it will take $750,000 to soothe him.

GREAT TRACK MARK.

Tommy Conneff's record of three minutes, three and two-fifths seconds for 1,320 yards, made at Travers Island in 1895, is viewed by many experts as the greatest of all track marks.

Nebraska HORSES and HORSEMEN by "Columbus"

Again occasion seems to call for an additional reference to J. W. Lash of Auburn and his trotting stallion, Pat L., 4, 2:09¼, the first 2:10 trotter bred in this state. Careful investigation shows that Mr. Lash was the first man associated with the light harness horse industry in all the west to breed, develop and race to a record of 2:10, a trotting stallion—and, so far as we are able to learn, that holds true for all of America. In recent years, other men have accomplished as much, but not before 1896, the year Mr. Lash drove his stallion to a record of 2:09¼.

Among the rather small list of men doing what J. W. Lash did, an outstanding figure is George Ketcham of Toledo, O., who bred and raced Cresceus to a championship record of 2:02¼. That was accomplished nearly 30 years ago and since that time only two men have equaled that effort, the first one in mind being J. L. Dodge, Lexington, Ky., who bred and raced to a record of 2:02¼, trotting, the stallion Great Britton, a sire of 2:10 speed, by Peter Chenault, 2:04¾. The other is Fred Edman of Memphis, Tenn., who bred and raced to a record of 2:01¾, the trotting stallion Favonian, by J. Malcolm Forbes, 2:08.

Warren Dennis, training at David City for a number of years, came to Nebraska at the age of three, but did not start training in this state. After locating in Idaho, Mr. Dennis began his successful career as a trainer and race driver and since that time has brought out a number of very fast horses, the most noted being Hal Mahone, p., 2:01, that was raced to the record given by Marvin Childs; Oregon Hal, p., 2:04, raced by Tommy Murphy, and others.

Probably Warren Dennis drove Billy Mac, p., 2:06¼, more races than he did any other horse raced by himself, and that horse came to his stable after returning to Nebraska. He trained and raced his own trotting mare, Paralee, to a record of 2:08¼, using her for breeding purposes until her death not long since.

Warren Dennis purchased the green filly Shirley Harvester, by The Harvester, 2:01, while a yearling, developed her speed and after that filly gained a two-year-old trotting record of 2:09¾, at Omaha, in 1927, sold her at a long price to eastern parties. But Dennis did not give the filly the record named, that being accomplished by his second trainer, Clyde Bell. A list of trotters driven to records of 2:10 by Warren Dennis follows:

Little Jack	2:08¼
Paralee	2:08¼
Gold King	2:09¼

A list of pacers driven to records of 2:10 by Warren Dennis follows:

W. J. Conly of Hartington, Neb., giving the trotting gelding Harvest Heart, by The Harvester, 2:01, a win-race record of 2:10 last season over an Iowa half-mile track, has been training and racing more than 30 years and was born at Elk Point, S. D. In 1918 Conly gave David Look, 2:07½, a world's record when he won a four-heat trotting race at Sac City, Iowa, the odd heat being won by the Nebraska-owned trotting mare, Miss Rexetta, 2:07¼. At that time, the Sac City event was the fastest four-heat race over a half-mile track by trotters.

Clyde Bell, giving Shirley Harvester, by The Harvester, 2:01, a two-year-old trotting record of 2:09¾, at Omaha in 1927, started training at Council Grove, Kan. He is a brother to C. D. Bell of Omaha and C. E. Bell of Hastings, both breeders of standard trotters and pacers. He is also a nephew of Ed F. Bell, one of the successful breeders of Kansas. Although living at Hardy, Neb., several years, Clyde Bell is now located at David City.

Ray Reeves came to Nebraska from Colorado and for a number of years was second trainer to Roy Owen, during which time he demonstrated his ability to drive as good a race as any man associated with the business in this state. His best campaign was made with Liberty, p., 2:05, through the Kansas and Oklahoma circuit in 1923, when he started that pacing gelding in 10 races, winning each one and, while doing so, established a record never before approached in that state and never since equaled.

In connection with list of horses driven miles in 2:10 by Mr. Reeves, we wish to state that a seeming inconsistency may exist, as other men drove some of the horses named miles in 2:10 or better. But that is easily explained by stating that Roy Owen, Warren Dennis and Ray Reeves, all drove Verawanna miles in 2:10 or better in races and, so far as Owen and Reeves goes, the same thing is true of Liberty, Prince Mac, Gold King, Lady Fuller, Rags and Red Wing, both trainers having driven those horses.

A list of trotters driven to records of 2:10 by Ray Reeves follows:

Gold King	2:08¼

That mile by Gold King, a Nebraska-bred trotter, established a state record for trotters racing over a half-mile track in Kansas.

A list of pacers driven to records of 2:10 by Ray Reeves follows:

Strathall	2:06¾
Silver Bell	2:07¼
Rags	2:07¼
Verawanna	2:07¼
Lady Fuller	2:08¼
Liberty	2:08¼
Prince Mac	2:08¼
Flo Patch	2:09¼
Judd Maxey	2:09¼
Mary Payne	2:09¼
Red Wing	2:09¼

Charles Erickson, training at Kearney, Hastings and Lincoln at various times, brought out and raced successfully the pacing gelding Worthy Boy, 2:06¼, and later gave a record of 2:09¼ to the three-year-old pacing colt Petermere, by Chestnut Pater, 2:05, owned at the time

A. L. Clubs Again Train Guns On Yanks.

The pleasant expressions in this American league managerial gallery have no significance. They're all worried. Miller Huggins is afraid his Yankees will succumb to the law of averages and not repeat, and the other seven pilots are afraid they won't.

NEW YORK, April 6—The same old target will be in position ready for the heavy firing when the American league season opens April 16.

In other words, the Yankees apparently are the team the rest of the junior loop clubs will have to shoot at again this year.

When Miller Huggins began experimenting with the left side of his infield the remainder of the clubs had new hopes for a break. But Mark Koenig and Leo Durocher now seem to have mastered their new positions at third and short respectively, thus giving Huggins a perfect rating on another big test.

Since the only hope for the remainder of the junior loop teams is for the Yankee machine to crack, some observers also have sought to pick on the throwing arms of Second Baseman Tony Lazzeri and Pitcher Herb Pennock as weak parts. Yet both players declare their wings to be ready for duty.

The rest of the field in the American league represents a wide variety of changes over last year, with the exception of the Athletics and Browns. Connie Mack has the same squad that rallied brilliantly to crowd the Yankees in the closing days of the 1928 race, and Dan Howley plans to use his 1928 lineup unless one of a pair of rookie third basemen beat Frank O'Rourke out of the third base post.

There has been much more activity in the way of trades and purchases at Washington, Boston, Chicago, Cleveland and Detroit. Washington has a new manager in Walter Johnson, a new third baseman in Budy Myer and also has Stuffy Stewart, formerly of Birmingham at second base to replace Bucky Harris.

Cleveland has concentrated on new outfield strength, buying Porter and Averill from the minors and getting Bib Falk by trade. Detroit, with Bucky Harris at the helm, has a rookie, Dale Alexander, at first, Roy Johnson, another first-year man in the outfield, and a makeshift keystone arrangement that may finally draw Harris into service as player-manager.

The White Sox are counting on Autrey, a young catcher obtained from Cleveland in the Falk deal, for needed reserve strength behind the bat and have two recruits—Johnny Kerr and Art Shires — at second and first respectively.

Boston, which received five Washington players for Budy Myer, has these and other new men to look to for help. Bigelow, who batted well up around .400 for Birmingham in the Southern league, has been showing promise both at bat and afield and may supply that old punch that Bill Carrigan looked for in vain last year.

Walter Stewart pitched 13 innings for the Browns and Blaeholder hurled the last inning. By innings:

St. Louis— 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 1 0 0 1 0 3—5 10 2

Steers Knock Off Pirates.

DALLAS, Texas, April 6—(U.P.)—After 11 innings of fast and furious baseball, the Dallas Steers barely edged out a 6 to 5 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates here today. With a one-run lead staring them in the face at the beginning of the ninth the Pirates ran in one tally to tie the score, 2 to 2. After a scoreless tenth inning, the Pirates bunched three runs in the first half of the eleventh, only to fall down before a Steer onslaught in the last half which netted the Dallas team four runs.

Giants Maul Memphis.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., April 6—(U.P.)—The New York Giants defeated the Memphis Southern league team this afternoon, 10 to 1, giving John McGraw's team a record of 14 victories in 16 exhibition games. Larry Benton and Harry Kelly allowed but eight hits. Bill Terry hit a terrific home run over the center field fence in the ninth. By innings:

Atlanta Scares Cardinals.

ATLANTA, Ga., April 6—(U.P.)—Scoring six runs off Hal Haid in the ninth inning, the Atlanta Southern league club gave the St. Louis Cards a bad scare here today, but the National leaguers nosed out a 9 to 8 victory. Chick Hafey's second home run in two days featured the Cards' attack. He also made two other hits. By innings:

PUTS ONE OVER CITY SLICKERS

He left with contracts for three fights. He also left his best wishes.

Bushy Frequent Offender.

It all came about through Bushy earning the bowser in Pennsylvania and New York through his lack of interest in a contract to fight Steve Smith under Bird's auspices. Jess McMahon had the Chocolate-Graham fight lined up for the opening of his coliseum here Friday, but, naturally, the bowser had him licked. Ensued then a conference between McMahon, Bird and the managers of the two fighters, from which Bird emerged with Chocolate's contract to meet Smith May 7 and another from Graham, agreeing to meet Archie Bell at Bird's club June 4. In addition, he still had the Graham-Smith fight.

Fighter Pays Fine.

Meantime, the bowser was removed by Graham paying his fine, but Bird took no part of that rap. All he gave during the conference was his word. He agreed that he wouldn't throw the Graham-Smith party until after McMahon had got out from under with his fight here.

The point of all this is very simple. It merely concerns the following question:

What and Why Not?

What is this boxing racket coming to and why not? The intricate details concerning Scheling and his obligations to the Garden; McMahon and the Dempsey-Fugazy combine; and the involved terms of the Walker-Loughran and Graham-Rosenberg fights clearly indicate one conclusion. This is that boxing no longer is walking on its heels. It has worn these down to the uppers and has gone back to knee pads.

INJURY JINX ON MAJORS' TRAIL

Pittsburgh Pirates. Earl Sheely apparently has won the first base job and George Grantham has been moved in from the outfield to play second base. Sparky Adams probably will start the season at shortstop, but if Traynor is not able to play, Adams will move to third and Dick Bartel take over shortstop.

Gap in Giants' Infield.

John J. McGraw is dissatisfied with the second base situation on the New York Giants and Melvin Ott, the kid outfielder with the trenchant bat, may be moved into the keystone sack, replacing Andy Reese.

Miller Huggins has definitely decided to start Leo Durocher at shortstop in place of Lyn Lary in the New York Yanks' lineup. Norman McMillan may start the season at third base for the Chicago Cubs in place of Clyde Beck. All other positions in the Cubs' lineup are filled by stars.

The injury to Tommy Thevenow has crippled the Philadelphia Phillies severely. Joe O'Rourke or Terry Lyons probably will be shoved into the breach at shortstop.

FAIRMONT AHEAD TRIANGULAR MEET

FAIRMONT, Neb., April 6—Fairmont high won the triangular track meet with McCool Junction and Exetear held here yesterday. Fairmont scored 53 points, McCool tallied 41 points and Exeter counted 32 points.

White of Fairmont won both hurdle events. The Fairmont half-mile relay team of Breeden, Moul, Brown and Woods won easily. Fairmont will compete att he Hastings relays next Saturday.

Golf Wizard Plays In Foursome Today

NEW YORK, April 6—(U. P.)—Horton Smith, the youthful Joplin, Mo., golfer, who has won seven major tournaments the past winter, will make his Metropolitan debut tomorrow when he pairs with Leo Diegel, P. G. A. champion, in a foursome against Johnny Farrell, national open title-holder, and Gene Sarazen at the Cherry Valley golf club, Garden City, L. I. The match will be over 18 holes.

Brass Tacks

waukee Brewers must have been a sad disappointment to the husky hurler from Dwight, but the young man in question has no real cause to repine. Managerial mistakes in baseball have been many and Manager Jack Lelivelt of Milwaukee, who high-hatted the Dwight boy at the Little Rock camp, eventually may be kicking himself all over the Brewers' home park.

It is on record, we recall, that the Cincinnati club had the immortal Christy Matthewson at a spring camp, but the manager muffed his great opportunity. Christy later joined the New York Giants and, within a single season, bloomed as one of the greatest pitching stars in the annals of the game.

Of more recent date, is the case of Lefty Hubbell, rated today as one of the stellar side-wheelers of the National league. Hubbell was a Western leaguer only three seasons ago—a raw youngster who had so much zipp and stuff that he was marketed to Detroit at a round price. The Tigers farmed him to the minors the following year and when the youngster reported to Manager Moriarity last spring, the Detroit pilot gave Hubbell not so much as a pleasant look, sending him down the river to Beaumont in the Texas circuit.

A two months' campaign at Beaumont did the business for Hubbell, as a scout for the Giants appeared on the scene and bought the Tiger castoff for McGraw. Once in New York duds, Hubbell proceeded to turn in a string of brilliant victories, taking rank as one of the season's finds.

Krenk, in coming back to the Nebraska league, hasn't barred the door to subsequent promotion. Meantime, the Dwight boy would take it as sweet revenge to go up again, make good and thus show up the Milwaukee manager.

In taking the football coaching reins at Nebraska, Dana Bible has bitten off a man's-sized chunk. A count of noses of the varsity men in spring practice discloses that of the 11 regulars who started the final game of 1928 in Cornhusker moleskins, only five are in prospect for service next fall. The survivors are Broadstone, Richards and Morgan for the line and Captain Farley and Sloan for the backfield.

Bible's job, therefore, is to develop a center, two guards, one end, a quarterback and a fullback. He must fill six varsity gaps and, in addition, develop a string of subs of first-string quality. We have heard of tougher coaching tasks in football, but can recall nothing quite like it in Cornhusker history.

Losing the services of a regular ever is calculated to prompt heart pangs, but Bible confesses a special regret over the passing of Blue Howell, Nebraska's sturdy, line-ripping fullback of the past three years.

"There was boy I would like to have at Nebraska this fall or on any other team that I ever coached," Coach Bible says concerning the Omaha hardrock. "I saw the Big Six-Southwest post-season game at Dallas last December and Howell showed me the sweetest exhibition of driving football that I ever inspected in 20 years' connection with the sport."

Nebraska has had its Bender, its Chamberlain, its Rutherford and other gridiron satellites, each a specialist in his line, but the writer, after 36 years of scanning Cornhusker squads, is frank to concede that Howell ranks well up with other Nebraska dazzlers of the past.

It is true, quite regrettably, that Howell did not click at full speed in all his games, a discussion of the reasons for which may be passed as a waste of space and printer's ink. The fact remains, nevertheless, that after Blue had closed his book at Nebraska, he mingled in two post-season games—one at Frisco and the second at Dallas—and rounded out his career in a veritable blaze of glory.

One of the teams in the National Professional league is reputed to have made Blue an enticing offer and the writer, while holding no brief for pro football, inclines to the wish that the former Nebraska hardrock may stay in the game, at least another year. Drivers of the Howell tyne are much too scarce in football to see one pass without working up a profound regret.

Track sport at Nebraska and other Big Six conference schools, with its constant string of indoor meets and relay games, is being overfed on a deleterious diet. Nebraska's cinder-burners, for instance, have participated this spring in the K. C. A. C. indoor, the Big Six indoor, the Illinois indoor relays, the Texas relays and the Southern Methodist relays—with the Kansas and the Drake relays still ahead.

Candidly, this sort of thing is a patent case of over-playing the racket. Track in the Big Six conference well could afford to lay off the numerous early meets, while concentrating on a series of dual and tri-angular meets within the conference circle, thus building track interest in a region where it needs strenethening and eventually leading up to the Big Six outdoor championships and then the national championships.

Neither the Drake relays nor the Kansas relays is of material value to track at Nebraska, which likewise applies to every other Big Six camp. The same statement fits as to every other meet in which the Husker tracksters have competed this year, the only possible exception being the Valley indoor carnival, which, by the way, may be staged next spring at Omaha's spacious, new Ak-Sar-Ben den. The Big Six conference will not be doing its full duty toward sport within its own circle until it gets down to genuine business in protecting and conserving its own interests.

Several weeks ago, this department broke loose with a prediction that Foxy Jack Kearns, then in the thick of negotiating a Mickey Walker-Tommy Loughran mitten brawl in Chicago, would by some manner or means wiggle out of a return rumpus involving his man Mickey and our Lincoln prodigy, Ace Hudkins.

The Walker-Loughran affair was staged two weeks ago and Foxy Jack has $50,000 jingling in his jeans. Meantime, not one move has he made toward matching Mickey against the Ace, nor is he likely to be making such a move any time in the future.

The writer was a more than casual witness of that Walker-Hudkins joust of last June in Chicago. From a second row seat, he saw the Nebraska boy make a monkey out of Foxy Jack's meal ticket in nine of the 10 rounds and then, to his amazement, saw Mickey's mitt hoisted as victor by dint of one of the rawest decisions in the history of the racket. The writer's memory of that Chicago affair is perfectly good, and so is that Foxy Jack—so good, we believe, that Hudkins never will be able to entice Jack and his man Mickey into grabbing a fountain pen to get down on the line.

HUSKERS GO IN SPRING CLASH

against the brand of play used during the Saturday session.

Following the game, Head Coach Bible expressed satisfaction with the showing made during the first game, explaining that the play was rather ragged, as expected, but that it afforded the coaches an excellent opportunity to size up the capabilities of the squad members.

New Formation This Week.

"Next week we shall take up another formation and the game will be devoted to a laboratory drill on its use," Bible continued. The head coach indicated next week would find the squad doing some more passing, although the Saturday game was productive of more than the usual quota of aerial flips manipulated by Nebraska spring squads during the past several seasons.

Although there has been little effort on the part of the coaching staff to groom team play for the Saturday game, the contest went off in smooth fashion.

Plenty Pep In Evidence.

There was the usual epidemic of fumbling, but this was more than offset by the fire and enthusiasm exhibited by the candidates in their efforts to make good in their first game.

Outstanding players among the linemen during the Saturday play included Koster, Greenberg, McPherson, Kroger and Peterson. The backfield luminaries included Frahm, Long, Scherzinger, Marquis, Perry, Paul and Farley.

Punting Laurels to Packer.

Punting honors of the afternoon went to Berne Packer, former Lincoln high backfield star. The sorrel-thatched halfback got off several lengthy kicks which set the "red" team back in its territory during the early stages of the game. Packer was shifted to the "red" team at the start of the second half and twice got away good kicks from the end zone. The two teams lined up at the start of the game as follows:

How They Lined Up.

Reds—	Pos.	—Oranges
Hokuf	LE	Hunt
Eno	LT	Craig
Koster	LG	Gilbert
Morrison	C	Bauer
Greenberg	RG	Justice
Peterson	RT	Douglass
J. Still	RE	Prucha
Peaker	QB	Marquis
Scherzinger	LH	Packer
Paul	RH	Manley
Farley	FB	Frahm

First Period Scoreless.

The tw oteams battled through a scoreless first quarter with Scherzinger bearing the brunt of the attack which finally brought the "Reds" to the Orange 13-yard line as the quarter ended.

At the start of the second quarter the "Orange" team halted charges by Scherzinger and Farley to gain possession of the ball and promptly punt out of danger. Frahm's 25-yard run after an off-tackle play and Packer's long punt carried the play into "red" territory and the two teams were in mid-field at half-time.

The lineups were revised at the start of the second half as follows:

New Second Half Lineup.

Reds—	Pos.	—Oranges
Hunt	LE	Dempsey
Jenkins	LT	Jenson
Schlientz	LG	Gartner
Phillips	C	Rhea
Smith	RG	McPherson
Peterson	RT	Kroger
Still	RE	Nuttleman
Brenton	QB	Hornev
Packer	LH	Long
Andrews	RH	Perry
Bloch	FB	Nelson

Substitutions — Watkins, Holt, Lemkuhl, Marquis, Bauer.

Long Goes 20 Yards.

The third quarter went by without a score, the orange team having the better of the argument with Long and Perry alternating at lugging the ball.

Shortly after the fourth quarter opened, Long got loose on a 20-yard run which brought the ball to the red 14-yard line. Three line plays failed to gain and a pass to Manley was one yard short of the necessary distance.

An intercepted pass by Bauer and Perry's short jaunt then brought the score for the orange team.

NEW YORK, April 6

COTTON— Closed today at declines of 7 to 13 points. The market for spot cotton was quiet and 10 points lower, middling uplands 20.55c. May closed at 20.44c, July 19.88c; Oct. 19.86c; Oct. (new) at 19.79c; Dec. 19.85c and March 19.99c. Speculative and southern selling was in fairly heavy volume throughout the short session, but there was noted a considerable shifting of traders to the bullish side private predictions for a return of unsettled weather to the cotton belt failed to materialize.

Both the weather map and forecasts for over the week-end were favorable.

NEW YORK STOCK OPENING.

By the International News Service.

NEW YORK, April 6.

A spurt in the active steel, oil, motor and railroad stocks in the final period of today's short session of the market restored a good part of the early losses and the market was firm in all departments at the close. Speculative interest centered about a small number of the "pool pets" which have been basking in the market spotlight for the last few weeks, but prices scale on heavy profit-taking since Wednesday.

New Haven's leadership in the popular rail shares was emphasized by the 3-point advance in that stock; above 92, a gain of 10 points from the low of last week. Erie and Allegheny Corporation sold higher. United States Steel and Bethlehem led the steel shares and Standard of New York the better grade of petroleum stocks. Transactions today fell under 2,000,000 shares for the first time this year in a Saturday session.

Most of the industrial stocks which led the forward movement near the week-end dropped to lower price levels in the short session of the market today as the result of profit-taking and speculative selling. Some question about the stability of the present price status of copper metal led to the selling of copper stocks, but the volume of offerings was not large and the list recovered most of the early losses.

Excellent reports and surveys of the steel industry helped to boost prices of the steel shares a point or so beyond Friday's final quotations, Bethlehem was the outstanding attraction in this group, with heavy trading around 110⅛. United States steel held its ground against fairly heavy offerings and Vanadium moved up more than a point.

Nervousness among the rank and file of margin traders over the money market situation helped the professionals in the "drive" against certain sections of the market and it required comparatively little selling pressure to drive the high-priced favorites down a point or two. Ohio was freely offered below 99, Chrysler Motor around 94 and American Can at 124. General Motors lost 1½ at 85 and Wright Aero moved down 4 points to 248.

New Haven and Erie continued at the head of the move in the moderately priced railroad stocks, moving fractionally up the scale. The oils were again under pressure, and in some cases dipped to the lowest prices of the week. Even at these levels, however, they showed moderate gains over last Saturday's closing prices.

Pools in a few of the newcomers to the active list, like Royal Baking Powder, Brown Boveri, Advanca Rumely, took occasion to "dress up" their favorites in the hope of enticing a new crop of outside speculators. Thees specialties at times werera mong the most active stocks on the whole list.

Motor stocks were inactive rather than reactionary in this period. As nothing was to be gained by "demonstrations" in the motor, copper and steel favorites, the pools withdrew and permitted the market to take its own course. Trading dwindled to the lowest volume of the week, the tape was abreast of the market and odd-lot sales were thickly sprinkled on the tape.

The week-end commodity markets were steady, with cotton off about 5 points and grain fractionally lower.

Industrial stocks were unsettled at the opening of the market today and most of the ecive shares sold off a point or less. Friday's final spurt failed to carry through and was therefore put down as a short covering move of the professionals on the floor of the big board.

A block of 5,000 shares of Chrysler Motor sold at 94½, down a point. General motors was unchanged at 85½; Hudson down ¼ at 86½; Nash down 1 point at 100½; Yellow truck down ⅛ at 41 and Briggs manufacturing up ¼ at 44¾.

Most of the popular industrials lost ground at the opening. American Can sold off a point at 105¼. National cash register lost a point at 129½; Radio was down ¼; Combusion was up ½ at 72 and Gold dust up ½ at 63¼.

Bethlehem led the steel stocks with a 1-point gain at 110½, United States Steel was up ¼ at 186⅞; Vanadium up a point at 97½, and Youngstown unchanged at 129¾.

The rails were generally firm, with New Haven up ¾ at 89¼; Kansas City southern up ⅛ at 87¼ and Pennsylvania unchanged at 75.

Coppers and oils were irregular, with narrow price changes. Atlantic refining moved down ⅝ to 57⅛. Pan American petroleum sold down ¼ at 50¼; Shell Union down ⅛ at 29⅛; American smelting down ⅜ at 106⅛; Andes Copper and International Nickel down ⅛ each.

Roast Pig!

CENTURIES AGO a Mongolian had the misfortune of having his home burned. Like many of his race he kept a pig as a part of his chattels. To eat? Oh, no. They kept them as sacred animals. By chance, when the fire was over this particular gentleman in searching through the ruins poked his fingers into the roasted pig and almost burned them. Childlike he cooled them in his mouth and—wonderful. They tasted good. He tried it purposely then and liked it. Thus came the discovery of roast pig.

THE MORAL WE SEEK to convey is that many of you prospective buyers of cars look with appreciation on the good rebuilt heavy cars but pass them by as too expensive to operate; too hard to handle; to much tires, etc. If you knew the real truth about their operating costs and their small repair costs, you would always buy a good guaranteed quality car instead of spending a like amount for a two or three-year car. It will pay you to look over and investigate the cars we offer you today. Every one of them represents quality in construction, appearance and comfort.

Yanks In Their Bid to Win Ryder Cup Must Discard Steel Shafts

BY LES CONKLIN.

NEW YORK, April 6—(I. N. S.)—The Florida golf season, which has just ended, provided valuable training for the members of the American Ryder cup team, who sail on April 10 to play the British team at Leeds in the international event. The professionals ran into a lot of wind in Florida and played under conditions similar to those prevailing on the gale-swept British seaside courses.

Battled Gale In Florida.

Being forced to drive into the teeth of a stiff wind on Florida links eminently suited the Ryder cup players, who realized that the practice gained thereby would stand them in good stead in the international matches. In the tournaments on the peninsula they perfected their low trajectory shots, the "wind cheaters" which are so vital to low scoring on the English courses.

Leo Diegel, P. G. A. champion and a member of the Ryder cup aggregation, says that the windstorm during the national open at Olympia Fields last year ruined his chances. Diegel believes, however, that he has overcome this fault and will be able to get off screeching low hooks against the Englishmen.

Strive for Efficient Hook.

The golfer who seeks an efficient hook is confronted with the same problem as the young baseball pitcher. A sweeping curve, like the round-house baseball delivery, is out like a match in a gale. What Ryder cup players have been trying to perfect is a drive which swerves slightly just before striking the fairway, similar to the outcurve which does not break until it reaches the plate.

Another change to which the members of the Ryder cup team must become accustomed is the matter of wooden-shafted clubs. British golfing regulations do not permit the use of steel shafts and there is the possibility that some of the American players may be thrown off their game by the switch.

Horton Bothered By Wood.

Chief fears in this regard are held in the case of Horton Smith, the brilliant youngster from Joplin, Mo., who has been grabbing all the winter prizes. Smith has favored the steel during his brief but meteoric career. He tried the wooden shafts at the Bellair tournaments in Florida, and the results were disastrous during the winter that he made a mediocre showing.

Walter Hagen and Diegel also must re-shaft their drivers, brassies and spoons with hickory and will practice with the woods along with Smith. The other members of the team—Johnny Farrell, Gene Sarazen, Ed Dudley, Johnny Golden, Joe Turnesa, Al Espinosa and Al Watrous—have been using the wooden shafts all winter.

A score of years after he had graduated from Carnegie Tech with basketball letters, E. L. Schumacker had the pleasure of seeing his son win the same honor.

DE SOTO ADEPT IN BIG TRAFFIC

Chrysler Machine Well Suited For Solving Parking Problem.

More than five million cars are parked daily in the business districts of the large centers of population in the United States, according to a nation-wide traffic analysis just completed by Detroit automotive engineers studying parking conditions throughout the country.

Observers found the De Soto six a car that best meets the serious situation and gave it a wide margin over other makes of cars viewed from a window in a high building in the motor metropolis as they checked the traffic flow in a congested area down town with stop watches. Because of the ease with which it can be parked quickly in a small space, the elapsed time with the De Sota six was considerably lss than for other cars. Officials of the company said this was due to the particular type of steering gear used by the De Soto and the exceptionally quick response of the engine to the accelerator and to the four wheel brakes.

"As much as 10 minutes was necessary to park some cars," said Henry A. Irwin, a Detroit traffic expert who was presnt. "Although this was to some extnt due to the heavy traffic, it was found that some cars did not handle readily in the stram of 2,000 automobiles clocked passing the building. At no time did the De Soto hold up other traffic whil it was being guided to the curb.

Chrysler Stresses Problm.

In this connection it is intresting to note that Walter P. Chrysler in a recent interview, declard that prior to the actual manufacture of any cars by him, he decided ease of parking would be one of their features. He was influenced, Mr. Chrysler said, by watching New York traffic from his offic window, witnessing how long lins of cars were constantly delayed for minutes on end by the efforts of drivers to park cars which wre unwieldly to handle in narrow confines at crowdd curbs.

The De Soto six embodies these features Mr. Chrysler knew would be most acceptable not only to drivers but to officials endeavoring to control motor traffic in congested areas.

Motorists seeking parking space in heavy traffic swoop down on a vacant spot at the curb, the prize falling to the driver with the car that immediatly responds to the touch of the accelerator—the car that handles easily and turns in a narrow radius.

Consequently, parking ease often is a determining factor in the acquisition of a car by the prospective owner.

Many drivers, and especially women drivers, who hav found parking difficult and physically exhausting with other cars, declare they can perform the same operation with the De Soto six much more readily.

HUDSON OFFERS COLOR VARIETY

Company is Marketing 176 Combinations in New Models.

Cars Adapted to Meet Individual's Desire For Distinction.

To give the idividual car distinction increasingly demanded by motorists and at the same time retain the cost advantages of mass production is the problem long tried by the automobile industry, and now solved by Hudson-Essex engineers, according to announcement of the Hudson Motor Car company. Continued development, to meet the expressed demand of the public, has marked the progress of the automotive industry. Its most important achievement to date has been the development of mass production of cars, at almost incredible speed, with every car manufactured to constantly more exacting specifications laid down by engineers, to insure perfect fit of very working part and consequent smoothness of operation economy and long life.

Public Wants Indiviuality.

Public demand has made important changes necessary. Today's car must meet the individual's desire for distinction. This demand has been met by the development of the wide range of colors now available in paint jobs, with body colors, stripings and wheels to harmonize in tint, and in the color and the material of upholstery fabric. Originally, individual taste could be satisfied only by the buyers of high-priced cars, who were willing not only to spend large sums of money to get a distinctive car but to wait for weeks, if necessary, to have the car slowly colored and upholstered to their order.

Individuality in motor cars used to mean extra money, plus extra length of delivery time. The manufacturers have faced and solved this problem, as they have so many others connected with the development of the industry. Because of improved systems of conveying parts in factories, they have been able to develop to a marvelous degree the synchronization of arrival of the 2,00 parts of the car at the assembly line. Modern methods of manufacturing and applying color to automobile bodies, fenders and wheels have played their part in producing the handsome, colorful cars that are the present vogue.

In the case of the Hudson Motor Car company, this method of manufacture has been carried to most remarkable lengths. iWth the present setup, the company is marketing 176 color combinations and 225 different types of cars—considering each variation, even minor, as a separate type. This is done with the same speed and resultant economy of production that ordinarily mark the manufacture of cars that are precisely alike in every particular.

Clashing of Gears.

The clashing of transmission gears is the result of hasty shifting and not givin gthe clutch the chance to throw the gears into neutral. With practice the driver soon can acquire the habit of hesitating a fraction as he shifts from one gear to another. To attain quiet changes of speeds only takes a little experimenting to become acquainted with each individual car. Once found, however, the driver will know the exact fraction to hesitate and will change gears with no more noise than a slight click.

WHIPPET SALES SMASH RECORDS

Increase of 33 Per Cent Over Previous High Marks of 1928.

New Body Design and Finger-tip Control Are Popular.

Although Whippet sales from month to month in 1928 set new high records for Willys-Overland, sale o fthese four and six-cylinder products in the first quarter of the current year show an increase of 33 per cent over the same period of 1928, John N. Willys, president, said last week at Toledo. This unusual high sales volume is attributed to the immediate wide public acceptance o fthe new cars which bring to the low price field a new standard of style and performance usually found only in the higher priced cars.

With this marked increase in Whippet sales in the first quarter over any similar period in Willys-Overland history, executives point out that the company's car building schedules for the present year, which call for a record output, is fully justified.

Finger-Tip Feature Popular.

It is pointed out that both the Whippet four and the Whippet six, in addition to setting a new style trend in body design, color combinations and fitments, also include distinctive mechanical improvements that have been important factors in the high sales volume. Both the four and the six are equipped with the new "finger-tip cnotrol," which consists of a button in the center of the steering wheel placing all the functions of starting the motor, operating the lights and sounding the horn at the finger-tips of the driver. Since these cars were first shown, this feature has attracted the widespread attention, not only of the public but the entire automobile industry as well.

With the wheelbase of both the four and six materially increased, it has been possible to design the bodies with longer and more sweeping lines and at the same time provide increased roominess in the interiors for driver and passengers.

This high production is being maintained, not alone at the Toledo plant ,but at all other Willys-Overland factories in Pontiac, Mich., Elmira, N. Y., Toronto, Ont., and at the new assembly plant which was recently opened at Los Angeles.

Nebraska Horses And Horsemen.

by E. G. Bohanon, Lincoln. We first learned of Erickson when he was shoeing horses for the late Ed Gould at Kearney, and during that time developed a fast three-year-old pacing colt that he sold for $3,500 to parties at Knoxville, Ia. He has raced at Nebraska meetings a number of years.

Fred Robare, training in Nebraska as long as any man we know of and winning races away back in 1876, drove but one horse a mile in 2:10, that one being Spill, p, 2:06½, greatest money winning pacer ever bred in this state. The year Robare had Spill in such good condition, he won 13 races with that gelding and gave him a record of 2:09¼. Robare resided at Beatrice many years, dying five years ago.

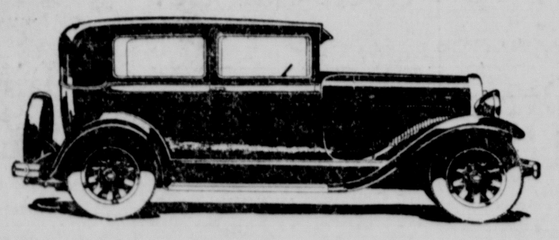
The 1929 Oldsmobile is winning even greater admiration from owners, because it is

DESIGNED TO DO ALL THINGS WELL



It is a relatively simple engineering task to design a car that emphasizes only a few qualities at the sacrifice of others. It is an engineering achievement, however, to combine all desirable qualities to an outstanding degree in a balanced whole. Yet that is exactly what Oldsmobile engineers have done in the new 1929 Oldsmobile.

You have only to drive it to realize what brilliant all-round performance it provides. Its big high-compression engine now delivers 62 horsepower. And the piston pins are pressure-lubricated, a feature formerly characteristic of high-priced automobiles.

In appearance, this finer Oldsmobile is as beautiful and as smart as any car on automobile row. Its grace of line—its perfection of detail—its harmony of color—all bespeak the artistry of Fisher craftsmanship.

The interiors are luxuriously appointed and richly upholstered . . . they are roomy and restful as well. And the new Fisher adjustable front seat, combined with Oldsmobile's adjustable steering wheel, assures a comfortable driving position.

Tallies, the menu, prizes and decorations further emphasized this idea. Japanese water flowers in crystal vases were used for centerpieces at the small tables. A two-course luncheon was served. Favors were miniature Japanese fans, with fortunes in rhym written on the reverse side. Miss Marie Donlon received high score. Mrs. Harold Smith received second.

Why Fat Returns
when folks stop starving

One may reduce by starving, but the fat returns when one stops. The reason is this: Most people who are over-fat have an under-active thyroid. That is the gland which largely controls nutrition. Until this deficiency is corrected, much food goes to fat.

Modern physicians, in treating obesity, aim at this condition. They use to correct it the chief factor used in Marmola.

Marmola prescription tablets are made by a famous medical laboratory. The formula appears in every box, also the reason for results. Users know what they are taking and why.

When science discovered this method and proved it, the main factors were embodied in Marmola. That was over 20 years ago. Since then, people who were over-fat have used millions of boxes. Users told others the results—the loss in weight, the gain in health and vigor. Thus the use has grown to enormous proportions.

That is one great reason why excess fat is nowhere near as common as it was. Slender figures are the vogue.

Beauty, health and vitality demand that excess fat be banished. To lose 20 pounds means to drop ten years. Try it in this easy, pleasant way.

No abnormal exercise or diet is required. Go get Marmola. Watch results for a little while and you will be delighted. Don't delay.

Marmola prescription tablets are sold by all druggists at $1 per box. If your druggist is out, he will get them at once from his jobber.

The present exhibition has been assembled to contribute to the general knowledge on the subject rather than to convey any adequate idea of the qualities and characteristics of the work of the artists representde.

A collection of nineteen water colors by Elizabeth Spalding of Denver are on exhibition on the third floor corridor of Morrill hall. Miss Spalding has exhibited widely in this country and abroad, and examples of her paintings are found in several of the more prominent art museums.

Axis Club Election Officers

Delegates to Convention Chosen and Professor Pool Speaks.

Axis club held its regular meeting at the Y. W. C. A. Tuesday night. This being election night, the meeting was a closed one. Prof. Pool of the University of Nebraska gave an illustrated talk on our national parks. There are twenty or more national parks. Professor Pool took Axis members on an imaginary vacation through several of the western parks. Many of the pictures were from Rocky Mountain national park in Colorado, which has more high mountains than there are in Switzerland.

Thousands of tourists go to Switzerland each year to view its scenery, and many of them do not know that Colorado is just as picturesque. Professor Pool conducts a class of tourists very often, saving that sometimes the mountain climbing is done on foot and sometimes on hand and foot. He said that Uncle Sam never tires of talking of the glories of his parks where beautiful lakes nestle among the snows of the mountains, and nature's colors have no rivals. Here and there are built cabins so that tourists may rest or stay over night. He showed many pictures of wild life in the mountains, telling of the beds of beautiful flowers growing out of the snow, and of the birds found among the highest peaks, one of which changes its feathers from a dull brown in the warm season where it nests among the shrubs, to pure white when the winter snow surrounds it.

One of the most beautiful and most interesting pictures was of Mt. Ranier which covers 160 square miles. Prof. and Mrs. Pool spent six weeks in the mountains the past summer when many of the pictures were taken, including their own party.

Officers, Delegates Elected.

After the program the election returns were reported as follows: President, Dr. Margaret Hammond; vice-president, Fay Sherwin; recording secretary, Lillie Peterson; corresponding secretary, Margaret

we start a special 7-day demonstration

of the new Frigidaire

Cold Control

FROM April 9th to April 16th we're giving one of the most interesting exhibitions ever held in our showrooms. We are demonstrating the new Frigidaire "Cold Control." We are showing how it speeds the freezing of ice cubes, salads and desserts—how it gives you a wide variety of Frigidaire-frozen delicacies that could never be made before.

Taste one of these new desserts

The development of the "Cold Control" has made it possible to add dozens of delightfully different recipes to the Frigidaire Recipe Book. And during the entire week of the demonstration we will serve in our display room delicious frozen delicacies made from these recipes.

Helpful hints from domestic science experts

As a special feature of our demonstration we have arranged to give our guests a valuable book on refrigeration written by Dr. P. K. Bates. This bookshows you how to make the best use of the storage space in your refrigerator. It tells you which sections of your refrigerator to use for different foods. It tells you how to keep foods fresher—longer. Be sure to ask for your copy of this free book.

SPECIAL OFFER
for seven days only

We are prepared to make a special offer to all who buy Frigidaire during our 7-day demonstration. Let us tell you about this offer. Let us give you the surprisingly low prices. Let us tell you about the General Motors liberal payment plan. Come in tomorrow or at your first opportunity. We will be open evenings until ten o'clock all this week.

Don't fail to see the most sensational electric refrigerator ever announced

Another feature of our 7-day demonstration will be the new D-4 Frigidaire—a Frigidaire that can be placed in your home at the lowest price in Frigidaire history. And yet, despite its remarkably low price, it has all of the essential features that have made Frigidaire the world's most popular electric refrigerator.

See this new Frigidaire. Compare it with any other electric refrigerator. You will agree that the D-4 sets a new standard of value. Don't miss this special demonstration.

Charles Porter, a Pioneer Resident of Ponca, Reviews Changes Last Half Century

By HARRY L. PETERSON.

Nearly fifty-four years of married life have been rounded out by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Porter, residents of this community for forty-nine years. They were married at Leyden, N. Y., June 1, 1880.

In looking back over a half century of change Mr. Porter declares there is a world of contrast between the old order of things and the new. For instance, when he came to Dixon county butter was worth 5 cents per pound, eggs 3 cents a dozen, flour sold for 60 cents a sack, corn was worth 10 cents per bushel, hogs 3 cents a pound, a load of hay could be bought for $1.50 and he often worked for a $1 a day.

Oxen and the grain "cradle" were still in use and fortunate the man who had a good buggy to travel in. Wearing apparel was often of the coarse home-spun variety, yet warm and serviceable. Overshoes of those days were crude and expensive and the men generally wore gunny sacks wrapped around their greased cow-hide boots. Fields of corn were "checked" by a sled marker and planted by a hand planter. Forty and fifty acres were considered large fields. The first corn planters which came shortly after were equipped with a rope checker and wooden buttons in contrast to the steel planter wires of today.

Arrived in 1880.

Mr. Porter arrived in Dixon county in June 1880 and went to work for Fay Mattison in his sawmill on the river bottom northwest of Ponca. That fall he worked for Solomon Stough in a sawmill located at Elk Point, S. D., and later for George Mattison on the Nebraska side of the Missouri river.

Having been joined by his wife Mr. Porter says they set up housekeeping in a tiny cottage near where he worked. They paid $3.50 for a set of six chairs and Mr. Porter made a table and two bedsteads to complete their furnishings.

The Missouri river bottoms was the scene of a great flood in the spring of 1881 and Mr. Porter and two men were marooned in the cottage when the flood rose in the night. They were rescued in a boat and given breakfast by S. P. Baltzly, a neighbor. Fearing the possibility of a flood Mrs. Porter remained in Ponca and so escaped the danger. That fall Porter worked in the sawmill operated by Lincoln Baltzly and helped saw thousands of feet of lumber which went to build Dixon county farm homes. The following spring he purchased a farm west of Ponca which he still owns.

Mr. Porter was born in a log house in Cattaraugus county, New York, April 27, 1854. He grew to manhood on the farm and helped his father clear the land of trees. He says he has often milked eighteen cows twice a day when he was a lad at home. His mother, like all pioneer mothers, spun the family clothes from flax and wool. Mrs. Porter was born Dec. 29, 1858 at Ithaca, N. Y., and grew to girlhood near Jamestown. Both are active for their ages and enjoy good health. They have five daughters, all married.

Value of Nebraska Research

By CHANCELLOR E. A. BURNETT.

One of the hardest tasks, and yet one of the greatest needs, of university work is to explain to the average man the practical value of research work and adequate libraries. What do men who work in laboratories really accomplish? What is the object of accumulating in libraries thousands of musty volumes and reports?

The answers to these questions are no better illustrated than in a piece of research work which the university has just completed and which is here publicly mentioned for the first time.

This was the problem:

In northwest Nebraska horses were dying from a mysterious liver disease. That was about all that was known about the matter at first. It was not any ordinary disease, but something insidious that baffled the ordinary man who tried to solve it.

The problem was presented to the university. What caused the disease? Out of the scores and scores of possible causes how would it be possible to select the right one?

It meant intensive study of the symptoms of the disease, repeated trips to northwest Nebraska, laboratory examinations of material and experiments of one sort and another by the department of animal pathology.

While this was going on, there was study into all the reports of the past to determine if there had ever been outbreaks of this kind before in any part of the world.

Briefly, the project required more than two years of careful study, but it was finally determined that it was a species of the scenecio, a wild prairie, plant that was causing the disease. In some of the isolated parts of the world, it was found, that this particular plant had caused trouble, and in Africa the disease had attacked human beings, when accidentally some of the plant became mixed with flour. But it could not be left to guesswork. It was necessary to determine by feeding experiments with scientific accuracy that this was the cause of the Nebraska trouble, and the facts now seem to be proved beyond a doubt.

Here then is a very definite and practical illustration of the need of research, experimentation, and adequate library facilities.

Summer Sports Outdoors Planned by the Y.W.C.A.

The basketball season closed April 3 with the Hectors and the Be Be's playing an exhibition game. The elimination of tip-offs in the game, introduced by Coach Sam Barry of Iowa, was the feature of the contest and a fast open passing game took the place of bunching at the center.

The Hectors won for the season with a record of five games won and none lost. They turned in a total of 106 points. The Be Be's, runners up for honors, turned in a total score of 187 points, passing the winners by 81 points. The Live Wires took third place with four games won and 93 points accumulated. Total scores and games won follow:

	Games won	lost	points
Hectors	5	0	106
Be Be's	4	1	187
Live Wires	4	1	93
Kandy Kids	2	2	76
Nebraska Buick	2	4	36
Telephone	1	3	57
Y. M. C. A. Flashes	0	4	54

The season was topped off with a picnic at Oakwood lodge, the Y. W. C. A. camp at Crete. Thirty girls attended. Baseball, hiking, nature hikes and cooking dinner over a camp fire on the bluffs overhanging the Blue river were features.

Tennis Season Opens.

The tennis season opened Monday April 1. Despite a rather damp court beginners started practicing forehand drives against the building. Much interest is aroused by tennis among the business girls due to the recent closing of the winter sport season.

More experienced tennis players are invited to become members of the club. Invation tournaments will be held Saturday afternoons. Wednesday evening is taken up with advanced players alone and special instruction given in advanced technique.

Out Door Sports.

Bicycling occupies a prominent place among the sports offered this spring. Trips for beginners and picnics for experienced riders are but a part of the program. Many different groups are interested in bicycling this spring. Matrons of the city as well as the business girls,—even the high school youngster pedals along beside her mother—all may be seen bright mornings joyfully riding along country roads.

Hiking will be sponsored in relation to groups of star gazers, weekend campers, picnickers of all kinds. Many hikes are planned to study birds, nature hikes, reducing hikes, breakfast appetizers, overnight camping hikes. Hikes Saturday morning early are planned for the business girls.

Camp craft will be offered this year due to a demand by enthusiastic campers. Biscuits on a stick, kabobs, slimbilligans, and hunters stew will be only a sample of the appetizing concoctions cooked by groups of ruddy-cheeked business girls. An all-night hike with star gazing, sleeping in the open air on beds of boughs, built by the campers, will give zest to the program at the end of the season.

Horseback Riding.

Horseback riding is a sport of keen interest among the young matrons of the city. Advanced riders are starting fancy riding, and long rides with picnic dinners are planned. Beginning riders are learning to "post" a trot and canter. They too, will attempt longer rides and picnics.

Archery is an interesting feature in the individual gymnastics classes. Tennis and archery vie for honors among the very slim and the nicely plump matrons. Archery is being introduced in all classes this week and archery tournaments will be worked out later in the season.

April Lightning Imprisoned In The Diamond

April's birthstone was likened by the ancients to imprisoned lightning, and certainly the ecstasy of April, with its sharp electric showers followed by radiant sunshine, seems to be embodied in the diamond.

According to Greek legend, the diamond owed its origin to a beautiful, pure-minded Greek youth of that name, who had helped to care for the great god Jupiter in his cradle. Unwilling to see this beloved Diamond suffer the ills and final extinction of other mortals, Juniter transformed him into pure crystallized carbon, the hardest and most brilliant substance in nature, this securing his immortality.

With this tale, the diamond became the symbol of indestructible purity, and so figured in the magic lore of succeeding ages. Even today the children of wealthy Hindu parents in India are sprinkled with diamond dust as their naming in order that they may grow up pure and virtuous.

It was a diamond in the girdle of Queen Donna Isabel II of Spain that saved her when an attempt was made upon her life. Striking the stone, the point of the assassin's dagger glanced off, leaving only a small flesh wound instead of a mortal one.

The great Napoleon also firmly believed in the good fortune attracted by diamonds, and well he might, since it was the famous "Regent" diamond of France, on which he borrowed large sums of money that made him emperor of the French. Later when the mortgage was lifted on the huge stone he had it set triumphantly in the hilt of his sword.

In addition to all its other virtues, the diamond was said to be especially beneficent to wedded love, which doubtless accounts for its important place in engagement and wedding rings. It was called the "Gem of Reconciliation" and certainly its power in this respect cannot be questioned even today.

Diamonds And Their Value

How can you tell a good diamond when you see one? This question, which puzzles many people who are planning to present diamonds in some form of jewelry to their families or to the girl or boy friend, is easily answered. The answer is: "You can't!"

At least, the average person is no more equipped to judge diamonds, with all their strange variations and idiosyncrasies, than he is to judge Vermeers or Rembrandts, which explains why so many fly-by-night jewelry auctions do such a highly profitable business in paste. Unless you have had years of experience in handling and examining precious stones, then the only sensible thing to do is to buy your diamonds from some one who has—some one whose reputation is at stake if he shows faulty judgment.

A diamond is not a standard article like a motor car or a radio, for Nature seldom, if ever, duplicates herself. Although the price of the stones in the rough is standardized by the London Diamond Syndicate, the rough stones go into the hands of cutters of varying degrees of skill, over in Amsterdam and in New York, so that there is no telling what any individual stone will be worth by the time the cutter gets through with it.

It is the cutting which brings out the diamond's color and brilliancy, which are the two most important factors in establishing its value. Without brilliancy the finest natural stone appears undesirable; in fact, an uncut diamond is by no means a thing of beauty—you would scarcely bother to pick one up if you saw it lying on the sidewalk.

Among the ordinary stones with which the average person is concerned, white and white with blue tints are the most desirable and valuable, while yellow and brown tints are the least so. The term "white," as applied by the trade, covers all these varying degrees of color. Yellows are worth only about half as much as crystals; browns are only about a third as much, and the various tints of yellow in between are scaled accordingly. Diamonds with decided blue tints are the most valuable of all the "white" stones.

Although possessing fine color, a diamond may yet lack brilliancy, which may be either a natural lack or due to poor cutting. So-called lumpy stones—that is, stones which are too deep—are worth 20 per cent less than well-proportioned, finely-cut stones, and "overspread" or shallow stones are worth from 10 to 20 per cent less than those of normal brilliancy.

Besides brilliancy and color, the question of perfection (or degrees of it) enters importantly into the valuation of a stone. A flawless diamond is one of the rarest objects on earth, so don't get your hopes aroused in that direction. Usually the finest stones have the largest flaws, which is a pet way Nature has of mixing extremes, so that a flaw more or less need not bother one, although, of course, some flaws are less desirable than others. In many cases these so-called carbon spots or fissures are imperceptible to the naked eye and do not in any way mar the brilliancy of the stone; in others they are plainly visible if you blow your breath on the stone while it is cold and hold it in a north light.

Many people in buying diamonds prefer to select their stones unmounted, choosing their own settings. This is because size and color and flaws may be more easily perceived in an unmounted stone, and special designs in settings are now in great demand by women of fashion. In buying a diamond ring or bracelet or wrist watch, there is just one way for the average person to be sure he is getting his money's worth, however—and that is to take the word of a reputable jeweler.

Prince of Wales Buys Cuff Links Set With Jewels

THE PRINCE OF WALES.

The Prince of Wales recently bought for his own use a pair of beautifud cuff links for evening wear. Each link consisted of four diamonds set in platinum with a sapphire as centerpiece cut en cabochon. During the day, the prince wears plain gold links and enameled ones when he goes riding or indulges in some other form of sport. Sometimes he wears in his hunting stock a beautiful miniature of a fox's head worked out in tiny diamonds. Not very long ago the Prince of Wales paid a great compliment to modern jewelers, whose designs he described as having reached "the zenith of perfection."

Jewelry fashions for men follow a very somber course, the only real note of distinction being the blending of precious metals into folorful patterns. Cigarette cases and holders, lighters and cuff links are usually of gold and platinum, although the latter are frequently of crystal or onyx. Pearl tie-pins are extremely fashionable and one often sees a solitaire diamond, sapphire or ruby as an ornament in the neckwear.

Modernistic Style.

That the new, or modernistic, style of decoration is due for a prolonged stay in the favor of the women of today is evidenced by the eagerness with which they have accepted the new designs in diamond and wedding rings as well as the triangular motifs displayed in the recent watch patterns.

Diamonds Owned in United States are Worth Four Billion

American girls surely have their share of the diamonds, or if they haven't—they should have. For there are in the United States over $4,000,000,000 worth of these gems, an amount in excess of the combined capitalization of the United States Steel and American Telephone & Telegraph. Few of the largest, most famed world diamonds are United States owned, however, the nation's diamond supply consisting chiefly of stones of moderate weight.

Jewel Fashions to Be Different, Say Designers in Paris

The question of future jewel fashions, when put to a number of important designers on the smart Rue de la Paix, was almost unanimously answered with the opinion that diamond jewelry will be distinctly "different" during 1929. Severe and pure lines, extreme simplicity and an entire absence of familiar forms will distinguish the new ornaments, it is said.

Paris is wearing brooches in pairs. Two identical pins, either of which would be sufficiently striking if worn separately, are placed, one where each shoulder strap would start if Chanel had not ingeniously substituted an almost invisible strip of flesh colored net, or one at the front and one at the back of a dress of which front and back cut are almost the same. Two matched brooches are likewise worn on daytime dresses, sometimes each at the corner of a square neckline, sometimes both on the left shoulder.

Note of Simplicity.

For its simplicity yet utter lack of extremeness the new wedding ring is refreshing. The plain, highly polished band of dainty platinum or white gold is relieved by two tiny rows of beading near the edges. This style particularly adapts itself to the custom of adding a diamond on each wedding anniversary, and presents a very stunning effect when paved all around with the brilliant gems.

PLANS FORMING TO TAKE CENSUS

Army of 100,000 is Expected to Start Work Next November.

Will Be Fifteenth Decennial Count of Population in U. S.

WASHINGTON, April 6—(U. P.)—Down at the United States census bureau plans for the fifteenth decennial census of the United States, which probably will begin next November, are getting under way. An army 100,000 strong is being assembled to take stock of the population, resources and activities of the country.

A population thirty times greater than that the 4,000,000 persons revealed by the first census of 1790 and twice larger than that of 1890 is anticipated by the bureau when its computations are completed next year, William M. Steuart, director, said today.

"History records no other instance in which population has increased so rapidly," Steuart said. "And there has been no other nation in which the increase in population has been accompanied by such improvement in the comfort and well being of the people."

Contrasting the 1920 census with the first one conducted in the nation's infancy, Steuart said:

"In 1790, there were in the United States only six cities having as many as 8,000 inhabitants. The population of these cities formed a little more than three per cent of the total population of the country. In 1920 there were 924 such cities and their population was nearly 44 per cent of the total.

Gain 1,400,000 Yearly.

"The population of continental United States is now increasing at the rate of about 1,400,000 persons per year, or approximately one person every 23 seconds. The total increase is made up of the annual excess of births over deaths, which amounts to 1,150,000 and the excess of immigration over the emmigration, which amounts to an additional 240,000 per year.

Taking of a census is mandatory under the constitution. The first census reported only family heads and the total of persons in the family. The record for 1790 lists the family of John Hancock. Only his name is given, but his household was recorded as including two white males over 16, three white females, and seven other persons not white, presumably negro servants.

Inclusion of individual names began in 1850. The census of 1860 lists Abraham Lincoln's family as including himself, his wife, Mary; his three sons, Robert T., Willie W., and Thomas; a servant, and a boy of 14 named Philip Dinkell.

Director Steuart and his 100,000 or more assistants must "take stock" of the United States in one month, whereas the sheriffs, who were assigned the job in 1790, were given thirteen months.

Losses in Rebellion Are Unusually Heavy

Reports of Passengers Indicate 2,000 Were Wounded and 400 Killed of Mexican Federal Force of 3,000.

LAREDO, Texas April 6—(UP)—Special train loads of wounded Mexican federal soldiers brought into Monterey and Torreon Friday afternoon and evening from the battle field near Jimenez, Chihuahua Mexico, indicate federal losses in that battle in killed and wounded were much heavier than first reported.

Passengers arriving here by train Saturday noon from Torreon stated that over six hundred federal wounded were brought to Torreon for treatment at the hospital there Friday afternoon, while another passenger reaching Laredo from Monterey stated that federal wounded were being treated in Monterey hospitals.

Reports current in Monterrey were that several hundred federals under the command of Gen. Juan Andreu Almazan were also killed in the battle with rebels before Jimenez and about 2,000 wounded.

It is estimated that of the force of 3,000 federals under Almazan, about 400 were killed, while the rebel losses were more than 600 killed.

Artificial Cotton Growing is Planned by American Group

LONDON, April 6—(U. P.)—Owing to the overwhelming volume of inquiries from America regarding artificial cotton, C. J. Hedley Thornto, chairman of the English Artificial Cotton corporation, decided today to visit the United States as the guest of a big financial group. He will be accompanied by experts and will be ready to enter into negotiations for the American growing of the plant whose fibers produce the artificial cotton, which he discovered in British Guinea.

Repairing Flood Damage.

DURANGO, Colo., April 6—(INS)—Workmen were busy today repairing damage to railroad tracks and washed out bridges in the San Juan basin, caused by flood waters and snowslides that menaced the district during the past forty-eight hours. Early spring rains resulting in rapid melting of snows, were responsible for the abnormally high water in numerous streams.

Anne's Sister Flies Back To Resume Studies

BROWNSVILLE, Tex., April 6—(U. P.)—Miss Constance Morrow, daughter of Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow and whose sister, Anne, is engaged to wed Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, left Brownsville this evening by train to resume her studies at the Milton academy, Milton, Mass.

She was accompanied by Mary F. Turner, chaperon and traveling companion, who will remain with her throughout the journey to Milton.

Miss Morrow and her companion arrived here this afternoon as passengers aboard the regular mail and passenger plane of the Mexican Aviation Co., running daily from Mexico City to Brownsville.

Miss Morrow said little today concerning her future plans and would not pose for photographers. With Miss Turner, she spent her few hours here shopping.

Police Baffled by Murder Case At Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES, Cal., April 6—(U. P.)—Forty-eight hours of intensive investigation have failed to produce a single clue to the murder of the girl whose decapitated body was found floating in the Los Angeles river Thursday night.

Authorities said tonight that the case was "the most puzzling in southern California's history," and admitted that all efforts to establish the time, place and manner of the killing, as well as the identity of the girl and her slayer, had been fruitless.

During the day, the sheriff's office asked "newspapers, radio stations and the citizens" to aid in clearing the crime and report any incidents which might have a bearing on the case.

Friends of Mrs. Hazel Glab, widow of John I. Glab, former Chicago druggist, told the sheriff's office that the body might be her's.

Officers discounted this report since Mrs. Glab appeared at headquarters last week and asked that a gun belonging to her be returned because she was going back east.

Glab was shot to death in front of his home almost year ago in what was said to be the followup of a fued that started in the beer running racket in Chicago.

DENVER WOMAN IS A MRS. KING

Mrs. Eleanora Becker Shows She Legally Married Bigamist.

DENVER, Colo., Apil 6.—(U. P.)—Mrs. Eleanora King, 35, of Denver, late today revealed that she was the legal wife of William Hamilton King, 41-year-old bigamist, who committed suicide in Chicago Friday. Two other wives in Chicago already are wrangling over which shall have charge of King's body.

Mrs. King, known in Denver as Mrs. Eleanor M. Becker, president of the Lady Eleanora Mining Co., also disclosed that she and one of the Chicago wives, Mrs. Mildred King, lived here with King last summer while the two women nursed him through an illness and broke him of the drug habit.

Mrs. Becker, member of a titled Danish family, she said, settled in Richmond, Va., in 1907. The William King family lived nearby. A school romance developed and one day William Hamilton King, then 19 years old, and his 13-year-sweetheart, Eleanora Becker, slipped away and were married. Their parents objected and they separated, she said, but there never was annulment or divorce.

Had Second Ceremony.

Mrs. Becker studied painting and music in this country and Germany, went upon the stage and dropped the name of King. She came to Colorado ten years ago studied mining and finally started her own company. In September, 1927, she went to Chicago, she said, and chanced to meet King again. He wooed her and they went through another marriage ceremony.

Learning of her husband's addiction to narcotics, she discovered he had married another woman—Mildred—in 1918. Mildred seemed to be the only one who could influence King when he was under the effects of narcotics. Mrs. Becker decided to bring King to Colorado in the hope of saving his life, but she feared she could not manage him by herself. So she brought Mildred along.

After Mrs. Becker had made a long fight to save King, paying out hundreds of dollars for doctor bills, she gave up the fight, a separation was decided on and King and Mildred went back to Chicago to live and Mrs. Becker went back to her mining business.

She said after he left Denver, King sent her long telegrams threatening to kill himself.

Dillingham is Held by Cleveland Police

Sales Manager Who Left Body of Baby in Car Says Grand Rapids Undertaker Sent Him.

CLEVELAND, O., April 6—(U. P.)—D. S. Dillingham, district sales manager of Pennsylvania for a manufacturing company, who on March 25 left the body of a week old boby in a brokendown car in a Cleveland garage, tonight was held by police here pending word from authorities in Grand Rapids, Mich.

When Dillingham was arrested tonight and taken to police headquarters for questioning he revealed that the baby's name was Nancy lee Edgar, daughter of William L. Edgar, Cransdal Road, Grand Rapids, Mich. He said that D. W. Greenhoe, a Grand Rapids undertaker, had given him the body to take to Erie, Pa. for burial. He produced a removal permit bearing the number 1664 and issued in Grand Rapids. He had no transit permit.

Dillingham revealed that the Grand Rapids undertaker gave him the old automobile in which he brought the body of the baby as far as Cleveland. The car bore Michigan license number 553,532, issued to a resident of Kalamazoo. Dillingham said the reason he did not call for the automobile sooner was that he did not know whether the undertaker would stand for such a large repair bill.

Dillingham left the car in the garage on March 25 and a day later told the man in charge that there was the body of a dead baby in the rear. He came back again on March 30, ascertained the amount of the repair bill and left, saying he would return immediately with the money.

When he did not appear in two days, the garage owner notified police. Their investigation today revealed a live canary in the same compartment in which the baby was found. The bird had lived, apparently without food, for 11 days.

Judge Cracks Down On Fresh Pugilist

ALLIANCE, Neb., April 6—Faye Clarke, 24, amateur pugilist of Hemingford, Neb., is off training temporarily, as he and three companions are serving a three months' sentence in the county jail here for beating up Edward Moyer, special prohibition agent, at Hemingford two weeks ago.

Clarke asked for permission to engage in sparring bouts in the jail corridors with Lyle and Melvin Burkett, two other prisoners. His request was denied.

"I sent you to jail for punishment and not for entertainment," declared County Judge Tash, "and the county jail is no gymnasium."

OPERA STAR ON FAREWELL TOUR

Schumann - Heink Will Appear at Coliseum May 1.

Mme. Ernestine Schumann-Heink, now making her farewell tour, will appear in Lincoln at the coliseum Wednesday night, May 1, under the auspices of the American Legion.

The great contralto's tour, which is of unprecedented proportions, will bring her back to the Metropolitan Opera company where she will sing once more the great Wagnerian opera arias which brought her world fame. She will sing this year in seventy-five of the larger cities in the United States and Canada.

At the outset of her tour Mme Schumann-Heink was accorded the remarkable honor of being greeted by the governor if New Jersey, Harry Moore, and a delegation of a dozen New Jersey mayors. Last year, her golden jubilee of song, she was lavished with honors by governors, mayors, organizations, colleges and audiences.

Made Her Debut in 1909.

Her American debut was made January 9, 1909, when she sang in the role of "Ortrud" in "Lohengrin," for the Metropolitan Opera company at Chicago. She was recalled twenty times in her sensaional debut.

Only four weeks later her eighth and only American born child was born in New York City, being christened George Washington Schumann-Heink. Five weeks later she sang for the first time in the Metropolitan Opera house and scored as senstional a debut there as she did at Chicago.

Since the New York success in 1909 Mme. Schumann-Heink has been an American institution. During the war she not only gave her sons to the American cause but also sang for the soldiers. As a result of her efforts in behalf of her country she was known as the "Mother" of the service men.

After the war she made tours in behalf of the disabled soldiers. For her present tour, which is considered significant in the history of music, Mme. Schumann-Heink has given herself a liberal rest and is fully refreshed to carry her art to what many critics believe will be its greatest heights.

LONG'S TRIAL TO START THURSDAY

Louisiana Governor is Impeached by House on Lone Charge.

BATON ROUGE, La., April 6—(I. N. S.)—The senate will not sit as a tribunal to try Gov. Huey P. Long on the impeachment charge voted against him by the house before Thursday, it was indicated tonight.

Soon after the upper house was notified by managers of the lower branch of the legislature that Governor Long had been impeached by the house, 58 to 40, the senate adjourned until noon Thursday.

The house, a scene of wild adjournment through the day, took a recess until Tuesday night at 8 o'clock. Shortly before noon today the house impeached the 36-year-old chief executive on a charge of violating the law by attempting to suppress the freedom of the press.

There are eighteen other charges against Governor Long which have not been acted upon by the house. They range from an alleged plot to murder one of the house members to a number of official irregularities.

Student Faces Charge

(Special to The Star.)

CRETE, Neb., April 6—The violin recital of Millard Taylor last Tuesday sponsored by the various civic clubs, was a success from every standpoint. Club representatives and business concerns all contributed to the success of the concert, and there was but very little expense incurred.

A meeting of the committee in charge will be held Monday night to discuss means to raise the remainder of the money. The Crete Music club has already volunteered to give a benefit tea on April 28 at the home of Mrs. Robb Douglas. The program at this tea will be given by the Doane string quartet and Miss Kathleen Carter, soprano soloist.

Sports frocks in a series freshly suggestive of youth—some in silk shirting, some in checked cottons, and some in plain linen. These combine the vertical with the horizontal effect—the skirts evenly kilted and having the pleats sewed down in vertical lines, the blouses using the stripes horizontally. Lingerie chemisettes and frills are enlivening touches. Sports skirts remain short. The frocks are often sleveless and are usually accompanied by a cardigan or a hip-length jacket. Vivid blue used for yachting costumes.

Pyjamas for varying occasions and, therefore, varied accordingly—from sturdy beach pyjamas to totally different models in diaphanous fabrics for the tea-hour. Characteristic sports pyjamas developed in light woollens—such as white flannel trousers belted around a high waistline, with contrasting jersey tops and short coats. Much brilliant colour used, notably scarlet. Tea-gowns for the informal home dinner have many original elaborations.

The daytime silhouette is expressed in movement; upward in the front, downward in the back; flat at the front and back; fairly full at the sides. Waist-lines show a tendency towards the higher natural line, often accented by a belt. Numerous boleros.

Scarfs, sometimes separate, sometimes attached to the dress or coat, are much in evidence. The kerchief scarf is seen, but the most effective form is the long, narrow scarf made by piecing together strips of flat crepe in different colours. This scarf is worn in a number of ways; it may be loosely knotted at the neckline, with one long end extending down the side front of the dress and passing underneath the belt.

Ensembles for the afternoon are composed of frocks in plain or printed crepe de Chine, tussur, or georgette, with cloth coats matching the predominant colour. Three-quarters and full-length coats have large fur collars—frequently fox dyed in costume shades. Asymmetry and incrustation are apparent in coats of all lengths. Many wraps of autumnal or winter character are shown, including fur.

For evening, printed mousselines de soie, with strass or bright bead embroidery used at the neck or outlining the armholes. Lace, georgette, tulle, and a new crepe with a satin finish are favourite materials. Colour combinations are striking and bold—such as red and green or vivid blue and yellow. Multicolored floral designs. Plaids. Some taffeta. Many boleros, both simulated and actual. Some removable little jackets, capes.

* * *

The evening silhouette is characterized by a flat bodice, moulded to below the hips; full skirt, long in the back, or trailing occasional trains or very long panels. Low back decolletages.

Fabrics—brocaded satin resembling print; bianchini satin lisia; Ducharne checked crepe marocain, often combined with plain crepe and with jersey; Rodier's tusilkasha, especially in red and blue triangle designs for scarfs; lace printed with multicoloured flowers; some lame for evening; georgette crepe printed with large varicoloured flowers outlined in gold; plaid mousseline de soie, used alone and in combination with other materials; velours afghan.

Colours—navy-blue soft blue, red, green, beige, grey; black-and-white; red, white, and blue in combination for sports; plaids in characteristic hues; much red for evening.

MINERVA'S MAIL

Take Your Troubles To Minerva

Self-Control Is Merely Intellect Mastering Elemental Impulses, Says Minerva, in Advising a Young Wife to Curb Her Jealousy—A Girl, Who Craves to Be with People, Revolts Against the Prospect of Following Her Husband to a Lonely Mining Camp Which Offers Him Prospects of Great Material Advancement.

No Time for Jealousy.

"The human intelligence is a highly complicated organism in which intellect is forever conflicting with elemental impulses."

We can all testify to the truth of that, can't we? Even the most highly civilized humans easily revert to the savage when moved by over-mastering passion. Self-control is merely our intellect mastering the elemental impulses.

Dear Minerva: Two years before I met my husband he was engaged to another girl. Since we have been married he has received several love letters from her and then a letter telling him of her engagement. My husband suggested me writing and wishing her happiness, and said if I didn't he would. Her folks are old friends of my husband's folks. In her last letter she told him she would never love another as she loved him. Shall I write her or shall I let my husband? I want to do the right thing. E. B. L.

A—Why not both write her and wish her joy? That would show a charming spirit and also that you know the correct thing to do if she doesn't.

The Other's Happiness.

"Human nature frequently bungles in love making. A cold wife is only another way of expressing a disillusioned, disappointed wife. The husbands of cold wives have only themselves to blame; they have never taken the trouble to master the art of making love.

"The authentic article love, has but one vital desire—and that is the happiness of the beloved. It is utterly selfless. It is equally prepared to go to the uttermost ends of the earth with the beloved—or to stay out of that person's life forever."

That is what a famous beauty, who had scores of lovers, said of that most talked of passion—love. Not many of us can measure up to her standards, can we? We demand possession of the loved one.

Dear Minerva: I have been married just one year and am very much in love with my husband. We have been very happy the year of our marriage. We have so much in common that we are great pals.

But now a serpent has entered our Garden of Eden. I call this serpent ambition. Maybe it might be called greed. Anyway my husband has an offer of a position that will take us to a small, primitive mining camp. The pay is over twice what he is now getting, with a chance for making quite a large additional stake if the mine turns out as expected. He is just wild to take it and will not listen to my pleas that I cannot live in such a forlorn, remote little place.

I have always lived in a city, and have lived right here for fifteen years. Our parents both live here and we have many friends. Our life is simply ideal as it is. Why should be want to change it just for more money? I haven't any pioneering blood in me. I hate camping and roughing it in general, although I like riding and all kinds of outdoor sports. I love lots of people around me and would simply wilt away from own folks.

Now he says he is going, whether I go or not. I say he does not love me if he will leave me for a job. He says I do not love him or I would be willing to go with him. There will be five other young college men and their wives in the camp, which he thinks will give me companionship enough.

Since I am utterly content to live always on his present salary rather than go to such extremes for more money, don't you think he should be content to stay here. Many men have mercenery wives who drive their husbands to great odds to earn more money. But I am not that way.

Life is so short. It seems to me we have no right to go so far from our folks. What do you say? Betty.

A—I say that your psychology is all twisted.

In the first place, it is the wife's duty and should be her pleasure, to follow her husband wherever his business ambitions carry him.

A man cannot be happy unless he is living a creative life nad carrying out his own ambitions for success in his own fashion. His desire to improve his opportunities does not spell greed. It merely means the fulfillment of his normal craving for betterment, for attaining higher ends.

To stand still, to remain in one position and one place, simply because life is pleasant and established there, means going stale and getting in a rut when there are bigger opportunities ahead.

Be a good sport and look at the problem from your husband's point of view. You want to be an inspiration and a help to him, not a drag. Go into the venture with him with enthusiasm and courage.

You will probably be amazed at the fullness of life which you will find possible in a small mining community. You will doubtless live in a place of great rugged natural beauty. Most mines are located in such spots. You will find that you will not only get nearer to nature in such a place, but nearer to human nature as well. Your neighbors and friends will mean more to you. There will be so many things you can do for others, for the children of the foreign laborers hired there, for the men who are alone and lonely. Social service work in such a community is not a harsh, hard thing, but a work of direct, warm contact.

Stay in your own snug little circle and you will become bored with your round of parties and social outlets, or become narrowly self-satisfied. Go with your husband, put your shoulder to the new enterprise, and you will grow with him and live a rich, broad life of service and happiness.

Questions In Brief.

L. O.: I think I would stop worryin about the boy, as you are both so young. Be friendly to him, as he says he will be to you, but that is all. I think you will feel better so.

Irish: Just let the boy friend have plenty of rope. Why not accept dates with other boys. Practice your dancing so you will feel sure of yourself, and have as good a time as you can, and maybe he will get tired of his freedom and come back.

Anna: By all means introduce the silly young girl to this man's wife. She will probably feel remorse or at least lose some of her confidence when she sees what a sweet, trusting little wife he has. She is, of course, just a headstrong, silly girl to think she can carry on a flirtation with a married man and get away with it. When she meets the wife she may be brought to her senses more quickly than through any opposition. For, unfortunately, opposition often just feeds the flame of an illicit affair.

Winifred: He doesn't sound like a very strong character to me. Maybe he lost his girl because his mother ruled him too much. Just be a good pal and don't let your heart run away with your good judgment. And don't write him notes, even if he does ask you to.

FOL SUNDAY MINERVA

A Back Seat.

Should the girl friend take a back seat for the boy's relatives? That is the problem of one young lady. If he has a date with her, should he break it to take his mother out or to entertain relatives? I think I'll probably get in wrong whichever way I answer, but I'll take a chance.

Dear Minerva: I am a girl twenty years old and have been going with a young man for over two years. We were going to a party the other evening but he called and said his mother had asked him to take her to visit a sick relative, that he was sorry but he had to cancel his engagement for the party. Once before I stayed home because some relatives had come to visit them and his mother wanted him to drive them around.

It is very annoying and hurts my pride when I have to ask some other boy to take me or stay home while he humors his relatives.

He is very good to me and does what I want him to do unless he has to do something for his folks. Do you think if I let him keep on favoring his people like that it would cause a good many disputes with his people after we are married? We have planned on getting married in midsummer. FAN.

A.—It depends entirely upon you, as far as the last question is concerned. If you are unselfish and thoughtful for his people, remembering that after all he belongs to them, too, you won't have any trouble. But if you insist upon having him all to yourself, regardless, you probably will have disputes. I would think that the two times he has broken dates with you for his relatives were quite within reason. The fact that he is loyal to his mother and wishes to please her only augurs well for his future thoughtfulness of you. You don't want the mother to entirely lose her boy just because you have a share in him, do you?

A Case of Pride.

Dear Minerva: I am going with a young man whose mother does not like me because people have told her untruhts about me. I love this man very much and although we are not engaged, I do not care to go with any other man and he never goes with any other girl, so I believe he likes me very much. He even says he loves me, but that he is unwilling to propose to me because of his mother's objection to me. What can I do to make his mother think better of me. I have never met her and do not feel that I want to meet a woman who is so prejudiced against me. Please advise me what to do. MARJORIE.

A—If you are in love with this man and he is love with you, certainly you have too much at stake to let your pride conquer what may mean a great happiness for you. By all means arrange some way that you may meet the young man's mother and by your association with her show her that you are not nearly as bad as you have been painted. Pride is a terrible thing at times and causes much unnecessary grief. Just put your pride in your pocket for the time being and say to yourself that you will convince this woman that she has been mistaken.

The Fruit of Gossip.

Dear Minerva: Your article on gossips recently interested me. Like the poor, we have them always with us.

Recently in our circle of friends a divorce was nearly caused through a gossip who spied on others, believed the careless evidence of her eyes and carried tales to another woman.

It was this way. She told that she saw a certain husband coming out of an office building about noon one day and getting into a taxicab with a pretty lady and a suitcase. She said she just happened to see them later getting on a train several miles from where they left the office building. How she happened to see all this, I don't know. At any rate she told the story and it found the ears of the wife of the man and she was a jealous woman. The husband refused to answer her questions and there was a family feud lasting several weeks. It lasted, in fact, until the explanation was possible for the husband to give.

Now if this woman who spied had followed this man on the train she would have found that he got off at a near-by station and that he put this woman in charge of a woman detective who was on the train for this purpose. For the man was a lawyer and was helping this woman to get evidence on her husband who was traveling on that train. He couldn't tell the wife, for his client had sworn him to secrecy.

And now the story has spread so that many people believe that the husband of the wife who boarded the train got the divorce from her, not she from him, and that it was because of the trip with the lawyer. And there are those who severely censure the lawyer's wife for continuing to live with him. When all he was doing was his professional duty. Fortunately the lawyer's wife did not let her jealousy carry her to exertme measures as many might have done. LONG SUFFERING.

All Are Pretty.

Dear Minerva: The world is so full of pretty girls, how can a man ever decide to settle down with one of them? I am twenty-six years old. I have no desire to be frivolous all my life. I have an awful reputation of being a good-for-nothing flirt. I have no ambition for such a reputation or game.

This is my trouble though. I meet a girl and think, "Aha, she is the girl I have been looking for all these years," and I give her the mad rush and think I am madly in love with her for an indetermined length of time. Some crushes last longer than others. They usually last until some time I meet some other girl who for the time seems to completely eclipse the girl I had thought perfect. And on it goes.

I am afraid to tell a girl I admire her now, for fear that she will take me seriously and I will soon find she is not as charming and beautiful as I had thought her.

It's terrible to be so fickle, but what is a man to do in a world of lovely girls. I swear I would be afraid of marry, for fear the disillusionment or displacement by another would come after the ceremony. DICK.

A—Better not marry while your fancy darts from this to that type, from this to that girl. You might find it a help to regain normalcy to let them all alone for a while and spend your time with your men friends.

I am not greatly alarmed over your condition however. You may simply be the non-marrying sort. Sure most likely, some day you will fall so had for a girl that no other girl could possibly pick up the pieces.

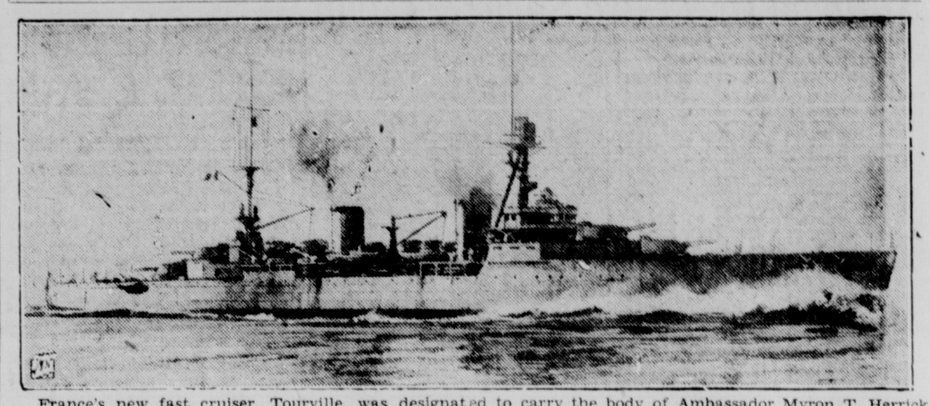
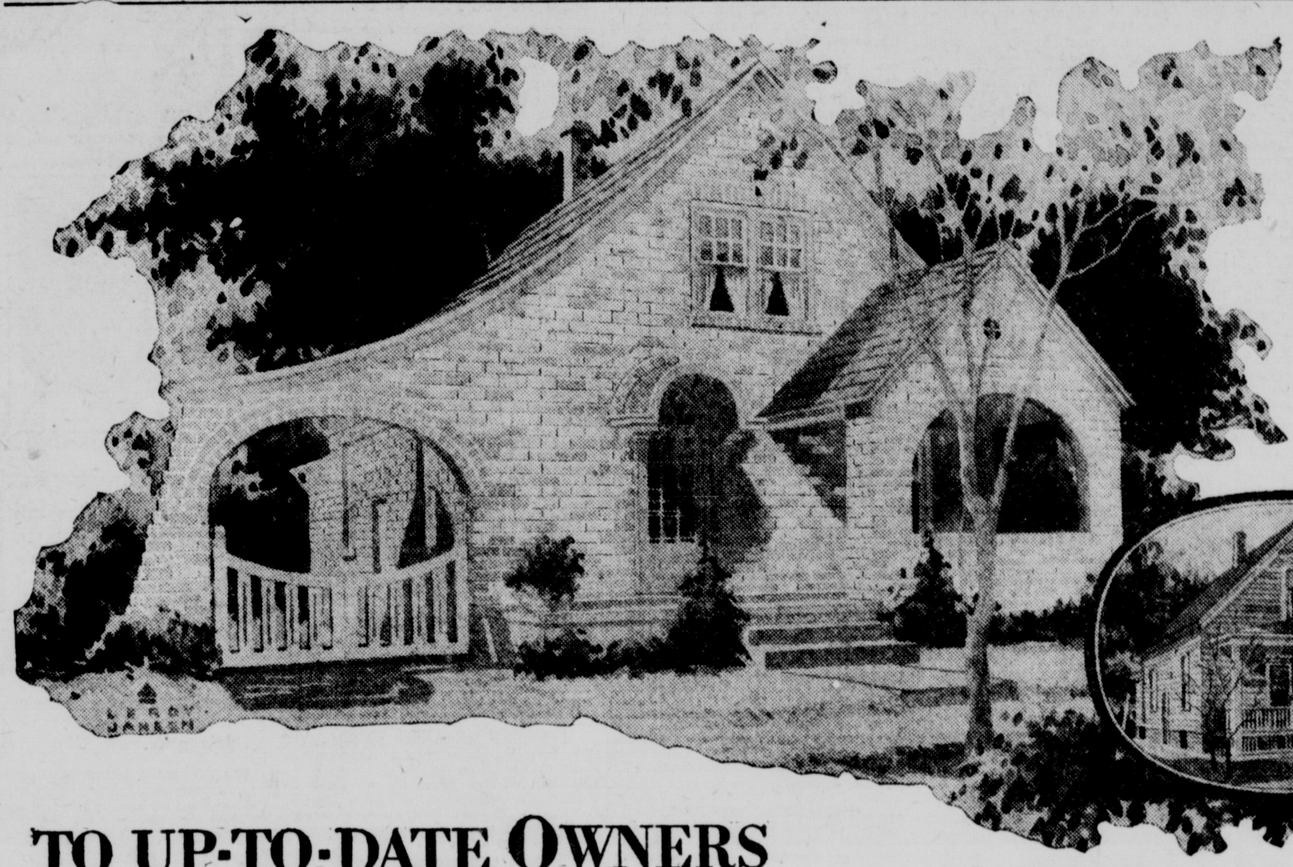
French Cruiser to Bring Herrick's Body Home



France's new fast cruiser, Tourville, was designated to carry the body of Ambassador Myron T. Herrick to the United States following funeral services in Paris.



These few changes have made a new home out of an old one.

A veneer of brick applied right over the old siding, an attractive roof line carried over the drive, a new porch and entrance, have made this commonplace, old-fashioned little house, thoroughly modern—even smart—in appearance. Interior changes were also made so that the plan of rooms, the fixtures, the equipment are thoroughly up-to-date. Modernizing can make any old-style, substantial house attractive and up-to-date.

TO UP-TO-DATE OWNERS OF OUT-OF-DATE HOMES!

Learn now how other home owners have added comfort .... attractiveness .... value .... to substantial but unmodern homes

ROWS of houses structurally sound, but sadly out-of-date. You see them everywhere. Here and there a fine old home with queer gables, gingerbread, and old-style windows. Modern once, but entirely out-of-place now. Obsolete in appearance, in sanitation, in heating, lighting and cooking facilities. And hard to sell at any price!

Your home may be one of these. It may not be satisfactory to you as a home—yet because it cannot be sold except at a loss you are forced to keep it. There is no need to live in an unsatisfactory, old-fashioned home. No need to sell at a tremendous sacrifice just because it's out-of-date. Find out how easily you can modernize it.

You can easily give it new lines . . . new equipment . . . new conveniences . . . new comforts. And by doing so, you will increase its value far beyond the cost of modernizing.

We will gladly tell you how your home can be made modern. Tell you for instance, how one home valued at $4,000 was remodeled for $3,600 and then sold for $11,000. How hundreds of others have been increased tremendously in value. We will tell you how you can get plans, how you can have the work financed in the same way new construction is financed.

TWENTY-SEVENTH YEAR. LINCOLN, NEB., SUNDAY, APRIL 7, 1929. SECTION D EIGHT PAGES

WHEN NEBRASKA WAS A TERRITORY

Charles B. Strong, Now of Havelock, Was Absorbing The Vivid Experiences of A Pioneer Child And Meeting Men Whose Names Today Are Listed in State History

BY LULU MAE COE.

When Nebraska had been only two years a territory and included half the middle west, more than a decade before Lincoln was so designated, and when it was casually known as Salt Flats, three years before the Colorado gold rush, and years before motor cars, electric lights, radios, permanent waves, and lumber jackets for the drawing room, the W. H. Strong family came to Johnson county, prepared to make a home in the new country.

Government surveyors had just completed their county surveys when the family came in September, 1856. Noble Strong, brother of W. H. Strong had come to Nebraska the previous June, when surveying was under way, and had located a couple of claims for himself and his brother.

As the land had been surveyed, but not offered for public sale, the Strongs at first were squatters on their claims. When the land came to the market a land office had been established at Brownville, and the newcomers filed their declaratory statement, to obtain land under the provisions of the pre-emption act. Each qualified pre-emptor, a year from the date of his statement, was entitled to 160 acres of minimum or double minimum lands subject to pre-emption by paying the government price, $1.25 in the former case, the price paid by the Strongs.

Located Near Vesta.

The W. H. Strong quarter-section was located west of Vesta, where he was later the first postmaster. The town was named by his brother, in honor of a former favorite pupil in his school in Connecticut.

A 5-year-old son of W. H. Strong, Charles, came with his parents to Nebraska, and was destined to witness many of the interesting events of pioneer days. Charles Strong will be 78 years old April 16, but he is as mentally vigorous as a man many years younger, and he enjoys recalling the hard days of a pioneer youth, and reminiscing of some of the noted characters of the day. Mr. Strong now makes his home with his son, Hubert Strong, 840 L street, Havelock.

Mr. Strong was born in Litchfield county, Conn., in 1851, and a year later was taken by his family to Ohio. From there, they removed to Jones county, Ia., about thirty miles west of Davenport, and in September, 1856, when Charles B. Strong was a little more than 5, the family came by ox team to Johnson county, crossing the river in a flat boat at Nebraska City.

About the first thing he saw was a company of thirty horsemen going along the river on this side. The horsemen included Jim Lane, first lieutenant of John Brown, and leader of the Free State party in Kansas, and a group of his supporters, who were patrolling the river to keep Missourians from running slaves across to Kansas.

Recalls Hard Winter.

We've had a hard winter, this year, we think, but Mr. Strong has no difficulty in remembering a much harder, longer, hungrier winter than this. The cold months of 1856-57 were known as "the hard winter," and the settlers suffered. Mr. Strong's father built a tiny cabin, covered with hay, for his family. Immediately upon arrival, and then the arrivals turned their attention to putting up hay for the stock, a group putting their cuttings together. It was cut with scythes, and an early frost injured it before it was stacked.

Winter had come early, and as soon as the hay was up, a few settlers from Yankee creek, the site of the Strong claim, and from Tecumseh, known as Maulding settlement in those days, started to drive to Missouri for provisions. They crossed at Brownville easily enough, but before they could recross with the flour, bacon, and meal, slush ice had formed in the river. Ten days elapsed before the crossing could be made, and the Strong claim was forty miles from there.

When the teams did not come, Mr. Strong's father had walked to Tecumseh, ten miles, to make inquiries of the lost men and teams. The provisions of the settlers on Yankee creek were entirely gone, and starvation threatened if the food did not come. The settlers had been sharing their stores, but there were no more stores left to divide. No word had been received at Tecumseh, also lacking food, and Mr. Strong returned home. That night, Mrs. Strong put her five little children, all scarcely more than babies, to bed hungry, having divided a squirrel, which some neighbor had given, and a pint of milk among them.

Traveled During Night.

No sooner had Mr. Strong left Tecumseh than the weary, cold, harassed men with the provisions drove into town. Hearing of the plight of Yankee creek, they ate dinner, fed their teams, warmed themselves for only a brief time, and set out through the cold and snow again for the creek. The teams arrived at 1 o'clock, and Mrs. Strong made Johnny cake and fed it to the hungry youngsters in the middle of the night.

Food was monotonous that winter, until Noble Strong, going to feed the cattle one morning, killed five deer, and two more at a later date. They filled the shed where they were hung, but they brought fresh meat, other than rabbit and squirrel to the family. The Pottawattamie Indians, camped nearby, tanned the hides on shares, and the Strongs had two pairs of trousers, and whip lashes for years to come as a result.

From September until June, the Strongs had no mail, and then they had to go to Nebraska City for delivery, and no mail route was established until 1859 and 1860. In 1864, Mr. Strong's brother, a couple of years older, was carrying the route from Brownville to Beatrice, and, in common with most folks of those days, took chills and fever in the autumn.

Without a mail carrier, there could be no mail. So the elder Strong wrote a note to "Pap" Towle at Beatrice, and sent out what is probably the youngest mail carrier on record, Charles Strong, aged 13. He carried two trips for his brother, and his great load for one trip was one letter.

Remember "Wild Bill."

Arrived at Beatrice, "Pap" Towle inquired of the Nebraska City carrier, with whom he rode from Tecumseh on, "Who's this young fellow you've got with you, and where's the mail carrier?" The note from the father fixed up matters, and the young mail carrier continued his duties for a brief time.

Although but a child, Mr. Strong recalls "Wild Bill" Hickok, and Leroy McCanless, brother of David Colbert McCanless, who was killed by "Wild Bill" at Rock Creek station July 12, 1861. David McCandless didn't come into the Yankee Creek vicinity, but Leroy, who was later called by his other names, James Alexander, settled on a claim adjoining that of W. H. Strong on Yankee creek. "And he was a good neighbor, too," Mr. Strong vows.

David McCanless left North Carolina in May, 1859, and bought Rock Creek station, where Colorado gold seekers camped, on the Oregon trail. Shortly after this he wrote his brother, Leroy, to come west, and he settled in the Little Blue river bottom at the mouth of Rock Creek, three miles south of the station. According to Mr. Strong, trouble separated the brothers, and Leroy McCanless removed to Johnson county, fifty miles away, but different reasons are given for his change of residence, one of them that he wished a more populous region for his home.

Hickok a Rancher.

In 1861, the stage company sent James B. Hickok, a young man later known as "Wild Bill," from head-

College View, Which May Be Part of Lincoln, Grew Up Around Adventist School

When College View becomes a part of Lincoln it will bring all the composite parts of a town with it, churches, schools, paving, sidewalks, and homes. An airplane view of the southeast suburb, showing the roof tops of the several hundred homes among the many more hundreds of trees is on the upper left, a College View that will add a couple of square miles to Lincoln. When annexation is completed, Lincoln will be the site of a third denominational college, Union college, maintained by the Seventh Day Adventist church, of which the main and oldest building is pictured. W. W. Prescott, first president of the college, is shown in the insert. E. A. Jenkins, second from the right, and L. Nicola, right, are two of the first trustees of College View who still reside there.

A bigger and broader Lincoln will become a fact when College View becomes a part of Greater Lincoln.

Lincoln became Greater Lincoln October 13, 1926, when Bethany and University Place officially came into the fold. No plans have been made for the reception of the suburb to the southeast, but if all the ifs and whens and buts are satisfactorily disposed of, Lincoln will have a group of new residents, more churches, another college, and some more school buildings at a future date.

In common with the two communities previously annexed, College View grew up around a denominational college, Union college, founded and maintained by the Seventh Day Adventist church. The college was located when the present town was a corn field and Lincoln was quite a distance away. Two years elapsed between the selection of the location for the college, and the incorporation of College View, and the school was dedicated seven months previous to the organization of the town.

In fact, the trustees found the spot satisfactory because it was a distance away from the city of Lincoln. It is the policy of the church to locate its colleges in such a manner that the students will have a rural atmosphere for their college days, and a quarter section of land is generally purchased for the college site. However, the town, whose inhabitants were mainly members of the Seventh Day Adventist church in the beginning, attracted by the college, is now separated but by the width of a street from the center of College View.

Incorporated in 1892.

College View was incorporated April 28, 1892, in response to a petition signed by M. W. Newton and seventy-nine others. J. D. Morton, W. T. Henton, J. S. Unangst, L. Nicola, and E. A. Jenkins, the latter two still residents of College View, were the first trustees of the village.

Mr. Nicola, one of the trustees of the first Seventh Day Adventist church in Iowa, with Mr. Jenkins, are the only present residents who were in College View at the time of its incorporation. The town had a gradual growth, residents coming in one by one, as it was not founded as a church project but rather attracted those who wished the educational advantages of the college.

Mr. Nicola found College View an open field when he came there in 1890, and he almost solely built the early part of the town. He built the first store building, on the corner when the bank now stands, started the first store, the first barber shop, and started the blacksmith shop. He had a coal business for a time, and was the promoter of about all of the business of the town.

Objected to Name.

There was considerable discussion about the name of the town, when the time for incorporation came. The residents liked the name, as it seemed applicable, but the postoffice department objected, declaring in favor of a one syllable name. After a time, Mr. Nicola wrote, saying that no one syllable name could be agreed upon, and the new town was to be known as College View. And so it has remained.

Educational work among the Seventh Day Adventists in the Mississippi valley began with the Minnesota conference school in Minneapolis in the fall of 1888. Although the school continued for two years, its accommodations were too small, and a council was held in May, 1889, to plan for better facilities. It was recommended that the several conferences of the northwest unite in establishing a well-equipped and centrally-located school, and that a committee be appointed to act in the matter.

The council at which the report was to be made was never held, and at the general conference in Battle Creek, Mich., in October, 1889, it was decided to establish a denominational college at some point between the Mississippi river and the Rocky mountains. A committee, after receiving invitations from seven states, selected Lincoln, the seat of three universities, and a city with good schools and churches. At a meeting at Knoxville, Ia., January 18, 1890, Lincoln's offer was accepted.

Lincoln Donates Land.

The citizens of Lincoln donated three hundred acres of land, three and three-fourths miles southeast of the capital. The general conference association of Seventh Day Adventists gave a $100,000 bond to erect, by July 1, 1891, buildings to cost not less than $70,000, to be known as Union college.

April 10, 1890, ground was broken for the main college building, and May 3 the first stone was laid. The buildings were dedicated September 14, 1891, when 500 attended the ceremonies. Elder O. A. Olson, president of the conference, presided. Prof. W. P. Aylsworth of Cotner read the scripture, W. C. Sisley, the architect, presented the keys of the buildings to the trustees, A. R. Henry received the keys for the trustees, W. W. Prescott, first president of Union college, spoke; Chancellor J. S. Canfield of the University of Nebraska gave a speech of welcome, Elder Uriah Smith, editor of the Review and Herald of Battle Creek, Mich., gave the dedicatory prayer, and Elder W. B. White, president of the Nebraska conference, the benediction.

This main building, together with two dormitories, normal training building, a gymnasium, with maintainance structures, will add to Lincoln's colleges, with the perfection of annexation. This oldest Seventh Day Adventist college, although not the largest, has 375 students from Nebraska, South Dakota, Iowa, Kansas, Missouri, Colorado, Wyoming, Oklahoma, New Mexico, and states east of the Mississippi. The college has four schools, normal, literary, theology, and commercial, with a faculty of thirty-six. P. L. Thompson is president of the college. The campus has ten acres, with 160 acres in the farm nearby, which supplies the farm and dairy products for the college.

All Students Work.

All students defray certain of their expenses by some sort of work, and the entire institution functions with student help. Originally, the work included manual labor only, but that has been enlarged to include work in the office and the print shop. Students care for the lawns, the buildings, help with the laundry, do the dining room work, help in the kitchen under the supervision of the matron, work on the farm, and some of the girls shell and pick out pecans for the commercial market.

Because it is a denominational college, attendance at Friday evening services, Sabbath school, and Sabbath morning services is required. On the seventh day, the students are expected to conduct themselves in a quiet, decorous manner, and the rules say that use of cameras and kodaks that day is out of harmony with the spirit of the day. Worship is held at 6:30 in the morning and at 5:40 at night.

The college has no interscholastic games, but it provides tennis, baseball, and football for its students. Aiming at the promotion of the best spiritual, cultural, and social values, all Seventh Day Adventist colleges restrict their enrollment at 500, so that the instructors may have individual contact wih he students.

Girls over 17 years of age are expected to wear their dresses four inches below the knee, and sleeves to the inside of the elbow. The latter restriction is to be changed next year to allow shorter sleeves. These rules are not rigidly enforced, but the individual in each case is considered, and the regulations are made to offer some uniformity of dress and to encourage the students to avoid extremes. There is no regulation on bobbed hair.

The present board of trustees of College View is composed of Christopher Kuhner, chairman; W. T. Etmund, treasurer; Charles H. Lile, clerk, and M. H. McVay, Rex Jacobson, Edwin Irvin, and E. A. Kremer. Mr. Kremer is chairman of the water and light department, Mr. Jacobson of finance, Mr. Kuhner of public safety, Mr. McVey of streets, and Mr. Irvin of sewers. A new board was chosen at the last election, but its incumbency depends upon annexation. Mr. Kuhner is mayor, and has been a member of the board for six years.

When College View becomes a part of Lincoln, two square miles will be added to the city territory. It has a population of 3,000 to add to the 87,917 federal estimate of Lincoln's population January 1, 1929. College View has about 800 homes.

Valued at $2,387,945.

With annexation, Lincoln will take over a high school building, a fireproof, well built building, and two grade schools, the south ward, and the north ward or Andrews school. The south ward building, with a kindergarten and six grades has an attendance of 234 and a faculty of seven, the north ward, with four grades, four teachers and ninety pupils, and the high school has 172 pupils, with seven faculty members full time and two part time.

The assessed valuation of College View is $2,397,945, which adds on to Lincoln's assessed valuation of approximately $116,855,000. College View has 10 miles of paving, and 35 miles of sidewalks.

Three church structures will be added to the city list when annexation is completed. The Seventh Day Adventist church, the Sheridan Boulevard Baptist church, a new, modern structure, and the Union church. The Masons and the Knights and Ladies of Pythias have local organizations in the suburb.

Charles Strong Of Havelock Recalls When Nebraska Was Still Territory

quarters at Leavenworth, to Rock Creek station. Latest reports says that he was an assistant stock tender, but Mr. Strong recalls that he was known as a rancher.

Two or three days before the Rock Creek tragedy, "Wild Bill" stopped his team at the Strong home, watered it from the creek, fed it, and ate his own dinner. W. H. Strong, with Charles and another son, went out to talk to him and the older Strong remarked that "That is a pretty bid load for a little horse," to which "Wild Bill" agreed, and asked Mr. Strong to guess at the cost. Charles Strong remembers that the visible wares were a couple of barrels of whisky, and the balance of the load was goods to sell at the ranch station and purchased in Nebraska City. The Denver road passing the station made selling brisk.

"Wild Bill" planned to make the water holes between Yankee Creek and Bear creek that day, and be back at the station the next day or so. He must have followed his plans for word of the murder of David McCanless, James Gordon and Joseph Woods at Rock Creek station came within a couple or three days. Word was brought to Yankee creek by a young boy on David's horse, who had traveled all night and the early morning to get Leroy McCanless.

There are many versions of the events at Rock Creek station that day, but Mr. Strong, although only a boy at the time, recalls that word coming back through the ranchers was that Hickok had fired on the three men from behind a blanket, hung at one end of the one room and lean to station to mark the bedroom, after argument of one kind or another, some saying an argument over whisky, Mr. Strong says, and some said, an argument over money owing McCandless from the stage company.

"Hickok wasn't a bad man," Mr. Strong avers.

"Up to that time, he was one of the best ranchers in the vicinity. He allowed whisky and gambling, but he always kept good order."

Following the killing and the burial, Leroy McCanless brought Mrs. David McCanless and the five children to Yankee creek. Monroe McCanless, David's oldest son, 12 years old and a witness of his father's murder, played with Charles Strong while living on his uncle's claim. The following year(Mrs. McCanless took the children back to their own home.

Leroy McCanless, a southern democrat, but well liked by the people of the community, was running for sheriff. According to Mr. Strong, he became involved in an argument with a Mr. Cartright over some alleged election promises, as Cartright was riding home on load of corn with W. H. Strong, and in the course of events, called him "a dammed liar." McCanless struck Cartright, who fell, and then kicked him, Mr. Strong says. Cartright died turning to Strong, said: "I guess I've done it."

"McCandless was a good neighbor, though. I never remember him really drunk, but he was disagreeable when he had been drinking," Mr. Strong says.

Only Doctor Chased Away.

All experiences were not so noted, but some were equally alarming. In the summer of 1861, Mrs. Strong and the five children had typhoid fever, even though they had the best well in the vicinity. The doctor came to see Mrs. Strong and the brother, each once, and Charles, who for three weeks was unable to recognize anything, and the younger hildren, less seriously ill, was forced to do without a doctor's care or medicine. The only doctor in the county was considered a southern sympathizer, and he was run out of the county.

During the Civil war years, the border counties were troubled by the Kansas Jayhawkers and the Missouri Bushwhackers. The Anti-Jayhawkers league with Leroy McCandless as captain, was organized to keep unwelcome visitors out of the county.

Word came that three horse thieves with four horses were headed for a ranch in the vicinity, and men organized into the league went to the ranch to put the thieves under arrest. The previous night the plans were made to capture them, for horse thieving was not among the accepted crimes. A group of the thieves had stopped to water their horses at the Strong ranch, with the little boys standing around wide-eyed, knowing who the visitors were but nevertheless thrilled at the sight. A report later came from Nebraska City that the thieves had been put under the ice with very little legal formality, but that was only a report. However, they were never seen again.

For the first three or four years of their residence in Johnson county, the Methodist circuit rider of the southeast Nebraska district held church in the Strong cabin on his visits in the vicinity. Neither Mr. or Mrs. Strong were members of the Methodist church, but their log home was most suitable for the service, and arrangements were made to hold it there.

Walked Miles To School.

The territory had no school funds, and the first school was maintained by individual contributions. Mr. Strong attended one of the first of the county schools, seven miles west of Tecumseh and taught by Mrs. Frances Butler. He and his sister, Mary, two years younger and five years of age, walked 2½ miles daily to the three months of school in the summer. Mr. Strong was 16 before he attended school in the winter, and fifteen before a school house was constructed, classes having been held in log houses.

Mr. Strong freighted in 1872 and 1873, driving for George Laflin, who had the contract for hauling freight to the Cheyenne and Comanche Indians from Wichita to the Indian territory. The trains consisted of twenty-two wagons, with three or four yoke of oxen on each wagon.

For twenty years, Mr. Strong farmed, and for a dozen years had his own blacksmith shop, three years in Tecumseh and eight or nine years in Sterling. He homesteaded in northwestern Kansas for a couple of years, before returning to Tecumseh. From 1898 until 1901, he was sheriff of Johnson county.

About sixteen years ago, he removed to Oregon, and to Utah where he spent a number of years with his daughter and his sister. For the last five years, he has resided in Havelock.

Rock Garden Near College View, Containing Many Curiosities, Result Two Years of Work

The rocks that one farmer was happy to be rid of have made interesting and unusual ornamentation in the garden of a home in College View, now owned by J. E. Titus. G. A. Girl, who recently sold the property, built a sunken garden, on the lower left, a lily pool, bird bath, and numerous ornamental arches and flower baskets, shown in the other pictures, from rocks picked up in a field east of Lincoln.

By LULU MAE COE.

Some people spend a generous share of their lives taking rocks out of their garden, but G. A. Girl brought in as many stones as possible during two years' occupancy.

On a slightly hilltop east of College View, but off the main streets, Mr. Girl constructed his rock garden during his leisure moments. The highest peaks and arches of his work are visible from a lower roadway, but the sunken garden and lily pool and the little paths are seen only by those who climb the last long hill.

For two years, when not planting hardwood trees, flowers, and shrubs, and when not building his house, Mr. Girl brought rocks from five miles east of town for his landscaping. About the middle of February he sold the property, located at Eighth and D streets, College View to J. E. Titus. He is now residing on a farm near Brownville, where he is continuing his work with stone.

On the north of the grounds is a sunken garden, outlined with low stone arches, the center ones on each side being higher than the adjoining arches, and from each is suspended by a heavy stone chain a rock basket filled with small stones. At the back are crossing arches on four large rock pillars, with a stone birdhouse topping the structure, and another rock basket swinging from the center of the arches. The entrance to the garden is down a couple of wide stone steps, with a tall rough stone pillar on each side, holding a large stone composed of smaller rocks.

Within the garden, the side flower beds are marked by much lower, smaller arches, similar to the eleven of the bounding circle. The depressed circle of the pool is centered with a pedestaled urn topped with crossed arches, and topped with a white rock in red mortar. All of the sunken garden wall, the main arches, and the supporting posts are done in the red mortar, with the upper part of the urn and the bird house in the blue mortar.

All of the paths and flower beds in the garden are outlined with the rough pink stones, and Mr. Girl made them into large stone flower pots, which later in the summer will be hung with vines. All are on pedestals, and some are smaller, probably knee high, and others are four or five feet in height. One is in the shape of a huge rock basket, in the design that bridesmaids carry in wedding processionals.

Eighty Varieties Plants.

At the north entrance of the garden is a tall stone arch, and nearby is a decorative pedestal, with the rough stone base forming a foundation for an upright circle of stones. Between the sunken garden and the house is the peony bed, where Mr. Girl planted eighty varieties of choicest plants. Mr. Titus is continuing the planting and the landscaping of the grounds.

The main feature of the south garden is the lily pool with its spring, which in warmer weather slips down a depressed course in a shaped mass of red to the pool, outlined with the uneven red stones. A tiny brick bridge crosses the pool and constructed between the pond and the spring course. The red pile is topped with a turret-like structure of four white pillars on a red base, and sheltered with a little peaked roof. On the right side of the spring is a Temple of Venus, with four large white pillars on their rounded stone, which stands on a red base, and a mushroom roof with a fat white knob. At the left is an urn for vines, in white, and behind it an arch, with one white and one red pillar, with the red stone arch and a white keystone.

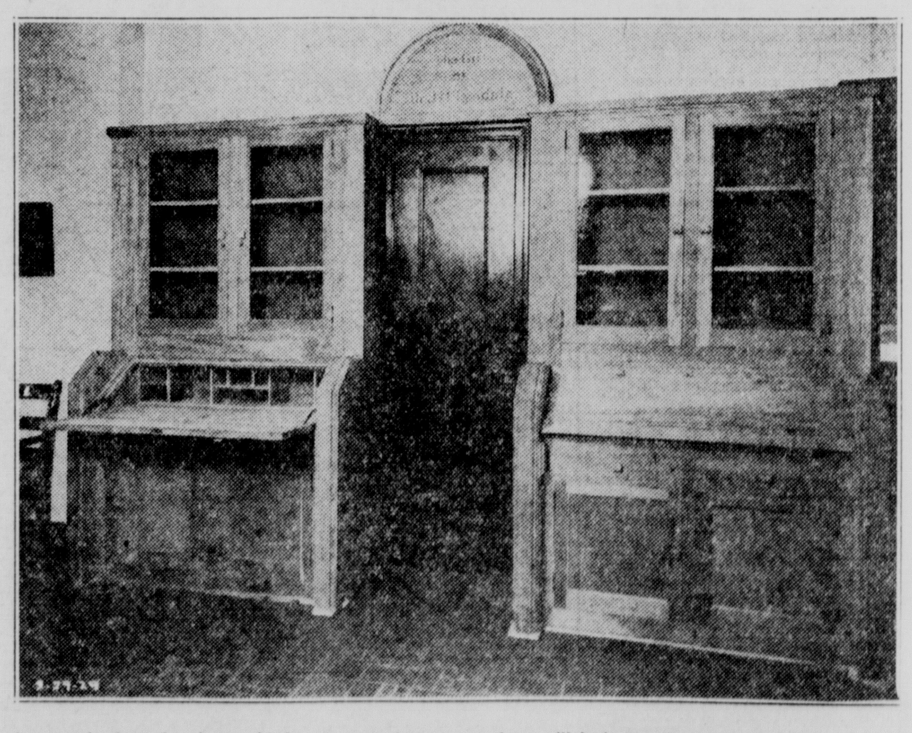
Near the lily pool is the bird bath, another pillared structure, with its white roof decorated with five heart-shaped figures, with big onyx balls between the figures. A compass is impressed into the base, above the figures "1927."

Marking one of the paths is a tall white pedestal, the resting place of two small brown owls. At the end of another path is a structure of four pillars, with the arches crossing and nearby is a pile of huge boulders for the iris bed. Separating one part of the south garden from the other are twin arches, from the center of each of which hangs a rock basket of stones.

When a boy, Mr. Girl's father had a stone quarry on his farm in Gage county, and shipped stone to a number of towns in the state. He became interested in stone work at that time, and, understanding quarrying, worked out some of the rock for decoration of the home yard. The rocks of the College View home were more easily obtained, as the owner of the field where he secured them was glad to have them taken away.

Mr. Girl is not a professional landscape gardener, but he has studied landscaping some himself, and finds great pleasure in it. He gained his first ideas of the variety of stone work possible from viewing the old missions in Texas when he first went there twenty years ago. Mr. Girl spent another year in Corpus Christi about three years ago, and did some work in the city park there.

Gives An Alcove to Medical Library



A research alcove has been added to the library and club rooms of the Lancaster County Medical society. It is the gift of Dr. J. H. Tyndale. A photographic reproduction of the alcove is shown in place on the north side of the library on the sixteenth floor of the Sharp building, at Thirteenth and N streets. Over the top is the inscription, "The Gift of Dr. J. H. Tyndale."

Dr. Tyndale is one of the oldest physicians in Lincoln and is well known to all of the older medical men both of the city and state through his many years as a practitioner here.

Knowing how keenly he felt the need of a place to pursue research work in his younger days, and realizing that with the great advancement of medicine the need was even greater now than in his youth, Dr. Tyndale decided upon the alcove as a memorial to himself.

Here students and young doctors will be permitted to study in quiet. Scores upon scores of valuable books in the library will be at their disposal, and because of the privacy of the club rooms they are assured that if away temporarily, their work will remain undisturbed.

In one of the cases there will be an authoritative history of medicine. The other will contain valuable reference books and curios. Both will be lighted on the inside. They are solidly made and finished in walnut, and should last as long as the library, according to Dr. H. W. Orr, librarian.

In addition to being noted as a physician, Dr. Tyndale also is well known as a theatrical critic. His earlier years were spent in New York City and it was there he first became fafiliated with theatrical affairs.

After coming to Lincoln his always was a familiar face to first-nighters, and he never missed the one night stands of the better class shows. Theater-goers looked for his criticisms. He could be caustic when occasion demanded and often was scathing in his denunciation of plays which he believed should not have been produced. His causticness, however, did not prevent Dr. Tyndale from giving praise when due. Regardless of whether he was condemning or lauding a play, he was fearless and fair, those who knew him best, declare.

Dr. Tyndale's gift to the medical society "is one of the finest that has ever come to the organization," in the opinion of Dr. Orr. It fills a long-felt want, he declares.

Chadron Normal

Excavation for the new library building was begun Wednesday, March 27.

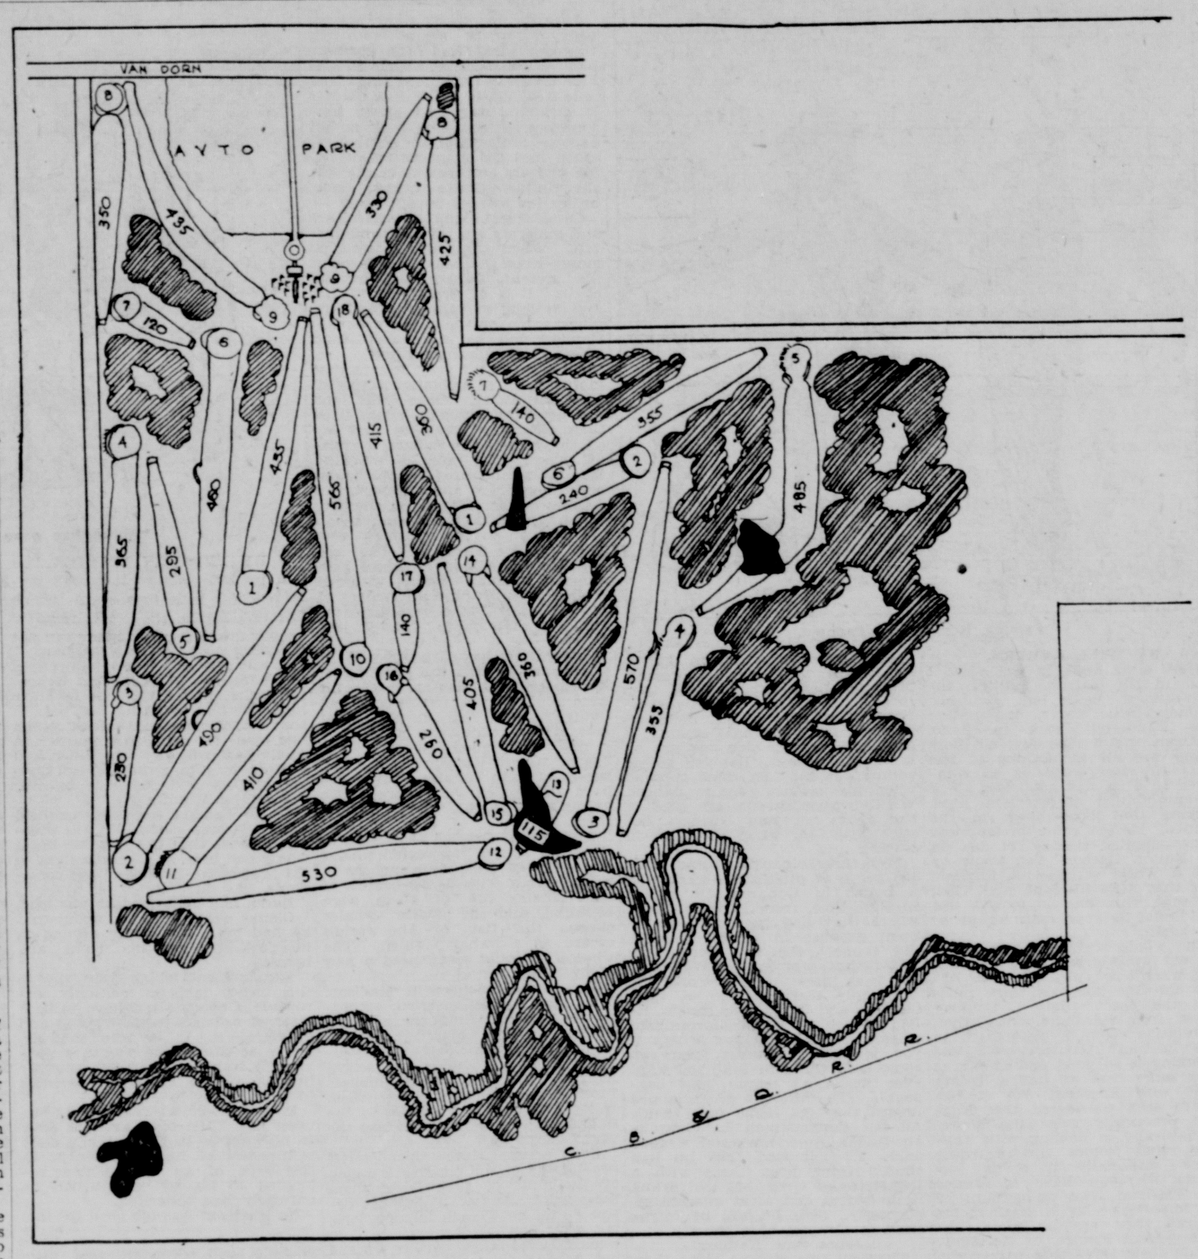
Golf Links and Drives Laid Out and More Than 20,000 Trees Planted at Pioneers Park



A panoramic view of the golf course that is to be built in Pioneers park, Lincoln's new playground, is shown herewith. It is to be a standard layout of 27 holes and Willie Dunn, the architect, declares it will be one of the best in America. The picture is reproduced from a drawing by Mr. Dunn after going over the ground several times and then shooting a golf ball over the proposed route after he had laid it out.

Pioneers park is beginning to take shape. Several crews of workers have been there all the past week planting trees, clearing away underbrush, burning dead grass and piling old wood and debris. They also have been cleaning out the bed of Haines branch, a stream of spring water that flows through the southern side of the park. While these workmen have been busy others have been hauling the accumulation of rubbish away and doing the dozen and one other tasks that can be found only in connection with starting the development of such a tract as Pioneers park.

The principal effort the past week has been toward planting trees along the boundary lines, and this was completed Friday night. Along the east side honey locusts in a double row have been set out. They are about ten feet tall. Along the north and west boundaries there are 20,000 Austrian pines. These are about three inches tall and when grown will form a mass covering a space about fifteen feet wide. The work is under the direction of Ernst Herminghaus, consulting landscape gardener to Commissioner Bair, head of the city park department, and Clarence Kittinger, park executive.

Timber Along Creek.

The timber already along the banks of Haines branch will form the boundary along the south side of the park, and along which runs the main line of the Burlington runs. The trees are not so high, however, that a splendid view of the lower stretches of the playgrounds, and much of the golf course cannot be seen from the windows of passing trains.

American elms, poplars and honey locust will form a screen along the north side of the brick yard from the main entrance to the top of the hill where the boundary changes direction to the south and meets the south line at Haines branch. This side also will be screened to shut off as far as possible views of the manufacturing plant from the golf links and passers by in motor cars on their way to the play grounds.

The past week also saw the driveways staked out, and a central court located where will be placed the life-size buffalo in bronze, the gift of John F. Harris and Mrs. Harris of New York and Palm Beach, donors of the park.

Is Formal Garden.

This spot will be in the nature of a more or less formal garden on a promotory about 300 yards inside of the east line of the park. It will be about 300 feet in diameter and will be reached by lanes leading from the two corners. These will be eighty feet wide and lined on both sides with Moline elms, inside of which and fringing the drive will be lilacs. Those along the north lane will be pink and Persian varieties will be along the south one.

A driveway circling the bronze buffalo will be the same width as the lanes. Radiating from this to the northwest and southwest will be the lanes leading to the drives into the park proper. These lanes also will be eighty feet across and when completed will be lined with some species of trees. For a distance equalling that of the two entrance lanes the trees will have an inside border of blue lilacs to the northwest, and white snowballs to the southwest.

The snowballs will be discontinued at the edge of a lake nestling at the base of the promontory to be replaced by a border around the water, 1,500 spirea, red and wellow twig dogwood, forsythia, golden currant and fragrant sumac, taking their place.

Crosses Top of Dam.

Where the drive comes to the lake it will cross the top of the dam which makes the lake possible. From thence it will go by gentle curves to the top of a hill where is marked the east line of the south section of the park, and the western boundary of the brick yard, and on down onto the flats south of the links. It is this drive that will follow on through to the western boundary, where the sightseer will have one of the most picturesque drives and at the same time beautiful views to be obtained on the entire tract.

As is the case with the drive to the northwest from the central court that skirting the western boundary is close to the golf grounds, at some places being close to tees, but never close enough to fairways or greens to endanger anyone from a wild ball. This section of the drive is unusually rough but, as Mayor Hedge said Wednesday afternoon, one will be well compensated for the trouble experienced in making it. The statement followed after he had just driven over the route which had not yet been graded.

The northwest drive leads directly to the north boundary, where it turns west and follows the border hedge of pine for some distance only to turn in a long, sweeping horseshoe curve to the east. At the eastern extremity of the curve it reaches the top of a hill that offers one of the best views of the city found in the park. It then winds gradually to the southwest until it is only about 1,200 feet from the road leading across the lake dam. It also finds its way onto the playground flats.

The lake near the buffalo is the only one that will have shrubbery of any kind along its bank. This is being done here only because artificiality is needed to fit in with the decorative scheme of the central court.

The past week saw the final layout of the Pioneers park golf course in the hands of the city council, after having been prepared by Willie Dunn, golf course expert of international reputation.

In laying out the course, Mr. Dunn incorporated the standard complements of length, yardage, holes of varying distance and strategy, continued interest in the play through the green, yet retaining the completed balance for the whole. None is too long or drab or uninteresting. Neither do they entail arduous physical effort in climbing hills. Each gentle slope has been so utilized that the objectionable features have been eliminated.

The natural beauty of contour has been enhanced here and there. A grassy swale has been set up in front of a green to bring it out in the mind's eye. A gently terraced green, others undulating, bowl-like effects, sloping greens without any effect of being too precipitous: all the arts of golf architecture have been employed to merit the player's praise.

The traps and bunkers have been designed to seem naturally a part of the whole. Hidden ones have been avoided but the design is such as to evoke the golfer's skill while avoiding extreme penalties for truant shots. Each shot through the fairway has been thought out with a view to finding a very fair shot, and a good lie for the next.

Consider Wind Weather.

Weather, wind and climatic conditions also have been considered as they affect the shot, turf, grasses and the green.

Each little lake or ravine has its greens and tees, each differing in its setting, and nearly all visible from the clubhouse. This alone, according to Jack Thomas, Mr. Dunn's assistant who prepared this description at the dictation of Mr. Dunn, makes the beauty of Pioneers park course superior to any other championship course, including Oakmont, Merion and many others.

In making this course a modern championship one "we have kept in mind the reaction of golf architecture to greater simplicity," he stated. "We have avoided putting traps too close to pin, permitting a reasonable amount of liberty for reasonably well hit shots; with generous fairways wisely bunkered to avoid severity. The wonderful natural scenery has been employed at every opportunity to enhance th varity in play.

Here is the description of the three courses as dictated to Mr. Thomas by Mr. Dunn:

Middle Course.

Starting the play down the middle course we have three holes of sufficient length to get all players wel laway from the first tee, thus avoiding congestion and at the same time affording an opportunity to loosen up the swing at the start. Unlike champions, most players do not have time to do this before the game.

Hole No. 1—Slopes downward all the way to the green, adding yards to the drive just where it is needed. The distance is 565 yards. Par 5.

Hole 2—A not long two-shot hole across a wide grassy valley to a green set up to view and protected by a natural sharp declivity to the left and left front. Because of the valley this hole appears to be longer than the 410 yards. Par 4.

Hole 3—Continuing the gentle downgrade you cross this same vale in a wide expanse of fairway along the southern limits of the course, overlooking the boulevards, lakes and trees of the park proper, to a green nestling almost under the trees back of the lower lake of the chain and constituting one of its shady satellites. This distance is 530 yards for a par 5.

Pitch Across Lake.

Hole 4—Upon the dike of this same lake we pitch from the very edge over the water to a green on the opposite shore, protected at the left by the neck of the lake, and trapped both to the right and rear. The shot is 115 yards on a par 3.

Hole 5—The short safe player can easily find a good lie from the tee for his second, but the ambitious fellow will do well not to slice or he will be in the rough at a lower level that would call for an iron shot. A shot well placed from the tee, however, opens up an easy par 4 or birdie. The green is slightly higher than the tee, with a diagonal greasy swale between tee and green which, if you fail to carry and are not off line, leaves a shot to the green that is not at all difficult.

Hole 6—This hole opens up a wide level fairway to the edge of the lake you just shot over on No. 3, or thirteen on the sketch. The only penalty for slicing off line here is being in the rough. But get to the left and you are in a swale which runs into the lake and on the edge of which sets the green. The distance is 405 with par at 4.

Hole 7—On a gentle side slope. It skirts a rise to the green and is slightly higher at the lower end of a plateau, and reaches gradually from there to the clubhouse. It is a par 4 at 260 yards.

Hole 8—A good test for the mashie. Well trapped and is par at 3 for the 140 yards.

Hole 9—A wide fairway home, up a gradual slope of plateau to clubhouse to a beautiful large level green. ake this 415 yards in 4 and you have shot par.

The West Course.

On the west course the player has two good wood shots on the first hole, down a gently sloping wide fairway to a green across a gentle swale, setting it up to the vision from the tee. There is no hazard needed here, except at the green. Any golfer knows the mental hazard at the first tee is the greatest of all.

Teeing from the opposite side of "burn" at first green, the second green is seen on a line with the first hole. It rises across a gentle valley almost 500 yards away, yet just below the level of the tee and evoking all that the player has in bringing distance with his driver and brassie. At that this hole is not difficult for a par, and the very fine golfer should win a birdie or an eagle 3. What appears to be a green with out of bounds at its very edge turns out to be, for the overly strong shooter, amply backed with room for a chip back thus encouraging him to still try for par.

Hole 3—This hole demands accuracy from the tee—one shot from the green, 230 yards, if par is to be had. The prevailing wind will be an aid and many satisfied pars should encourage play here. The green is in a valley made just to reward and hold your good shot.

Hole 4—A continuance of 3 up along the valley and calls for an iron on the second shot to a gently undulating green half terraced and inviting a firm hit with no penalty if gone over, but by no means an easy approach putt if short.

Change In Direction.

Hole 5—This hole turns in the opposite direction but is gently sloping to a green that is small and trapped to demand a short accurate chip to reach and hold.

Hole 6—A wide expanse of fairway here, and it is welcome as you strive to pick up a stroke on par. If you shoot well the green can be reached in 7, and reach your desire—providing you make the hills and hollows in two putts.

Hole 7—Teeing above a small green only 120 yards away one must be exact with mashie niblick here to carry the grassy ravine above whose steep sides this green rests, to hold a par 3.

Hole 8—In the northwest corner of the park. A natural setting with out of bounds on the left of fairway and ravine on right. Not an easy par here, yet not at all hard as to distance to be negotiated.

Hole 9—Although the player may have played well thus far there cannot be no letdown here. Two good shots are required to reach a green just below the clubhouse, otherwise he will be playing from the ravine which juts into the fairway almost to the center and in which the "rough" is allowed to encroach. The distance is 435.

THE EAST COURSE.

Hole 1—The first tee on this course is on a gently sloping lawn in front of clubhouse veranda. The The fairway is sloping with a gradually deepening gully or ravine, starting about 80 yards from the tee and running diagonally across the fairway which must be carried from the tee to the 140-yard mark. This will be followed by a shot of easy length for the second, to a picturesque green framed at the back with a pretty lake and small canons to right and left. From the tee the green appears to be sitting on the edge of the lake. On reaching it, however, it is seen that there is distance for a pitch-up shot if the approach is too strong, with still a chance at par 4.

Hole 2—This tee is just above the margin of the lake and immediately above your drive up a gradual slope over a grassy ravine with a carry of only 100 yards or so. This leaves a chip to the green at 24 yards from the tee on a par 3.

Hole 3—Again the tee-off plays a very gently sloping plateau to a green nestling along another and more beautiful lake. From the tee there is a vista of the city, the state capitol, as well as the country surrounding the park for many miles. This green seems to be one of many clustered around the lake shaded in the back by stately trees and giving a view of the beauties of the lower lake and boulevard surroundings.

Large Valley Behind.

Hole 4—Teeing up just east of this green the player is on a gently sloping rise with a large valley behind.

Hole 5—To the left on a slope after teeing off one looks across a valley. At the foot of a hill is the green along the edge of a lake to the left of which you play. A dogleg to the right and around the ravine opening out of the lake, and the green is just above framed in a background of natural bushy copse of darker hue.

Hole 6—Driving across a gently sloping ravine a good tee shot will reach the crest of a rise on the opposite side and slightly higher than the tee. Just below is another lake among greens, your objective seemingly rising right out of the water. On reaching the green, however, it is seen that the too strong shot over it is still lying good for an approach. On either side are natural swales to catch and hold the erratic stroke, with a possible shot from a good lie for a par 4 on 355 yards.

Lots of Lattitude.

Hole 7—This hole allows considerable lattitude in where you tee up your pitch of 140 yards, carrying to hte opposite table-green, a grassy hollow jutting in on each side, bunkered at the back for an overly stout shot.

Hole 8—From the tee this hole presents what appears to be a formidable road to a picturesque green nestling in an angle formed by the boundary line of the park and Van Dorn street. It is protected on the right by a deep ravine inside of bounds and carrying a small gully out from the tee. The tee shot comes to rest on a beautiful plateau with two other ravines intervening. As you proceed these hazards are discovered to be only grassy declivities from which your shots can be hopefully played. This is a par 4 on 425 yards.

Hole 9—This is the home hole. Shoot directly across a grassy declivity to the left of clubhouse along a beautiful lawn-like fairway to a spacious green to an easy, beautiful and delightful journey's end for a par 4 on 330 yards, and a 72 for any two courses if played in par.

Building the golf course will start as soon money is available. The tees, fairways and greens have been staked out for the twenty-seven holes and, according to golf experts, the course will be one of, if not the "sportiest" in the country.

The yardage and par play for each hole follows, with the total yards and par for the course.

Lincoln Airport Will Have Grou nd-Plane Radiophone Station to Guide Mail Ships

Lincoln has been designated as one of twelve cities between Chicago and San Francisco in which a ground radiophone station is to be installed by Boeing Air Transport, Inc., carriers of air mail, express and passengers. Lincoln has also been designated as a division point on the Boeing system.

According to the announcement that Lincoln will be a division point, and have a ground station, the station will be completed and all planes equipped prior to the inauguration this summer of Boeing's expanded operations with 18-passenger transports operated on a day and night flight of approximately twenty hours between the Windy City and the Pacific coast.

Telephone communication between the pilot and the ground, and between planes in flight, long a dream of the aeronautical world, has been perfected by Boeing engineers. Such has been the efficiency and everyday workability of the instruments in tests, that W. E. Boeing, head of the company which bears his name, himself made the announcement that twelve stations would be opened. They will be in seven states: California, Nevada, Utah, Wyoming, Nebraska, Iowa and Illinois.

To Be On 35 Planes.

Thirty-five Boeing Planes already have been, or soon will be equipped with the radiophone sets.

Radiophone, for aeronautical use, has been a goal sought since commercial air lines scheduled operations calling for flying, irrespective of weather conditions and at night. Now that the phone has come it is hailed with delight as it is considered a decided forward step in whipping fog and bad weather.

With this phone, officials announce, it will be possible for pilots to talk to and hear from ground stations on the entire flight of 2,000 miles between the Golden Gate and Lake Michigan. This will be true even though the pilot be 200 miles from a ground station and 2½ miles above it.

In addition, pilots on two planes as distant as 175 miles can phone to each other. A pilot flying east from Oakland, Calif., can talk directly to a pilot flying west from Reno, Nev. When the planes are more than 175 miles apart they can communicate through ground stations. The message is sent to the nearest station and from thence relayed to a station hat is within speaking range of the plane a pilot may want to reach. This latter sta-

An artist visualizes the practical use of the radiophone recently installed on the Boeing system transcontinental mail, express and passenger planes after more than a year of research and test flying. Radiophone permits telephone communication between the pilot and the ground, and between planes in flight. With this arrangement Boeing pilots now talk with stations from an altitude of 12,000 feet.

Furthermore ,every house carries with it a guaranty of protection from cats and other enemies. The only requirement ,and it can be wavied, is that tenants stay until the season is over. A return visit next year would be highly appreciated.

A Favorite Bird Resort.

As a resort, Lincoln rates as highly with birds as the Riviera Biarritz and Palm Beach rate with human beings. Its reputation has been achieved without a line of paid advertising or publicity. Nevertheless it has taken much effort and time to get the news around that Lincoln is a most hospitable summer resort for feathered folk and that their patronage is appreciated.

Did you ever stop to think of what a drab place this city would be if spring and summer should pass without a cheering note from a single bird? If you are one of those fortunate, but rare persons who have a lawn, or a garden tenanted each spring by a host of winged guests, and find a real pleasure in listening to a sudden burst of song from out a shadowed thicket ,or watching the swift flight of a wren overhead ,thought of a birdless summer would be appalling.

As long as hundreds of Lincoln school children make bird houses every spring; protect the birds from harm and feed them when food is hard to find, then Lincoln's trees and shrubbery, parks and play grounds will be inhabited every spring and summer by thousands of birds of countless desciptions. That is the kind of advertising that has made Lincoln so popular as a bird resort.

All over the city, in every elementary school, hundreds of pupils are busily engaged in building bird houses that will serve ,it is hoped, as a home for some little songster. In the photo is seen a group of Bancroft pupils with the bird shelters, bath and food table which will be erected in that community to induce Mr. and Mrs. Robin-redbreast to locate there.

Miss E. Ruth Pyrtle, principal of the Bancroft school, has (devoted much personal effort and time towards inspiring her charges with a love for birds and the out-of-doors generally. Due in a great measure to her leadership, Lincoln has become what may be termed "bird-minded." She derives a great pleasure and satisfaction from birds an dnature study and has succeeded in sharin git with hundreds of with hundreds of her pupils.

It isn't work, her pupils declare. It is fun. Fun just to make the bird houses; but much more fun to find that some homeless bird family has decided to settle down and get its mail there for a while. The result is that around the Bancroft school ,and every school where the pupils show hospitality to birds, bird baths and bird houses are found almost everywhere ,and they aren't tenantless. As a bird resort, Lincoln may not realize on inflated real estate prices, but it is a better city for the presence of thousands of birds which make Lincoln their summer home.

"I'd Like to Be a Dancer!"

Sang Lindy's Fiancee in Verse, "A Slim Persuasive Dancer, A Scarlet Spanish Dancer, If You Please!"

(Exclusive Central Press Dispatch to The Lincoln Star.)

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., April 6—Anne Spencer Morrow, Lindbergh's fiancee, was a lover in poetry long before the world knew her as a lover in fact. Her college verse reveals that.

Some months ago a Central Press dispatch contained her poem, "Height," which appeared in Scribner's magazine, New York. It ended up with:

"Still like a singing lark, I find
Rapture to leave the grass behind.
And sometimes standing in a crowd
My lips are cool against a cloud."

Most surmises are Miss Morrow already was dreaming of Lindy.

But she had many dreams, always looking upward from her tiny height . . . and once more she looked up, to the art of dancing. Here it is disclosed in "Caprice," written for Smith College Monthly, at Northampton, after seeing Raquel Meller, French dancer, at a Springfield, Mass., theater in 1926:

"I should like to be a dancer,
A slim, persuasive dancer,
A scarlet Spanish dancer,
If you please!"
"'But,' he said, "just now we're crowded,
With these Carmens simply crowded—
I can't find,' his forehead clouded,
'Vacancies.'
"'I suppose you want to tango,'
And he sighed—'or a fandango,
Scarlet cigarette and tango,
Scarlet smile—.'
"'In a century or twenty
We may want you, we have plenty,
Just at present—more than plenty
For a while.'"

"Now and again Miss Morrow turned to poetry," says President William Neilson of Smith college.

He describes her as a cultivated, well-bred girl, somewhat diffident in strange company (how like Lindy!), but gay and spirited among her college friends.

Sang Anne:

"Spanning a tree height with my eyes
Suddenly I soared as high
And fixing on a star I grew,
I pushed my head against the blue."

Her mother, who also was a graduate of Smith and is a member of the board of trustees, likewise writes verse for publication.

BELOW THE MASON-DIXON LINE

Elizabethton first came into national prominence because it was chosen by the strategists of the Hoover campaign as the logical point where the republican candidate should deliver his only address to the Southern people.

A sleepy, little town of 3,000 people, tucked away in the mountains of Tennessee, Elizabethton put on her best bib, awoke to the fact that she amounted to something, and put on a show which drew 50,000 people. Twice since then she has been in the national spotlight in the news dispatches. With the announcement by a German syndicate that a $37,000,000 rayon factory would be completed and put into operation shortly, Elizabethton proudly proclaimed she was going someplace and was going to do things. Almost overnight her population increased to 15,000 people, and with the great rayon industry operating full blast she anticipated the federal census of 1930 would reveal more than 20,000 people.

At this time, Elizabethton is again in the public eye. She is having her first taste of labor troubles. It is charged by President Green of the American Federation of Labor that representatives sent to the Tennessee city to organize the rayon workers were compelled to leave town. Five citizens have been arrested upon the complaint of resorting to intimidation and coercion. That bright promise of a few months ago may fade away if the bitterness and misunderstandings created in this labor war are allowed to become permanent.

There are many economic factors which have been driving manufacturing, particularly in the textile lines, from its traditional home in New England.

The rigors of New England climate during the winters, late fall and early spring add greatly to the living expenses of the families who work in the mills of Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Connecticut. Their homes must be heated for several months of the year, and the fuel bill amounts to a most important item. They must have warm, stout clothing and heavy foods to resist the nipping cold and the snows which bury New England under a mantle of white for three or four months each year.

In the South, even from such an outpost as Elizabethton, this is not necessary. The winters are not so cold. Homes are not built so warmly. Fuel is plentiful, with unlimited coal deposits within arm's reach. It is not necessary to buy so much or so heavy clothing. The growing season is much longer than in New England, and these industrial workers, with their comfortable little homes, find it possible to maintain gardens to supplement the food on the table for many months of the year. Under these conditions it is apparent that the southern industrial work has an inherent advantage over his competitor in the North, particularly in New England, which will permit him to live far more comfortably and ideally on smaller wages.

Naturally the manufacturer took these facts into consideration when he decided to remove his plant to the South. But he was even more deeply impressed with the fact that Southern labor was largely unorganized and he might hope to escape some of those costly struggles between employer and employe which have taken place in the textile cities of New England. That, perhaps, was a more impelling motive which sent many mills into the South.

The right of labor to organize has been recognized by both major political parties and by the highest courts in the United States.

It cannot be denied workers in southern mills if those who are employed in the factories are of a mind to pool their interests. It is inevitable that the movement to unionize should be accompanied by a certain amount of agitation. It will require a great deal of fortitude, of patience, of moderation both on the part of employers and employes if this cycle of southern industrial development is to be bridged over without serious troubles.

A glorious vista has opened in the South. Ten years ago she recovered from what had threatened to become permanent wounds received in a Civil war fought more than half a century ago. School and highway programs were adopted and inaugurated. Ambition surged in the breasts of Southern leaders to usher in a new type of civilization than that which grew out of the era of plantation days, its jingling melodies—its carefree indolent, happy-go-lucky atmosphere. With rich resources of timber and coal, with matchless cheap water power, with a soil and a climate of the most bountiful character no section has been striding forward more rapidly. It would be tragic if labor misunderstandings, of which this Elizabethton incident is a forerunner, should in anyway thwart the glorious future which is stretching itself before the South.

THE OBLITERATION OF EASTVIEW.

Money isn't everything.

The village of Eastview in New York has been sold for $700,000, and it is agreed by evexyone that this was a large price for the property, but the people who sold are sad; for they have relinquished their homes, and within a short time they must move from places where many of them, now old men and women, have lived during their entire lives. Here fathers and mothers passed away and in these same homes infants were ushered into the world, which many of these latter have gone forth to conquer.

But the boys and girls who have gone out from Eastview are expecting to return some day, for it is home to them, just as it is to the fathers and mothers who remained behind, tending the flowers in the dooryard year after year and watching in the springtime for the return of the robins, the martins and the catbirds. And since these youngsters went down the Hudson to the great metropolis or journeyed out into the endless west, there have doubtless been many Christmas reunions or golden wedding anniversaries when the boy or girl who had made good in some faraway place came back with wife or husband and their little ones, who for the first time saw grandpa and grandma.

John D. Rockefeller, jr., has done much to bring happiness into this world and is perhaps not to be blamed for wanting the 8,000 acres comprising Eastview to add to his splendid and extensive estate. As has been said, he paid a good price for the property, but there are some things that money cannot buy. Among these are the associations that cling round the home of one's childhood. These never leave the mind of the man who is worthy to bear that title, and no matter where he may wander, let his lot in life be what it may, he hopes some time to return to the place where he first knew mother love.

It is said that John Brown, who keeps one of the village stores, intends to retire. His home stands just behind his place of business and is more than a hundred years old. He was born there; and is it not certain that no other place can ever be home to him? Set before him the most gorgeous of landscapes, beguile his ear with the most entrancing music, still in his mind's eye will rise a homely cottage upon the shore of the majestic Hudson and he will listen ever eagerly for the trill of the oriole or the cardinal.

Near to Eastview lie Tarrytown and Sleepy Hollow, written of so charmingly by Washington Irving, and in his boyhood and youth John Brown and other Eastview boys were familiar with the retreat of every rabbit and knew the location of every bird's nest in that locality. There never was a place so full of thrilling delight.

Now when the boys and girls who have gone out of Eastview think of going home for the Christmas holidays, a pang will come. For the real home—the place that has been considered such ever since senses and reason first co-ordinated, has been swallowed up in the vast Pocantico Hills estate.

No matter what the price, it could not compensate.

BELATED RECOGNITION.

Eleven years ago next September, the great Allied drive against supposedly impregnable German positions in the Argonne forest got underway. One of the first objectives, reached September 27, a day after the initial thrust, was Charpentry, on the outskirts of that tangled jungle which was the Argonne.

Scattered through that section are towns—Charpentry, Very, Cheppy, Varennes, Exermont—whose names will forever revive sharp memories within the gallant legions which doggedly fought their way forward against machine gun nests and embattlements of solid cement. There was desperate, bloody fighting. There were shocking casualities in killed and wounded. There were epic feats of heroism and sublime acts of courage.

The War department has just now accorded recognition to one who deserved it for the gallantry which he displayed in this majestic climax of the World war. He is Don P. Coleman, a sergeant, a non-commissioned officer of the 139th infantry, of the Thirty-fifth division. It was Coleman, who in the fighting around Charpentry, revealing those qualities of leadership which characterize genius on the battlefield, wiped out a blunder.

No doubt the passage of years will reveal hundreds of cases of supreme heroism which passed unnoticed while the struggle raged. It was a battle which brought out the best which is in men.

COARSE STUFF.

Shades of Boss Tweed!

The poor old fellow will probably turn over in his grave if he gets a copy of the affidavits which Senator Smith Brookhart is placing in the congressional records as the chairman of the committee investigating patronage matters in the South.

The republican organization in the South, Senator Brookhart shows by his evidence, collected funds from postmasters by the thousands, sold federal jobs, and revealed a callousness of public decency which would make Tammany even under its old regime a sweet-scented organization.

In Mississippi, 110 postmasters donated $12,000 for the grand old party, but it appears that some of the funds went to the husband of the republican national committee woman of that state. An Arkansas postmaster avers that he paid $378 to the republican committeeman of his state to obtain his job. In Tennessee another federal officeholder in the postal service paid $200 and two hogs while in Alabama a reputable witness said he understood federal appointments were placed on the auction block and went to the highest bidder:

That is the foundation upon which the republican party must build in South. It is what called for the sharp condemnation from Mr. Hoover in his notable statement recently. Either the republican organization nationally must decide to wipe the slate clean, create an entirely new lily white party, or reconcile itself to the fact that the gains recorded in southern states last November were only temporary. The Southern voter is not going to compromise his conscience with what he has recognized to be a notorious scandal for years.

A TEAR FOR GOVERNOR KOHLER.

When Governor Walter Kohler of Wisconsin decided he had accumulated enough millions in industry to warrant giving some of his time to public service, probably he had little idea he would be placed in the embarrassing position which now confronts him.

Wisconsin voted to repeal its prohibition enforcement law last Tuesday by an overwhelming majority.

Within a very short time a bill will be put through both branches of the legislature repealing the state enforcement law. It will go to Governor Kohler for signature and he must either approve it or reject it. There is much unpleasantness in store for him in the event he jumps either way. He cannot overlook the preponderant vote of the citizens of his own state in favor of repeal nor can he forget that only a short time ago President Hoover issued a stirring appeal to the American people to give rigid adherence to the prohibition amendment. Governor Kohler is a warm, devoted admirer of the president. His candidacy was inspired by the desire to strengthen Mr. Hoover's chances of carrying Wisconsin last November—a forlorn chance it seemed—but it was realized, as it was furtherance of his ambition.

Governor Kohler cannot very well escape from the pointed criticism which President Hoover directed at those who winked at the prohibition amendment should he sign the repeal bill. He cannot evade the comment that he is lending himself to a movement to strike a sharp blow at a part of the American constitution. Neither can he get away from the fact that the people who elected him have given him an express mandate to do what the president said was lawless. Certainly no one will envy Governor Kohler his job during the next few weeks when "wets" and "drys" alike will be sticking their fingers in his eyes demanding he come to their rescue.

IT RUNS IN THE FAMILY.

"Senator Allen" says the Atlanta Constitution, "will be the second of the name to represent the Sunflower state in the federal senate, but he will be a distinctly more acceptable and valuable member there than was William Vincent Allen, the populist."

Which leads The Kansas City Star to suggest that it learns something every day. The Star goes on to say that it never knew William V. Allen represented Kansas in the senate and then suggests The Constitution might have had in mind Ingalls J. Peffer, the gentleman who introduced the anti-congressional bill in the nineties. After due research The Star concludes the Atlanta editor referred to William V. Allen, who twice represented Nebraska in the "greatest deliberative body in the world."

Senator Allen did hold a seat in the senate by virtue of Nebraska's favor and he holds the record for long distance speaking even to this day in spite of the competition of such fellers as Blease, "Hi" Johnson, and a score of others. In a filibuster Senator Allen spoke for three days and a half. Our recollections of some of Henry J. Allen's political addresses and after-dinner speeches leads us to believe that in this respect the family name will remain untarnished.

Prohibition Has Its Inning.

Coming Home from Panama.

BY WILL ROGERS.

Well, all I know is just what I read in the papers, Politics, Inaugarations, base ball training, cabinets being sworn, indignation over Vanderbilt book in Reno, Mexican persuit race, and all those things are all as nothing in the press the last week or so compared to what has happened along the prohibition enforcement lines. Sinking that boat down in the Gulf of Mexico come pretty near being another sinking of tea in the Boston Harbor. You know we had a World series with England over that little incident, and when we sunk this one it looked like the Dollar a year men would be out again.

The whole argument was, "How far out away from land was the boat when they first took after it?" The old-time law said three miles was the limit that a Country owned from its shore, then when Prohibition come in we wanted to take in more territory. We was enforcing it so good out as far as three miles that we had a Treaty made with England. For it has always been considered that England practically owns the ocean. So naturally in dealing with anything that comes up regarding water, (especially if it is salt water) why we have to confer with England. Not on account of her importance as a Nation, for perhaps they are no more important than France, or Germany, but its their Navy that makes the difference. Its like a rich man in a Town, he may not really be as important, or know as much as dozens of others, But its his dough that makes the difference.

Country Known By Strength.

You give Equador England's Navy and right away Equadors ambassador would be seated next to the president at official functions, and England would go to the foot where Equador is now. A country is known by its strength, and a man by his Check Book. So we met England and made a treaty with them that would give us about 12 miles to enforce in. In other words we were just enforcing so good that we figured in order to keep the boys from just laying off all the time why we would give them nine more miles. Well we took care of that so well that we met England again and asked for some more of their Ocean, so we drew up a Treaty that give us something like this. "Its our Ocean out as far as a Boat can go in one hours travel." It dident State how the boat was to travel. It dident say whether it was as far as a sailing boat could go in an hour with no wind, or whether it was as far as the same boat could go if it had 25 Wright Whirlwind Engines in it. It was just to be an hour's travel. Now evidently this "I am Alone," this one they sunk, could travel pretty far in an hour, for it went so fast that it took our Coast Guard Cutters the biggest part of a week to catch up with it and sink it. Well they shot at him for days before they could sink the boat. If they had taken all the bulletts they shot at it, and put them on the boat it would have sunk immediately from the weight.

Well, we was just getting over the excitement of all that in the papers when away out in Aurora somewhere they shot a woman, beat up her husband and then their little boy shot one of the officers. Well that caused more arguments than the boat sinking. I dont know which side you are on in that argument. But you got to admire the kid. He come through when his parents were in danger. Whether your parents are good or bad, thats not your business, but stick with 'em when they are in trouble.

Well then to cap it all and make 100 per cent prohibition week why a bunch of Congressmen landed in New York from Panama Canal where they had been at Government expense to see if it really did connect the two Oceans, or was it just propaganda. Well they got back here to New York and they only searched one of their baggage and found four quarts. He had forgot to claim Government privalege. (Thats a gag where if you leave the Country, you can come back with anything you want and they can't search your baggage). The other 14 had claimed it and they got home with theirs. All but Congressman La Guardia, an Italian American (and a good one). He admitted that he had started from down there with a few steins of Grog, but had drank it up before arrival at quarantine, purposely. Now he will be ostracised in Congress for honesty.

Jones Saw Nothing.

Then all this was no more than happening than this fellow Wesley Jones that put in the Woolworth bill 5 and 10, Five years in jail and 10 thousand fine, he up and says that he has never seen any drinking either among Congressman, or too much drinking even among senators. Some young lady interviewed him in Washington and what the man hadent seen is almost remarkable.

On the same day our great author, and dramatist, Booth Tarkington had admitted that he was blind and had been for some time. To read Mr. Tarkington's statement and to read Wesley Jones, (Author of the Jones Bill) you would have thought that it was Jones that was blind, and had been for the cours of his natural life, and you would think Tarkington was the one that could see.

And by the way wasent that wonderful what he said about the blind. (I mean Tarkington, not Jones.) He said it was so wonderful to be blind and not have to look at a lot of things that he dident want to see, wasent that great? What an encouragement to the blind! What a real love for his fellowman!

Well Jones is all right too. He wants to give this fellowman free room and meals for five years, and all he has to pay for it is ten thousand bucks. That's two thousand a year. Well that's about as cheap as you can live outside. Course what I have always thought was that Jones could have improved on his bill by making it Ten and Five. You see if you get ten years in jail and only have to pay five thousand why you get your rent and board five thousand cheaper. Its a great world though, watch her go by.

QUESTION.

Navarre, Ohio.

Why is Satan designated in the Scriptures as the "prince of the power of the air."?

ANSWER.

The air was regarded by the Jews and other ancient people as inhabited by spirits, and more especially evil spirits. In the "Testament of the Twelve Patriarchs," "Beloir" is called a spirit of the air, and in a Jewish writing known as "The Ascension of Isaiah," the firmament is depicted as a region between the earth and the first heaven, filled with contending demons. From these references everywhere current in Biblical times, it is not difficult to understand why Satan should be styled "the prince of the power of the air." The title is now freely bestowed on radio orators.

QUESTION.

Flushing, N. Y.

What has happened to the Hindu named Krishmurati? Was he not heralded as the new Messiah?

ANSWER.

This young gentleman was introdued here by Mrs. Besant as her candidate for that high distinction, but he utterly failed to capture more than an evanescent interest. Just now Krishmurati has no chance. Another and a very different young man, a Sandinavian-American who hails from the prosaic life of the Occident and worships the only Messiah recognized by Christians throughout the world, recently flew across the North Atlantic. Upon Lindbergh, as our messenger of goodwill to Europe and South America, the United States has concentrated its capacity for hero worship.

Mrs. Besant is a gifted lady and one wonders she did not foresee that the somewhat aenemic specimen of Messiahship she exhibited would be entirely foreign to the genius of our citizens. Nor was the he sufficently accredited in India, the land from which he came. It is prolific in gods and goddesses, cults and their devotees, but the spiritual leader of today it patronizes is Mahatma Gandhi.

Here and There

News Drift.

(The Chicago Tribune)

Like the highlands above a great valley, Canada drains into the United States, and the northern half of the continent that in 1921 had 8,788,000 Canadians now has only 9,655,000, or a few less. Canada is shrinking, says an M. P. from Vancouver: men and their money and the products of the earth move south into the giant vortex of living and are absorbed. Like the sun, the United States draws lesser bodies towards its burning core.

Canada is a land of agriculture and minerals and of fish and forests. When crops in the west no longer have the heavy surpluses of the present, Canada will expand again. It is a great potentiality, and as long as rains fall and the black earth of the glaciers remain Canada will be a gracious land where men will wish to live.

Different is the gray Sahara that marks a belt of desolation across all northern Africa. Once this land was green and human beings lived there. For the great ice that lay on Europe left the Sahara a growing place. The races of mankind that later penetrated Europe found beginnings there and on the broad reaches of temperate land that lay across the present Mediterranean bed and on to the Caspian sea. Then the ice withdrew. The sea broke into the Mediterranean area and the Caspian region withered down slowly to the rigid steppes of modern times. Men were dispersed and the early races filtered into Europe.

But Africa has fish as well as camels, and with the coming of British gill nets fishing in the far waters of Nyanza has become an industry. One fish in this great lake at the headwaters of the Nile is new and good to eat. The "ngege" fish is its name, and a fish survey of Lake Victoria Nyanza has been undertaken. Fish are stable animals. Drought never worries them.

And whales flourish as of yore in the polar seas. A Norwegian whaler has returned from four months in the antarctic with 63,000 barrels of oil. Whales, 732 of them, were captured, and the Norse whaler carries the flag of the world's record as a whale killer. The whales, it would seem, need a new Moby Dick.

Meanwhile teachers in Madison, Wis., may not get married, according to an edict from the superintendent's office. Marriage bothers them, the edict indicates, and weddings in school hours or school months strictly are prohibited. From Wisconsin such paternalism is strange, but from whales to the Sahara and to married teachers the world drives on.

Even artists have their tariff problems, and the massive grinding of the mills of time leave them their grist. American painters desire duties on French importations, but what the tariff experts will do remains a question. Art is a virile but tender power that never has survived the thrust and pressures of restriction and outside censorship. Whether the censorship be moral or political or—as these artists ask—ecenomic makes little difference. Tariffs on art will weaken more than help art in America.

Fifty per cent ad valorem on Wagner's Tannhauser would be hard to levy. Sixty per cent on Cezanne's Bathers is hardly artistic.

But the big chimney of the Art institute smokes as usual deep in Grant park. Though the locomotives of the I. C. R. R. may be electrified, as a writer in the Christian Century, says, are smokes on. Perhaps the Art institute can be electrified too.

A New World Figure in Track.

(The Kansas City Star.)

Some question arises whether Claude Bracey of Rice Institute, Houston, Tex., broke any world 100-yard dash records last Friday and Saturday. Friday he ran the distance in 9.5 seconds, and Saturday in 9.4 seconds. But Saturday's mark, two-tenths of a second faster than the accredited world record, probably will not be accepted, because Bracey had a strong wind at his back to abet him. As to Friday's, that remains to be seen. No doubt it will be investigated with microscope, caliper and slide rule, and it may be that young Mr. Bracey will set at naught a record which has stood since that June day in 1906 when D. J. Kelly astounded the world by running 100 yards in 9.6 seconds.

Kelly's record has been equaled nine times, but never officially bettered. Charley Paddock, who is credited with having run the distance in 9.6 five times, ran it three years ago in 9.5 to take the American track record. But that didn't go with the International Amateur Athletic Federation.

Whether Bracey's 9.4 or 9.5 is allowed to stand as a new record, there can be no gainsaying the fact that he is a fast traveling young man. One-tenth of a second is an infinitesimal measurement of time, but let anyone who thinks it isn't important try to shave it off a world's record.

Stubbs of Kansas.

(The Brooklyn Eagle.)

Walter Roscoe Stubbs, former governor of Kansas, who has just died, stands out in political memory as a man of honest convictions, firm purpose and practical ability in getting things done. Some things that he helped do, or tried to do, came undone later, or stayed undone. He lacked the divine gift of being always right in major matters; he was right at least in the essentials; in a belief that things needed doing and in the courage of his convictions.

The noon of his political life coincided with the period of the highest ascendancy of Theodore Roosevelt. He entered active politics at the age of 45, in 1903. He went in as a republican reformer and ultimately went out as a Roosevelt Progressive. The defeat of the Roosevelt third party in 1912 set the limit to Governor Stubbs active political career. It shut him out from the possibility of the senatorship and of the cabinet. But while his day lasted he made one governor of Kansas and himself twice won the governorship of the state.

A vigorous anti-trust man, a persistent opponent of the old-line republican machine in many of its works, he was essentially a combatant in politics. It seems safe at this distant date to chance the guess that if he had won his way to greater power a certain sound practicality in the man would have limited him to such courses as would have benefited the country. He was neither a temperamental subverter nor a dreamer. His hand was firm—some found it heavy—but it was steady. He represented the best things in the middle west; its courage, its directness of purpose and its will to turn ideas into realities.

The Horse on Whose Neck Edmund Burke Wept, Causing Rumors That He Was Insane.

"Burke has gone mad it was said."

BY PRESTON WRIGHT.

A pathetic picture has been preserved of a little drama in which Edmund Burke, the great friend of America, and a horse figured in the declining days of the statesman.

It was after Mr. Burke had retired to his farm at Beaconsfield. Henceforth the capital was not to know him. He had taken his last part in the historic forensic battles which had made his name so prominent in Anglo-Saxon history and which had secured to him a heritage of love and respect and gratitude on this side of the Atlantic.

Up to London from Beaconsfield came a strange rumor. It was whispered about that the gigantic brain which had been as a beacon light to the progressive-minded of two continents was diseased.

Burke had gone mad, it was said. Claims were whispered about that he had been seen going around in his park, kissing his cows and horses.

The incident which gave rise to this unjust fable is meltingly sorrowful. One does not have to be a lover of animals to understand and appreciate it. It is true that Mr. Burke at this period was in a melancholy frame of mind. But whether his reasons was affected it remains for the reader to judge.

In his old age, a disaster had come upon him. His only son had died. In his grief he had with him a daily testimonial of his bereavement in the shape of an old pet horse belonging to his son and which he naturally had inherited.

No treament was too good for this favorite animals, which had been the constant companion of the younger Burke. It was turned loose in the park and left to its own devices. Often in his morning walks, Mr. Burke stopped to greet it and caress it.

The horse would recognize Mr. Burke at a distance and of course at once walked to meet him. On one occasion coming nearer and nearer, he eyed Mr. Burke with the most pleading look of recognition, and said, as plainly as words could have said, "I have lost him, too!"

Then the poor beast deliberately laid its head upon Mr. Burke's bosom. Overwhelmed by this tenderness the illustrious statesman for a moment lost his self-possession and clasping his arms around his son's favorite animal, lifted up that voice which had caused the arches of Westminster hall to echo to the noblest strains within them, and weut aloud."

This affecting story, brought back to London by a man of high station who made it his business to go to Beaconsfield on a journey of investigation, as soon as the rumors of Burke's mental cndition began to spread, quickly reassured the public and gained the retired statesman fresh sympathy in his bereavement.

It is related that when the investigator cautiously broached the subject of the rumors, Burke brought to him for reading several excerpts from his "Letters on Regicide Peace," which he was then writing. This was a sufficient answer to the reports.

Radio Digest

Requirements of Loud Speaker.

A loud speaker should be sensitive to or reproduce equally well all frequencies from 16 to 12,000 cycles per second, 16 cycles being the lowest organ note. It has been found that a frequency range of 30 to about 10,000 cycles per second will give almost perfect reproduction of both speech and music. A speaker which reproduces over the range of 30 to 5,000 cycles will give excellent results.

Fading No Fault of Transmitting Stations.

The mysterious dying of programs cannot be blamed on conditions at transmitting stations, is the opinion of radio scientists of the United States bureau of standards, after carefully studying irregularities of reception. It has been found that the trouble is due in part to the fact that the waves sometimes follow a multiplicity of paths in going from the transmitting to the receiving station. This is due to the varying ionization and other conditions of the atmosphere. Experiments with various combinations of transmitting antennas have shown that conditions at the transmitting station have little efefct on the wave behavior.

To Locate Stations on Short Waves.

With the proper adapter, virtually any receiver can be converted into a shortwave set, with loud speaker volume. Tuning a short-wave receiver is tricky and rather difficult, but, once a listener learns how to do it, he finds it interesting. He will find plenty of harmonics. Time and again he will wait for a station to sign, only to find that it is a "repeat" from some transmitter on the regular broadcast band. He will pick up local stations far more frequently than is enjoyable. He will encounter squeal after squeal that will develop into the rapid-fire chatter of code stations.

Outdoor Antenna for Loop Set.

An outdoor antenna will boost volume and increase the distance range when coupled to a loop set. To make this change the antenna wire cannot be connected directly with the set. They must be coupled by means of a wave trap and energy intercepted by the antenna is transferred to the loop and receiver by induction. Connect the lead-in to a bindin gpost of the wave trap placed close to the side of the loop or resting on the frame. Connect the other binding post of the wave trap to the radiator or cold-water pipe. Tune the set as usual. Then tune the wave trap and move it about in different positions in relation to the loop, but keep it close to the loop. Once the best location is found, the trap need not be moved.

Weather Maps Important for Radio Reception.

It is important that the radio enthusiast consult the daily weather map issued by the local forecaster of the weather bureau to know what may be expected, in a general way, in broadcast reception. The location of highs and lows on the chart show the type of contours which will tend to either mar good reception that night or indicate a very favorable evening. Except in the cast of local thunder storms in the immediate vicinity ,the power of the local stations generally is strong enough to override the level of the grinder or hissing type of static, one of the most annoying and aggravating types to good reception. Grinder static is most pronounced on long distance stations, as the power from a distant point cannot override the static level under certain weather conditions.

For the Notebook.

Tubes used in broadcasting stations cost from $75 to $300 each.

A. C. tubes with defective filaments will cause a receiver to fade and become very noisy after a few minutes of operation. The defective heater wires make and brake the circuit periodically.

The quality of a loud speaker is ofttimes blamed for its poor reproduction, when the trouble is really due to the placement of the speaker causing vases and other objects in the room to vibrate.

Radiograms.

Units of the National Guard of Oklahoma are now linked by radio.

There are more than 200 broadcasting stations in Europe; South America has 62; Australia, 25, and Japan, 7.

More than 80 concerns manufacture radio tubes in the United States. The retail sale of tubes in 1928 reached a total of $110,000,000.

Owners of receiving sets pay a license fee to their respective governments ranging from 5 cents in France to $18 in Salvador. The British tax is $2.45; the German, $5.70; the Australian, $5.85, and the Japanese about $9.

A "Radio University" has been opened at the University of California through Station KEJK at Los Angeles. Listeners are given examinations and chredited as in ordinary extension courses.

TOURISTS WILL VISIT LINCOLN

Arrangements for Stopovers Made by the Burlington Railroad.

From 100 to 300 Passengers to Stop Here Every Sunday.

Beginning Sunday, June 16, and continuing every Sunday thereafter until the close of the summer, from 100 to 300 tournists from all sections of the United States will visit Lincoln under arrangements made by the tourists bureau of the Burlington railroad. They will be here from 2:30 until 5:45 o'clock.

Upon the arrival of the tourists they will be taken in Traction company busses for an inspection of the city and its environs. Included in the tour will be the university and agricultural college campuses, the residential sections, and probably the new state capitol. The hospitals, including the site of the new government insitution, also will be visited. This also will be true of the schools and college campuses in the suburban districts.

To make the tour more appreciative to the guests arrangements are under way to have representatives of the real estate board on each bus. H. P. Kauffman, city passenger agent of the Burlington, and E. R. Heiny, general manager of the tram company, are looking after this part of the arrangements. Those named by the realtors to arrange the itineraries are R. E. Harrington, Harvey Rathbone and L. M. Troup.

The personnel of the group that will accompany the tourists has not been completed, but each will have complimentary bulletins for distribution among the guests. In addition to these there will be statistics and interesting facts about the city and its people.

This is the first time that Lincoln has ever been included in any of the special tourist sightseeing trips conducted every summer by the railroads. "In view of this," it is declared by officials of the chamber of commerce, the real estate board and civic and commercial groups, "Lincoln should rise to the opportunity that is hers. Every citizen of the city should come forward and help maintain its reputation as an ideal hostess."

York College Notes

The best record in the history of the school was made by York college debaters this past season. The teams won seven out of eleven debates. The affirmative team of Onita Stone, Schuler Phillips, and Ual Henshaw won four out of six debates. Of the sixteen judges of the six debates nine awarded them their decisions. The negative team, Wilhelmina Feemster, Homer Crosby, Harlie Allen, Sutton Hice, won three out of five debates. Of the thirteen judges who judged their debates, nine gave them their decisions. The question debated was: "Resolved that the present jury system should be abolished."

At the meeting of the National Educational association in Cleveland, O., recently several York college graduates were present. They were Dr. E. A. Bishop, '11, Dr. Guy T. Buswell, '13, Dr. Wayne Soper, '13, Dr. L. R. Gregor, '17. Dr. Bishop did graduate work in the University of Wisconsin, received his Ph. D. degree from Columbia and at the present time is teacher of sociology in the University of New Hampshire. Dr. Buswell received his M. A. degree and his Ph. D. from Chicago university, and is now professor of educational psychology at Chicago university. Dr. Soper received his degree from Nebraska university and his Ph. D. degree from Columbia and is professor of education in the Pennsylvania State Normal at Westchester, Penn. Gregory received his Ph. D. degree from Columbia university and is now assistant superintendent of schools at Louisville, Ky.

The sophomore class of York college recently enjoyed a party at the home of Miss Cozette Carter, one of the member freshman made the usual attempt to get the "eats" but their plans were frustrated.

Through the efforts of alumni, the gymnasium has been converted into a library.

When the new gym took concrete form the alumni association saw the possibilities of utilizing the old building for the much needed library. A referendum vote of the alumni association gave the approval of the organization. Earl Caldwell, an alumni member residing in York was appointed supervisor.

The building is now completed and very attractive in its new paint, cream and tan walls, and tan curtains. A new system of lighting provides a light over every table and book stack. There are on the balcony twenty study booths, each with a flat top desk. There is also a conference booth on the balcony for debaters. One hundred new chairs have been added. Books and stacks are now being moved and remodeling the old library room for other uses is in progress. It is the plan of the alumni association to remodel the basement of the present library into physical labratory quarters.

Hotel Prayer Book Vow Constitutes Marriage, and Girl Wins Estate

BY KEEN A. RAFERTY.
State Correspondent for Central Press and Star.

BALTIMORE, Md., April 6—Alone in a hotel room in New York City in 1923, Claire Ulrich, dancer, and Charles E. Whitehurst, wealthy Baltimore theater owner, opened a prayer book, took their vows and signed their first names on the book.

Such is the contention of the dancer, and upon the basis of this "ceremony" Miss Ulrich has just been declared the legal widow of the late Mr. Whitehurst under the laws of the state of New York, and has been named in the opinion of the Maryland Court of Appeals as the one to administer his estate of $280,000.

Thus the little dancer who met Whitehurst while she was appearing at the Century theater here when he owned that theater, comes into a fortune to which she has been asserting her right ever since Aug. 6, 1924. At that time she filed a petition declaring herself to be the widow.

Wins Narrowly.

Even in this now favorable decision, however, Mrs. Whitehurst won by only a small margin. The favorable opinion was written by Judge William H. Adkin and five other members of the court concurred in it, while Chief Judge Carroll T. Bond and two others dissented.

Whitehurst died intestate on Jan. 30, 1924, and in February letters of administration upon his estate were granted by the orphans' court of Baltimore to M. Morris Whitehurst and J. Herbert Whitehurst, his brothers, and Mrs. Anna L. Whitehurst Taylor, his mother.

It was a few months after this that Miss Ulrich (or, rather, Mrs. Whitehurst began her court battle and told of the prayer book marriage in the New York hotel. Shortly after her revelation she signed a deed disclaiming any rights to be called the widow, receiving $11,000 in return.

Now the court holds that she does not have to return the $11,000 and that she is Mrs. Whitehurst, under testimony of a New York lawyer, who told the court that the requirement of the New York law is, first, that there be "two parties competent to be married," a man and a woman, and, secondly, "that there be an agreement presently to become and assume the obligations toward each other of husband and wife."

Mrs. Claire J. Ulrich Whitehurst.

PIRATES AHOY! - - By CHARLES B. DRISCOLL

BLACKBEARD'S TREASURE

Blackbeard's treasure has been found! That's sensational news in pirate circles, but such news travels slowly. The actual digging up of a long-sought chest buried by Captain Teach, commonly called Blackbeard, took place during the latter part of last December. I have just recently had the story from a friend of mine in Edenton, North Carolina, and it is confirmed from other reliable sources.

Blackbeard was the most fearsome pirate on the seas during the early years of the eighteenth century. His exploits are mostly pretty well known, even outside the circle of those who particularly fancy the tales of the master pirates. He wore a picturesque black whisker, and presented a terrifying appearance in battle, when it was his custom to load himself down with pistols and knives, brandish a heavy cutlass, and park half a dozen smoking slow-matches in his whiskers. Thus the legend originated that he breathed smoke as he advanced upon his victims. The whole world was afraid of Blackbeard.

On land, however, Captain Teach, or Thatch, or Tinch, as he was variously called, had another personality. He was a jolly good fellow, which nobody dared deny. He lived in and about Edenton, Bath Town and Elizabeth City, North Carolina, and was always well supplied with money, flashy clothes, and beautiful young wives. Tradition says he had fourteen wives to whom he was actually married. When he tired of a wife, he took her for a ride on one of his ships. He generally returned with a new wife.

Governor Eden, of North Carolina, for whom Edenton was named, was a great friend of Captain Teach. In fact, it is of record that the governor personally performed the marriage ceremony for the pirate on one memorable occasion.

Governor Eden, of course, extended his official protection to Blackbeard, and in return was cut in on the profits of the pirate ventures of that worthy seaman. This caused a great scandal throughout the British colonies along the southern part of the eastern American seacoast, and eventually led to drastic action.

It was in June, 1718, that Blackbeard started upon a cruise in company with the wife to whom the governor of North Carolina had married him. She was only sixteen at the time of the marriage, and was the daughter of a planter in the vicinity of Edenton. So bad was the reputation of Teach in the neighborhood that the girl's father and mother at first absolutely forbade the marriage. But when the governor himself appeared at the planter's house and introduced Captain Teach as his very best friend, and stood on the veranda with his arm across the sea captain's shoulders, the planter and his wife decided that they had misjudged this honest mariner.

On the day of the wedding, all officialdom of the colony was present at the governor's house, where the ceremony took place with great display and pomp. The simple-minded planter and his simple-minded wife were overcome with remorse for their offense against the dignity of such a worthy, though rough-looking, gentleman as Captain Teach.

Nobody knows what the sixteen-year-old bride thought about it all. She didn't have much to say. She seemed sad, and not a little terror-stricken.

At the wedding dinner, Blackbeard made an announcement. He pointed to a big iron chest that occupied the center of the long table, and on top of which the wedding cake reposed.

"Tomorrow my bride and I start on our wedding trip," he told the assembled company, which was fairly well drunk at the time. There was a loud huzzah.

"See that chest?" asked the pirate bridegroom.

The company saw it.

"We're taking it along," he said. "When we come back, it's going to be filled right up to the brim with the richest treasure I ever brought into this town!"

Again much cheering, and the good governor stepped out of his place to clap the gigantic pirate upon the back and give him encouragement. Blackbeard scowled, and pushed the governor roughly aside.

"Nobody shares that treasure!" he announced loudly. Then he stood stock still, waiting for someone to challenge his statement. He looked long at the governor, who had returned to his place at the table and was looking hard at his plate.

"Nobody!" shouted Blackbeard.

Blackbeard bossed the job.

Oh, it was a very pleasant dinner. The bride cried nearly the whole time, and the parents of the bride went away without wishing bon voyage to their distinguished son-in-law.

Next day the Queen Anne's Revenge stood for the open sea, with Blackbeard and his bride and the iron chest aboard. During the cruise the bride never once appeared upon deck. Blackbeard was below with her a good deal during the early part of the voyage, but after the vessel was out in the track of commerce, the captain was on deck most of the time, bawling his orders and keeping an eye on discipline.

Half a dozen vessels were taken on the way to Bermuda. One was from Boston, and her the pirate burned, with all her crew on board. This punishment was meted out to a Boston ship because several pirates had been hanged lately in Boston. Mr. Teach had his own ideas of justice.

After four months, the pirate returned to the river anchorage that was his favorite haven.

Blackbeard did not come ashore for the customary celebration. When Governor Eden came to see him aboard ship, Captain Teach was formal and reserved. He had made a trip, yes. He had taken certain prizes, to be sure. But he had not anythnig of importance to report to the governor. He handed the dignified official a wallet, containing interesting gold pieces, and said to him, "I am very busy about this matter and that. Please excuse me from formal parties for a certain period."

"And how is the charming lady, you new wife?" asked Governor Eden.

"I must bid you good evening, governor," said the pirate. And that ended the conversation.

One evening, while the ship with the black flag at her masthead lay at anchor, a small party of Blackbeard's men took ashore the heavy treasure chest that had been the centerpiece at the wedding dinner. They buried it in the sandy expanse called Plum Point, beside the place were Bath Creek empties into Pamlico river.

Blackbeard bossed the job. The chest was set down upon a brick floor, hastily laid, and afterwards it was bricked in. The bricks were laid up in a heavy mortar, mixed by the sailors. The object of the brick structure was—well, what is the object of structures anywhere? To Captain Teach it seemed that this chest, with its precious contents, should be protected from everything, and above all, against the destroying hand of Time.

When the job of covering the chest with two layers of bricks, laid in mortar, was finished, the night had passed, and it was morning. For these men, you must remember, were not bricklayers. They were seamen, engaged in piracy and committed to the principle that everything should be done ship-shape. They didn't know how to lay bricks, but they laid them carefully and neatly, it somewhat slowly.

Then the hole was filled up. Captain Teach stood by, making drawings and notations upon a little map.

The planters had appealed to Governor Spotswood, of Virginia, saying that the pirate Blackbeard had become a scandal in North Carolina, and could not be reached through their own governor. Their appeal was backed up by merchants of many cities.

Governor Spotswood sent out an expedition after Blackbeard, in command of Lieutenant Robert Maynard, and that expedition is a great story in itself. Suffice it to say, within this limited space, that Lieutenant Maynard and his Virginian volunteers won the battle, and sailed home with Blackbeard's fearsome head affixed to the prow of their victorious vessel.

Blackbeard fought, when he was at bay, his most desperate fight. He fell, finally, with twenty-one mortal wounds upon his body.

But Captain Teach was slow about entering the battle. He knew the avenging expedition was coming to engage him, at least twenty-four hours in advance of the beginning of the battle, and he made no move to go out and meet the Virginians, to choose his battle-ground, or to escape without a battle. This negligence on the part of Captain Teach, coupled with his indifference toward his old friend and protector, Governor Eden, leads me to suspect that Blackbeard was not quite his normal self when he returned from his wedding voyage to Bermuda.

Be it noted that no woman was found, dead or alive, aboard Blackbeard's ship, when the Virginians took charge.

For more than two hundred years the legend of Blackbeard's Treasure has persisted in Elizabeth City and Edenton, and in the country round about. During all of that time, romantic individuals have delved and dipped in the sands of Plum Point. It was believed by conservative individuals that every square foot of the Point had been dug over, to a depth of at least twenty feet.

But on December 26 last, two hunters, out for their Christmas vacation shooting, made their way through the thick underbrush that covers part of the Point, and came upon broken brickbats. The crude, hand-made bricks and fragments of bricks, were scattered about in the sand. The hunters, always interested in developments in or near the yellow sands of Plum Point, were instantly attracted by this strange sight—bricks scattered about these uppeopled sands.

They found a great new hole in the earth. Eight feet below the surface, in a wide pit, newly dug, they found the remains of a vault. It was made of ancient hand-made brick, bound by mortar of a loose texture. The vault had been constructed around an iron chest, and the imprint of the iron straps and rivets was retained in the mortar, lavishly applied to all surfaces of the bricks.

Quite recently, probably within the twelve hours preceding the finding of the evidence, some person or persons had dug down to the vault, broken it open through the top and one end, tossed the broken bricks out of the hole, raised the iron chest to the surface, and dragged it along the sand to the bank of the river, where a boat had been tied. The path of the chest from the pit to the boat was clearly marked in the sand.

Three men had been seen walking and working about the Point on Christmas day. They attracted no attention, because hunters and diggers have always been familiar figures in that vicinity, as long as neighbors can remember.

What interests me is this:

What did the advanturers find in Blackbeard's treasure chest?

You may have your own visions of Spanish doubloons. I think they found the skeleton of a young woman—the last Mrs. Teach.

She put her whole heart and soul into her acting and didn't try to just look cute as so many of our own players do.

I am so sorry to hear of Mabel Normand's illness. I always had a great deal of respect for her ability as a comedienne, in spite of the fact that she got mixed up in that Taylor murder case. The public seems so relentless in some cases and so blind in others. I'm sure we have other players who haven't half as good to their credit as Mabel Normand has. I do hope she recovers. It seems like so many of our old favorites like William Russell and Theodore Roberts are passing.

I hope Mary Pickford makes a success in her new type of picture because she is too good to leave the screen like so many of our old favorites seem to have done. I just adore Mary for her sweet self and her good wholesome pictures. I like Doug Fairbanks, too, but get tired of his pictures because they are always the same. We know that he is going to do a lot of jumping around and fighting and will come out victor in the end.

I expect I'll have the whole flock of fans down on me, so I'd better run along with "Critic" and his gang until the bricks give out. Thanks you for the space.

CHUCK.

Dear Movie Editor—I never miss a Sunday reading your column in the Star. I enjoy it very much.

I noticed that one of the fans liked Stan Laurel. I like him, too. Seems like I have been seeing him in comedies forever. How long has he been working in pictures and how old is he?

Will you please give me the names of "Our Gang" kiddies? They are surely cute. Where may I address them?

Who played with Bebe Daniels in 'Feel My Pulse." Was the rum runner in the picture William Powell or William Austin?

Who played with Marion Nixon in "Cream of the Earth?" Marion is one of my favorites.

I'm so sorry Phyllis Haver plans to give up her picture career when she marries. I like her so much that I almost wish she would decide not to marry if it means giving up seeing her before the screen. But then, I suppose she knows what she wants to do so we fans will just have to put up with it.

Did Greta Garbo play with John Gilbert in "Four Walls?" If not, who did? I didn't get to see the picture and I'm just sick over it, because John Gilbert is my ideal actor. I don't see how there can be any comparison between John and Ronald Colman. John is so romantic looking. I can't say that at all for Ronald. He looks like a rather self-satisfied, egotistical little man to me.

Hoping to have my letter answer soon,

BLUE EYED LILY.

Stan is due for a "break" with the fans, since he has been exerting himself to make "whoopee" for picture audiences since 1917. He has spent his etnire life to date on the stage and in motion pictures, and he is now 32 years old.

Write to "Our Gang" at the Hal E. Roach studios, Culver City, Calif. The children who answer "present" to roll call in "Our Gang" at the present time are Joe Cobb, Farina, Jackie Condon, Jay Smith, Harry Speer, Jean Darling, Mildred Kornman, Jean Darling, "Wheezer" and Norman Chaney. Norman is the most recent member of the company. He will make Joe Cobb eat a few extra chocolate creams a day to keep up his weight, as Normal is only forty-seven inches high and weighs 106 pounds. He won the prize sponsored by the Loews Incorporated theaters in Baltimore as the imitator of Joe Cobb.

Richard Arlen was the hero of "Feel My Pulse." William Powell did the "dirty work."

Didn't you recognize Charles Rogers in "Cream of the Earth?"

Joan Crawford and not Greta Garbo was the object of John's affections in "Four Walls."

Apropos the Phyllis Haver lament, it may be a little consolation to you to remember that stars who have given up their careers for matrimony, have sometimes been known to return. Perhaps Friend Husband will grant Phyllis a leave of absence occasionally so that she may appear in a picture now and then.

Dear Movie Editor—I've been having an argument with the girl friend over Warner Oland. I say he is a Chinaman, and she says he isn't, but just makes up to look like one. Which is correct?

He is a very finished actor, in my opinion, regardless of the fact that he is of the Monogilian race. Will you please give us a little information concerning him, as I don't beleive I have ever seen his name in your colums.

We appreciate your courtesy in settling this argument, at least.

JIMMY.

You might just as well go right down now and buy that box of candy Jimmy, because "the girl friend" wins. Mr. Oland is Swedish, and was born at Malmo, Sweden. However, you had a perfect right to think of him as an Oriental, since he usually takes that type of role in pictures.

Mr. Oland was 13 when he first came to this country and as soon as he had learned enough English, he enrolled in a dramatic school. He soon got his first chance on the stage with a little "one horse opera company. His ability as an actor eventually brought him roles with such prominent stars as Nazimova, Miss Allen, Sothern and Marlowe.

His first screen role was with Theda Bara in "Jewels of the Madonna." He is now making talking pictures for Paramount and you will see him soon in "The Insidious Dr. Fu Manchu."

Screen Siftings

Wants Fiddling Hero—There's a big "break" waiting for some young fellow who can act and play the violin. It's the leading role opposite Colleen Moore in her next production, as yet untitled. The story calls for a fiddling hero.

Merger Rumors Denied—There will be no merger of Universal Pictures corporation with any other major film company, despite all rumors to the contrary, according to Carl Laemmle, president of the Universal Pictures corporation. Mr. Laemmle has been an independent producer for the past twenty years. The new season's program will include such elaborate features as "King of Jazz," featuring Paul Whiteman, "The Minstrel Show" and "The Shannons of Broadway." They will be made with both silent and sound versions.

Filming 'Hot Lemonade'—"Hot Lemonade," the new Christie talking comedy would just have to be good with such comedy players as Louise Fazenda, Johnny Arthur, Walter Hiers and Jimmie Harrison in the cast. The picture is based on the stage playlet by Florence Ryerson. Besides dialogue, it will introduce some novel exteriors filmed with the new Western Electric portable recording outfits.

Ann's In Hollywood—Ann Pennington, who has been the star of George White's "Scandals" for the past three years, is now in Hollywood making her first Vitaphone picture, "The Gold Diggers." This is not Miss Pennington's first appearance before the camera, however, as she starred in several silent pictures a few years ago. Such prominent players as Lilyan Tashman, Conway Tearle, Albert Gran, William Bakewell, Helen Foster, Julia Swayne Gordon, and Gertrude Short have already been signed to support the "dancing darling of Broadway" in "The Gold Diggers."

Monte Is Air-Minded—Monte Blue is another player who has become so "air minded" that he prefers that method of getting about to all others. When he was in Europe on his vacation he flew to every major city on his tour, and now he is planning an air trip north as soon as he completes work on "Skin Deep." Mr. Blue vacations between every picture.

Answers to Movie Fans

Dear Movie Editor.—Here I am once more. I just have to squeeze in a little time between classes for a letter to you. I'm a senior this year and it takes a lot of time for my studies.

Of course, the proper thing to do is to announce my favorites, so here they are. Jimmy Hall is just adorable. I wish we could see him more often, and Emil Jannings is wonderful. I saw him in "The Way of All Flesh" a couple of years ago and he has been one of my foremost favorites ever since.

I thought "The Way of All Flesh" was one of the most wonderful pictures ever produced, I wish they would make more like it. Is Emil Jannings married? I suppose so, but have never heard.

Why do we never see Mae Murray any more? Is it true that she has a son? I thought she was so and doll like on the screen. I just loved to see her clothes, too. She surely knew how to wear them.

Who played the part of "Paulette" in "The Cohens and Kelleys in Paris?"

Who had the role of "Annie" with Emil Jannings in "The Street of Sin." She was a very good actress. Fay Wray is cute, but I don't think so much of her acting.

Was it Lewis Stone or Clive Brook who played with Billie Dove in "The Yellow Lily?" I always get the two mixed up. They really don't look so much alike, either.

I must leave now, but will come back later for more, because the questions do pile up.—JUST DOT.

We always like to hear from you, but don't neglect your lessons to write. It will soon be vacation, then you will have plenty of time.

Your supposition is correct, Mr. Jannings is married.

Mae deserted the screen for vaudeville nearly two years ago. Of course, she doesn't work all of the time. Just a few weeks now and then in and about Los Angeles. There's a young son in the Divani family that looks suspiciously like Miss Murray. She is Princess Divani in real life, you know.

Gertrude Astor was "Paulette" in "The Cohens and Kelleys in Paris."

The Russian actress, Baclanova, took the role of "Annie" "The Street of Sin."

Clive Brook, not Lewis Stone, in "The Yellow Lily."

Dear Movie Editor.—Oh, dear! It just makes me tired! I'm with all the other fans who want to see Lon Chaney get the girl just once in the end and not have to turn her over to the younger and better looking man. I like Lon so much that I just hate to see him "left out in the cold" every time. It isn't always that way in real life, either. Look at John Barrymore and Dolores Costello, for example. I know of other cases, too.

I'm wondering what Connie Talmadge is going to do about getting married again. I think it's just too bad if she marries the fellow she has on the string now, and not Buster Collier. Buster is an attractive fellow and deserves to get Connie if he wants her. He certainly has been faithful for a long time.

Will you please give me the names of the 1929 Baby Stars? I know some of them, but can't remember all of them.

Is it true that Gwen Lee is from Nebraska? I heard she was.

I noticed in the paper that Ruth Roland married Ben Bard. Did he ever play in motion pictures, and if so, what one?

Where was Norma Shearer born, and when is her birthday? Is that her real name? I think she is just beautiful. Is she married and is so, to whom?

My letter is getting longer than I intended it should, so I'll say Good-bye.—A MOVIE BUG.

We'll just have to speak to the producers about Lon. He really should have a chance to "get the girl." But after all, who knows, he may live more "happily ever after" without her.

Constance has been known to change her mind upon one or two occasions, but it rather looks now as though she may go to the altar again without Buster.

The "lucky thirteen" favored by the Wampas club this year are: Mona Rico, Ethlyne Clair, Josephine Dunn, Helen Twelvetrees, Doris Hill, Helen Foster, Sally Blane, Caryl Lincoln, Doris Dawson, Jean Arthur, Betty Boyd, Anita Page and Loretta Young.

Miss Lee claims Hastings, Neb., as her home town.

Mr. Bard has played in several pictures. Perhaps you may remember him as "Brissac" in "Seventh Heaven" with Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell.

Norma is Mrs. Irving Thalberg in private. She will have a birthday August 10, that will make her 25. Miss Shearer was born in Montreal ,Canada.

Dear Movie Editor—I wonder why we don't hear more praise for Marion Davies. She is wonderfully attractive and about the best actress we have on the screen. I saw her in "The Patsy" and marveled at the way in which she "took off" such stars as Pola Negri and Lillian Gish.

Evelyn Brent is beautiful. I thought she was excellent in "Interference." I just adore Clive Brook. What nationality is he? Is he married? Is Evelyn Brent married? I'm so thankful for the talkies. I never did care much for pictures, but now that the talkies are here, I want to go to every new show. I hope they are here to stay.

Where was William Powell born and how old is he? He did some real acting in "Interference." Not many who could have handled that role as well as he did. Doris Kenyon certainly is beautiful. I don't know when I've seen such a figure on the screen. I loved to watch her walk up stairs. She did it so gracefully. Is she married and if so, to whom? How tall is she? She looked rather taller than the average player. Was she ever on the stage? Please tell me anything you may know concerning her.

Hoping to see my answer soon, I remain MRS. M. T. L.

Marion has been popular for a number of years, which is no doubt the reason we don't have more Fan letters concerning her. It's the over-night stars that draw the requests for information.

Mr. Brook is English. Yes, there's a Mrs. Brook.

Miss Brent became Mrs. Harry Edwards a few months ago.

Mr. Powell was born in Pittsbugh, Pa. He will be 37 this summer. He had a more sympathetic role in "Interference" than is usually his lot.

Speech! Speech! Miss Kenyon. The applause is deafening. In private life, Doris Kenyon is Mrs. Milton Sills. She is a trifle taller than the average as she measures five-six in her stocking feet.

Miss Kenyon is a talented musician, as well as an actress. She also writes poetry. She went on the stage in Victor Herbert's "Princess Pat", as soon as she completed her education at Columbia university.

She went from the stage to the screen as a player for First National pictures. She appeared opposite her husband in several features, among them "Burning Daylight."

Miss Kenyon has reddish-blonde hair and gray eyes. Syracuse, N. Y., is her home town. You might also be interested in knowing that there is a son and heir in the Sills family.

Dear Movie Editor—It was my good fortune recently to see "The King of Kings" after waiting so long to have the opportunity. I was not disappointed in it, either, as I so often am after waiting such a long time for a picture. It was perfectly wonderful. I thought H. B. Warner was ideal in the role of Jesus. Jacqueline Logan was good, too. So was Victor Varconi. In fact, I liked the whole picture. It would make a good talking picture. I wish they would re-film it and make it into a talking feature.

I only remember the names of the few I mentioned in the cast, and as I lost my program, I'm going to ask you please to tell me who had the role of the little blind girl? Also who was Simon and who Lazarus? I would like to have the names of the Twelve Disciples, too.

I come so often that I will not tarry long today. WILMA.

Muriel MacCormac had the role of "The Blind Girl" in "The King of Kings." Do you mean "Simon" the disciple, or "Simon of Cyrene?" Robert Ellsworth was the former and William Boyd, the latter. Kenneth Thomson played "Lazarus."

The Twelve Disciples were: "Peter," Ernest Torrence; "Judas," Joseph Schildkraut; "James," James Neill; "John," Joseph Striker; "Matthew," Robert Edeson; "Thomas," Sidney D'Albrook; "Andrew," David Imboden; "Philip," Charles Belcher; "Bartholomew," Clayton Packard; "Simon," Robert Ellsworth; "James the less," Charles Requa, and "Thaddeus," John T. Prince.

Mr. Prince, you know, is a former Lincoln resident.

Dear Movie Editor—There may be fans who are glad that Pola Negri has gone back to Europe, but I do not agree with them at all. I think she was one of the most finished players we have ever had on the screen. She was beautiful in a striking way. Individual and different. Not just a "baby doll" type as so many of the players like Nancy Carroll, Sue Carol and such new players are. I really think it's a crime for the American producers to let her return to her own country.

Members of the faculty and their families and a number of friends attended a banquet in the college gymnasium, Friday evening, March 29. The Easter idea predominated in the decorations. Mabel Power, Chadron; Clara Shepherd, McCook; Marjorie Beed, Long Pine; and Harriett Gibson, Chadron, in black and white maid's costumes, assisted as waitresses. Piano and violin music was furnished by Lucile Beamer, Evelyn Wilson, and Eleanor Nylen, Chadron. Contests were held in which prizes were won by Mrs. Leora A. Rustin, Miss Nena G. Hunter, Richard E. Yarndley, Fred H. Denker, Mrs. E. L. Thompson, Miss Agnes M. Allen, C. H. Bright, and Miss Adelaide H. Miller. Dancing concluded the evening's entertainment. Arrangements for the banquet were planned by Miss Ethel L. Delzell of the home economics department and Miss Nelda A. Schmidt of the art department. Kearney Notes

The publication of the list of high ranking students in the Kearney State Teachers college in the form of an honor roll marks the beginning of a new practice at the institution. This honor roll has been designed for use in conjunction with the adopted letter system of grading which will go into effect at the beginning of the summer term of this year. Such an honor roll of students will be published in the Antelope at the end of each quarter and in the catalogue at the end of the year.

The names of students will be placed upon this honor roll when they have earned an average number of scholarship points equal to or above 3.2, provided they have carried at least 12 hours of work during the quarter and have no grade less than B. Only about 5 per cent of the student body will be included at any one time.

The second annual high school music contest is to be held in Kearney April 12 and 13. Some of the cities competing are Grand Island, North Platte, Hastings, Broken Bow, and Kearney.

FIRE AT BEATRICE.

(Special to The Star.)

BEATRICE, Neb., April 6.—The home of R. C. Heffelfinger was damged probably to the extent of $1,000 by fire Friday afternoon while the family was away. The blaze started in the basement from an unknown cause and before the flames were under control some of the furnishings were removed from the building, part of the first floor being destroyed.

Wampas Stars Get Leads.—Doris Hill and Jean Arthur, of the new crop of Baby Wampas Stars, have been given their first important screen parts. Miss Hill has the feminine lead in "The Studio Murder Mystery." Jean Arthur will be seen as the ward of a crafty high-class Chinese, "The Insidious Dr. Fu Manchu."

Screen Siftings

Esther Ralston In Lead.—Esther Ralston is Richard Dix's leading lady for the third time in "The Wheel of Life." Miss Ralston had the feminine lead in "The Lucky Devil" and "The Quarterback" with Mr. Dix about two years ago. "The Wheel of Life" will be Mr. Dix' second talking feature.

Mason Is Leading Man—Le Roy Mason, who appeared opposite Dolores Del Rio in "Revenge," is now leading man opposite Belle Bennett in "The Woman Man Forgot." Mr. Mason made his screen debut in "The Viking," a Technicolor filmplay. He married Rita Carewe, whose father, Edwin Carewe, produced "Revenge."

Returns To Movies—Alice Lake, a former screen star who has been spending her time on the stage in stock and vaudeville recently, is returning to the "fold" again in the screen version of Margaret Mayo's "Twin Beds." It's an all-talking feature under production at the First National studio, with Jack Mulhall and Patsy Ruth Miller as co-stars.

Boyd Takes To Air—William Boyd will take to the air for his next Pathe feature, "The Flying Fool." Russell Gleason, son of James Gleason the well-known playwright, will play the juvenile role opposite Mr. Boyd.

Rehearsing "Thunderbolt"—Rehearsals are underway at the Paramount studios for "Thunderbolt," which Josef von Sternberg will direct. George Bancroft, who recently made his debut as a talking star in "The Wolf of Wall Street," is to play the title role in "Thunderbolt."

Producing Revue—A big talking-picture is underway at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio called, "The M. G. M. Revue of Revues." Harry Rapf, former vaudeville impressario, is producing the revue after the manner of the Follies or George White's "Scandals." Elaborate settings and costumes will be seen. Such players as Conrad Nagel, Cliff Edwards, Anita Page, Bessie Love, Marie Dressler, Polly Moran, Joyce Murray and The Albertina Rasch Ballet will be featured in this new form of screen entertainment.

Another Marriage Film—Another story of modern marriage titled, "You Can't Buy Love" has gone into production at the Universal Studio. An all-star cast headed by Jean Hersholt, Edward Martindale, Charlie Chase and Kathryn Crawford are featured. Of course it wouldn't be a new feature without sound. Arch Heath, who directed "The Melody of Love," is in charge of the action.

Filming Movie In Africa—Duncan Renaldo, who played the part of "Esteban" in "The Bridge of San Luis Rey," has departed for Africa where he will play the role of "Little Peru" in "Trader Horn." W. S. Van Dyke is directing this picture in its original setting. The company expects to stay in the jungles for nearly a year. Edwina Booth will play the principal feminine role.

STEPHEN LEACOCK.

MR. CHAIRMAN, I BEG TO MOVE.

Showing the Wonderful Effectiveness of What Is Called Legislative Procedure.

"There is no doubt," says one of the recent Outlines of the Sidelines of History, "that the adoption of legislative procedure marked a great forward step in the progress of government. It lent to debate an order and precision before unknown; it clarified thought, and restrained the turbulence of argument by the dignity of formal address."

"Quite so. But did it? Let us see how it has worked out in some of the meetings.

I.

The Man Who Started The Trouble: A. D. 1295.

Scene: Ye Chapel of St. Stephen's in Ye Borough of West Minster.

Ye Speaker: An it please ye, my good Knights and Burgesses, sith this is a regular or model parliament it would seem good to me that we frame or—as who should say—draught a set of rules whereby our parlement or, so to speak, our debate, shall be guided: Such as, first or primis, that none shall speak when I am talking; second, that when others speak all shall be in order and form, such that not twenty speak at once as hitherto, but only one, or, so to speak, solus—

Fascinated with the idea, the houses of the King's parliament of Edward I got together and made a set of rules of which the awful consequences are still among us. As witness—

II

The Familiar Scene When the Ladies' Three-Weekly Discussion Club Undertakes Its Annual Discussion of the Club's Finances.

Verbatim Report:

Mrs. A: I'd like to rise—

The Chairman-Woman: I don't believe you can.

Mrs. A: But I am—

The Chair: I mean, I don't think you're in order. There's an amendment to the previous motion still, I think, before us.

Mrs. B: If you mean my amendment, I had something that I want to add to it anyway, but I don't mind leaving it over if Jennie feels—

The Chair (pounding on the table with a mallet): You're out of order.

Mrs. B: I only want to say—

The Chair: You can't. There's a motion still before us and an amendment.

Mrs. C: But can't she withdraw her amendment? I'd like to move that Mrs. B—

The Chair: You've heard the motion ladies? Or no, I beg your pardon, it hasn't been seconded. Doesn't any second it?

Mrs. D: Before you take up that, wouldn't it perhaps be better—

Mrs. A, B, C, and half the alphabet: Order!

Mrs. D: I'm not—

The Alphabet: You are!

The Chair (pounding): Ladies! Ladies!

Mrs. X: I'd like to second the motion, only I'd want to say at the same time that I think that Nellie—

Mrs. Q: Don't you think, Madam Chairman, that we've done enough for one morning? I'm afraid lunch will be utterly overdone if we keep on. I told them one o'clock in the kitchen.

The Chair: Will you move a motion to adjourn?

Mrs. Q: Yes, if it is necessary. All I mean is that lunch—

And so after a hard morning they at last get adjourned.

III

How the Committee of Professors Undertake to Bring in a Report to the Faculty.

The Chairman: Now, gentlemen, you have heard the remit, that this committee is to report on the question of the use of lead pencils in place of pen and ink.

Mrs. A: I'd like to rise. The Chair. I don't believe you can.

Professor A: Mr. Chairman, I should like to ask a question, if I may.

The Chair: I don't believe you can. You see, for the moment there is no business before us, and until we have some definite corpus loquendi as a prima materies there is nothing on which a question could depend.

Professor A: May I perhaps submit a motion?

The Chair (looking in a book of rules and shaking his head: I don't think a motion would lie. It has nothing to lie on.

Professor B: I think, Mr. Chairman, that a motion that the remit be remitted would lie. Then I think Professor A could move for leave to ask a question as arising out of the remit.

Professor C: I don't want to delay the work of the committee, but I cannot agree with Professor B. I do not think that any motion can lie at all until the chair sua sponte, or to put it more simply still, ab origine voluntario, submits the remit to the committee. Till that is done the remit itself is in vacuo.

(General murmus of approval. Professor C has evidently hit out a home-run. And so by careful legislative procedure, crawling forward from cover to cover, they manage to get to Professor A's question.)

The Chair: I think, then, Professor A, that we may now hear your question.

Professor A: What I wish to ask, Mr. Chairman, is the precise sense in which the committee is to understand the word "lead pencil"; or rather, to be more exact, the sense to be attached to the term "lead." The word "pencil," I think, we may accept as a term generally understood. But the word "lead" offers difficulties. Does the remit include colored leads or only black; would this change permit the use of crayons, chalks, and indelible pencils? In other words, I think we must formulate a definition of the word "lead."

The Chair: I think Professor A's remarks are entirely to the point—Ha! Ha! Gentlemen, you must pardon me, I hadn't intended any witticism—to the point, ha! ha!

All the Committee: Ha! Ha! To the point—ha! ha!

The Chairman (wiping his streaming eyes): Order, gentlemen, order. (And when the laughter has all died down). Well, then, we must define the word "lead." Has anybody an encyclopedia here?

Prof. C: Yes, I have one in my pocket.

The Chair: Will some one move that Prof. C read what it says about it?

General murmur: Carried.

Prof. C: "Lead. A mineral carboniferous substance generally found in oleaginous rock. Lead was known to the ancients and was probably (but you can't bet on it) the plumbum of the Romans: whence the word plumb, meaning heavy or straight as in "plumb" line; the word must be distinguished from "plumb," meaning a fruit (Sanskrit, plupp), which originated in Cornith, which was famous for its fruit trees, a growth due no doubt to the favorable breezes from the Aegean, which was perhaps so called from its "Aege" or border as seen in Aegis, the shield carried by the Roman foot-soldier, but carefully to be distinguished from the pelta or shield of the Greek hoplite. The Greeks, in fact, were a great people—"

Prof. X (aged 79, waking up): I think, Mr. Chairman, that our meeting has been sufficiently protracted, and as I think I heard the dormitory dinner-bell—

The Chair: Shall we then defer progress and adjourn till this day six months—

IV.

The Crude Proceedings of Those Who Never Heard of the Model Parliament of Edward I.

The scene is laid in any boardroom where the directors of any great industrial company are making a simple little arrangement not involving more than fifty or sixty million dollars.

The Chairman: Well, then, what we want to do is to split the shares two for one. That's it, isn't it?

Murmurs of "Agreed."

The Chairman: To make 100 millions of the new stock, the holders to take up at par—

Murmurs of "Agreed."

The Chairman (to some one): Will you get that drafted, and will you see about the legislative authorization (they know all about it)—and—that was the only thing this morning, wasn't it? All right, then we'll adjourn till next time, eh?

Youngest Cabinet Lady Keeps Well Occupied With Five Youngsters

Mrs. James J. Davis above; and below, Secretary of Labor and Mrs. Davis and their children.

By BONITA WITT.
(Staff Writer for Central Pressand The Lincoln Star.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 6—Five lively, healthy, rosy-cheeked youngsters take up a great deal of the time of Washington's youngest and also oldest cabinet lady, Mrs. James J. Davis, wife of the secretary of labor. Although she is the youngest in point of age, Mrs. Davis has been a cabinet hostess for nine years, Andrew Mellon, who received a cabinet appointment at the same time as Secretary Davis, is a widower.

In spite of many demands on her time Mrs. Davis refuses to allow any of her social duties to conflict with the upbringing of her children. She passes most of the day with them.

Youthful and curly-headed, she is adored by the young Davis clan —Jane, nine; Jean, seven; Joan, five, and Jewel, three, who hold sway on the third floor of the attractive home on Massachusetts avenue, in a large nursery, filled with toys.

Tiny Joan delights in showing visitors through the playroom and, if big sister isn't looking, she manages to start the motor of a weight reducing contrivance which interests her as much as her dollies, whose number is legion.

James, who is twelve, seldom visits the play spot now.

Jean, whose hobby is dancing, proudly displays her costumes and confides that "mother makes them all." Dainty little ballet dresses testify to the expertness of Mrs. Davis' needle which she often plies despite her many other activities.

Notwithstanding the press of maternal duties, Mrs. Davis takes care of her own correspondence and does considerable entertaining. Last year she received more than a thousand guests.

Before her marriage, in 1914, Mrs. Davis was Miss Jean Rodenbaugh, of Pittsburgh, Pa. Since then many of her summers have been passed at Mooseheart, Ill., where the Loyal Order of Moose maintains a home for widows and their children. Secretary Davis was one of the founders of the home. She is intensely proud of her husband, who rose from a Welsh immigrant iron puddler to a post in the president's cabinet.

Until the appointment of Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur as secretary of the interior, the Davis family was the largest of any cabinet member. The Wilburs also have five children, but the youngest is a boy of fifteen. The others are married.

Uuiversity Notes

V. A. Long, instructor in physics at the University of Nebraska, has accepted a position as instructor at Manchester college, North Manchester, Ind., and will take up his duties there next school year. Mr. Long took his master's degree in physics here last year.

Between 8,000 and 9,000 children attended the winter museum programs this year, it was estimated by Miss Marjorie Shanafelt, curator of visual education at the university. The children's programs were held during twenty-one weeks on Saturday mornings and Sunday afternoons. The attendance at the program for adults, on Sunday afternoons, was slightly lower, the estimated total being 3,000 during the winter.

Although the series was completed with last Sunday's program, Morrill hall will remain open on Sunday afternoons from 2 to 06 o'clock during the remainder of the year.

The museum has purchased a specimen known as a phantom crystal. It is the first of this type in the Nebraska museum. The crystal is of quartz, having a smaller, red, stained crystal of the same general structure on the inside. The second one can be seen easily through the outer transparent crystal. It was found in the mining regions near Eveleth, Minn., by Cyril Wallis, who indicated that he would send some other specimens.

Louis P. Arms, E. E. '13, visited the college of engineering during the week. He is now an engineer with the Winslow Boiler and Engineering Co., Galesburg, Ill.

Henry Margenau, former instructor in physics at the University of Nebraska, has been warded a Sterling fellowship by Yale university and will spend next year in Europe studying in theoretical physics, it was learned by Prof. H. H. Marvin, chairman of the physics department here. Professor Margenau will probably study at the University of Goeltingen in Germany.

Proffessor Margenau took his master's degree in physicas at the University of Nebraska in 1926 and was instructor here the following year. He then went to Yale, serving as instructor there during this school year. He will receive his doctor of philosophy degree this spring.

GROUND PLANE PHONE SYSTEM TO BE INSTALLED

tion will then send the message "up stairs."

The Higher the Better.
Where the stations already have been established pilots are now talking with stations at all elevations up to 12,000 feet altitude. Strangely enough, the pilot and the ground man can each hear the other more distanctly the higher the plane is. It is possible to exchange conversation at heights greater than this but Boeing experiments ended there as tha is above he maximum height at which their planes are required to be flown to cross the mountains on the transcontinental and Pacific coast routes.

On these routes pilots are now being given weather reports, dispatching orders and being told at what points they can get through fog or bad weaher. They also are being advised of the position of other planes on their course and warned against storm zones

The total weight of a radiophone equipment is but 100 pounds. An 8-foot dural antenna is mounted vertically on the top of wing and stream-lined to reduce resistance to wind. It serves for both transmission and reception. Power for the transmitter on the plane is taken from the double voltage generator on he engine. The generator also serves to charge the batteries and operate the plane headlights used for night flights, and landings.

Is Nearly Automatic.
The entire equipment is nearly automatic in operation. It requires no adjusting on the part of the pilot whose attenion can, therefore, be given entirely to the

Insurgents, Attacking With Tanks, Planes, Infantry and Cavalry, Are Stopped and Forced to Withdraw by Deadly Fire From Entrenched Loyalists—Bullets Whizzing Across Border Injure U. S. Soldier, Woman and Girl, While Dropped Bomb Wounds Arizona Man.

(By International News Service.)

Twelve United States army attack planes from Fort Crockett at Galveston and six observation planes from Dodd field at San Antonio, Tex., were ordered late Saturday to proceed to Fort Huachuca, Ariz., near Naco, where several persons were wounded on the American side of the Mexican border Saturday.

Rebels Driven Back.

Meantime authorities in Mexico City reported that the loyalist advance continued on all fronts. It was reported that Gen. J. Gonzalo Escobar, chief of the rebel forces in Chihuahua, arrived in Juarez to purchase supplies.

Federal dispatches said that Gen. Jaime Carrillo occupied Culiacan, capital of Sinaloa, without a struggle.

May Evacuate Whole State.

Federals are advancing slowly on the Santa Rosalia front and it was indicated that the rebels may evacuate the entire state of Chihuahua, in which event the federals would occupy the important cities of Juarez and Chihuahua.

United States officials at Washington were disturbed over reports of clashes in Naco between American and Mexican troops. Friday Secretary of State Stimson requested the war department to instruct General Lassiter to take action to protect the border from future outrages.

MRS. INEZ WARE TAKEN BY DEATH

Descendant of Revolutionary Officer Dies Saturday Afternoon.

Mrs. Inz A. Ware, 84, died at 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Inez A. French, 1742 M street, after a long illness. She had lived in Lincoln twenty-five years.

Mrs. Ware was born in Maine and came to Nebraska in 1904, making her home at Kearney. In 1907 she moved to Lincoln. Mrs. Ware was descended from colonial and revolutionary stock, her maternal great-grandfather, Peter Clinch having fought as a British officer in the Revolutionary war. He was later commandant of Fort Howe in Canada following termination of the war. For his services to the Crown, he was granted a large tract of land at St. George, New Brunswick.

Numbered among her family heirlooms was the military sash worn by General Wolfe at the historic battle of Quebec, when the British troops surprised and captured the city defended by the French under General Montcalm. A pair of silver spurs worn by a Captain Hurleyhie of the British forces in the same battle has also been handed down to the descendants of Peter Clinch.

Besides her daughter, Mrs. French, Mrs. Ware is survived by a son, Arthur H. Ware of Lincoln and a granddaughter, Miss Augusta L. French of Lincoln. The body is being held at Roberts' pending funeral arrangements.

Woman Gets Year in Prison for Selling 25-Cent Bottle Beer

HOUSTON, Tex., April 6—(INS)—Mrs. Beulah Bilton, 25 years old, today was under sentence to a year in the penitentiary for selling a bottle of beer for 25 cents, and another controversial incident has flared up in connection with prohibition enforcement. Mrs. Bilton pleaded guilty yesterday to selling the beer to policeman.

In sentencing the woman, Judge Whit Boyd flayed the law covering the case as unjust and declared the woman did not deserve to go to prison. He said he had alternative under the law but to sentence her.

Had she entered a plea of guilty to murder, burglary, or other felonies, she would have been eligible for a suspended sentence.

"It is a ridiculous case" declared Judge Boyd. "She does not deserve to go to prison. I am convinced that this is the first time she has been in trouble and she deserves clemency."

Rail Consolidation Move Is Approved

WASHINGTON, April 6.—(U. P.)—The interstate commerce commission today granted the Chesapeake & Ohio railway authority to issue 300,000 srares of common stock at par of $100 a share, and to use the proceeds of approximately $30,000,000 to purchase stock of the Pere Marquette railroad at $133.33 a share.

The decision removes all obstacles to consolidation of the two roads, both of which are owned by the Van Sweringen interests, by modifying requirements of an earlier commission decision which the Van Sweringens said were impossible of fulfilment.

Otto Kahn is Silent On Libel Suit Filed By Singer in Gotham

LONDON, April 6—(I. N. S.)—Otto Kahn, internationa lyknown financier, today maintained complete silence regarding the $250,000 libel action filed against him in New York by Rosalinda Morini, a young singer.

Inquest Into Deaths of Two Found in Car is Held Unnecessary

MADISON, Kas., April 6—(U. P.)—An inquest into the deaths of Harry H. Book, 40, oil worker, and Mrs. I. H. Bond, 32, junk dealer's wife, will be unnecessary, Dr. R. W. Moore, coroner, said tonight.

Book and Mrs. Bond were found dead today in a coupe parked on a golf course near here. A note left by Book in his pocket said he had contemplated killing the woman and himself on March 30.

The extent of their friendship was being investigated tonight.

PRAIRIE FIRE IN NORTH KANSAS

Path of Blaze Covered 350 Square Miles; Farms in Ruin.

ATWOOD, Kas., April 6.—(U. P.)—Accounts of miraculous escapes from a prairie fire which raged over almost 350 square miles of northwestern Kansas were brought here tonight by homeless victims.

An incompiete check showed three persons were in critical condition in hospitals and more than a hundred oehers were being treated for burns.

The path of the fire was a blackened waste today, with only piles of ashes to show where hundreds of farms had stood. Several small towns were damaged.

The blaze searted by the ranch of Chauncey Dewey, north of Goodland, Kas., and cut a swath five miles wide and nearly seventy miles long before it could be checked a few miles south of here. Two parallel streams on either side of the blaze prevented its spreading over a wider territory.

Those known to be in hospitals today were Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Miner, young farm couple of near Atwood, and John Walker, a farmer.

The Miners were warned of the approaching fire, but were unable to start their car in time to escape. They took refuge in a pile of rocks but the flames, leaping forty feet high, seared their bodies.

PART OF JOURNEY MADE HORSEBACK

Party Returns to Capital After Nearly 12 Hours' Vacation.

WASHINGTON, April 6—(U. P.)—President and Mrs. Hoover returned at 6:40 p. m., from their first presidential outing, spent in the Virginia wilderness. They were gone from the white house eleven hours and fifty minutes on their brief vacation.

Trail Blazing Expedition.

MADISON, Va., April 6—(U. P.)—Spring lured President and Mrs. Hoover away from the white house today for their first outing since inauguration.

After motoring nearly 100 miles into the beautiful Shenandoah national park district today, Mr. and Mrs. Hoover changed to horseback. The first lady donned a trim riding habit with leather boots and rode side-saddle with the president about two miles over a narrow dirt trail, into the heart of a wilderness.

The Hoovers set out from Washington just before 8 a. m., taking a party of half a dozen intimate friends to search in the Shenandoah park region for a suitable future fishing ground at the headwaters of the Rapidan river. On future trips they probably will carry tents and bung overnight, but today's trip was more of a trail blazing expedition.

The Hoover party drove through the beautiful Virginia valley which skirts the famous Shenandoah appie orchards country. The first blossoms were beginning to burst open under the warm April sun. Spring flowers and leaving shrubs made the trip one of the most beautiful in this section of the country.

Arriving here at Madison, nearly 100 miles from Washington, the party left the large white house lim-

BIG SLAUGHTER OF HOUSE BILLS

Death Overtakes 122 Measures in Hands of Committees.

Much Work Yet to Be Done Before End of Session.

What the representative wing of the Nebraska legislature refused to do earlier in the week it did very spontaneously Saturday afternoon, when a motion by Mr. Spencer to postpone indefinitely 122 bills remaining in the hands of standing committees was adopted with a whoop almost in the twinkling of an eye.

Only appropriation bills held by the finance committee, 28 in number, were saved in the wholesale massacre. These were specifically expected in Spencer's motion.

Ten or a dozen house measures were left on the general file, which escaped the slaughter, along with those which had previously been advanced to third reading.

Henceforth, the house committees except the finance group will give their attention solely to bills which have passed the senate and been sent over to the lower chamber.

The action taken Saturday afternoon usually marks the beginning of the end of the legislative session. It will probably be followed by similar action in the senate within a few days, so that before the end of this week both branches may be rid of all their own bills, except a few stragglers, and free to work upon each other's proposals.

May Run Three Weeks Yet.

However, it is not yet time for the homesick solons to begin packing up their grips preparatory to leaving Lincoln. Those who had fondly hoped to get away this week or next week are doomed to disappointment. The chances are it will take about three weeks to wind up the business that must be handled before final adjournment comes. Members serving their first terms do not realize this, but the old stagers know what to expect. They will be tickled to death if the end of the road is reached by April 25.

Spencer's motion to hasten the date by summarily beheading house bills not yet out of committees drew protests from Representatives Cone and Hunt, but their objections were buried under an avalanche of 'ayes' when Speaker Coulter put the question to a vote.

The list of measures put to death includes a great many which were duplicates of or similar in terms to other bills that have already passed one or both chambers. It contains quite a sprinkling of bills creating new highways, some of which were taken care of in the omnibus highway act H. R. 327.

A number of banking bills were among those put to death. Three

PAY INCREASE DENIED HEADS INSTITUTIONS

H. R. 186, Providing for Larger Salaries, Meets Defeat.

Amendment Concerning Deaf and Blind Schools Also Downed.

A hard-hearted, hard-boiled group of legislators in the representative wing turned thumbs down Saturday on higher pay for the superintendents of state insane hospitals and the warden of the penitentiary. By 35 votes to 24—nearly half of the members being absent for the week end—they killed H. R. 186, taking off the old limit of $2,500 a year, with family living quarters and maintenance in addition, and allowing the board of control to fix the salaries.

In the fees and salaries committee the bill had been amended so as to cut Warden Fenton clear out, while allowing heads of insane hospitals who have served 5 years raise of $2,750 and boosting those with ten years of service up to $3,000.

These changes were quickly vetoed when the house took up the measure. It was then considered in its original form and became the subject of spirited debate.

WIND DAMAGES WHEAT FIELDS

Strong Gale Rages in Western Nebraska Saturday Night.

SIDNEY, Neb., April 6—(U. P.)—A gale that reached a velocity of 50 miles an hour did great damage to wheat fields in this section tonight and caused a dust storm that blinded motorists, making driving hazardous.

County Agent L. D. Willey estimated the damage would total several thousand dollars to the wheat fields and that several hundred acres would have to be reseeded. The storm area extends from 30 miles south of Sidney to 20 miles north.

At times the dust became so thick it was difficult to see more than 30 feet ahead. Several small buildings were reported as being unroofed by the strong wind, which was estimated to be stronger than that which did damage at Beatrice, Norfolk, and Hastings in eastern Nebraska Friday.

NORRIS WRITES IN BITING IRONY ON GANN AFFAIR

Senator Sends Mocking Letter to Stimson on Social Hubub.

SUGGESTS RULING BY WORLD COURT

Asserts Issue Overshadows All Others and World Waiting.

WASHINGTON, April 6—(I. N. S.)—In mocking irony, Senator George W. Norris, republican, Nebraska, today asked Secretary of State Stimson to settle the "extremely important question" of where Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, sister and hostess of Vice President Curtis, should sit at social functions in the capitol.

Corridors which buzzed to excited gossip when the vice president requested reversal of the order of former Secretary of State Kellogg that Mrs. Gann would outrank diplomats only in her own home at the table, gasped as the usually serious insurgent leader Norris poked biting fun at the whole hubub.

"Either decide it without delay or officially report a disagreement on your part to the president of the United States and ask him to submit it to the World court," Norris concluded after a long, semi-serious outline of the case.

The letter called attention to the dinner to be given by Senor Davila, Chilean ambassador, next Thursday night, at which the Chilean has declared he will seat Mrs. Gann according to the ruling of the state department. Regarding this situation the Nebraskan said:

"It is extremely important that society know, without delay, whether the vice president's sister shall sit next to the dark-skinned official from Liberia or whether she shall be on the right or left of the slant-eyed statesman from Shanghai.

Greatest of Issues.

"The League of Nations, the World court, the maintaining of a big navy, the conducting of a war in Nicaragua are all important and may affect the peace of the civilized world." Norris continued, "but they pale into insignificance beside the great question that is now agitat-

COLLEGE VIEW FIGHT PLANNED

Sentiment Strong For Protesting Result of School Bond Vote.

Enemies of Annexation Also Unwilling to Admit Defeat.

College View groups favoring and opposing annexation plan to protest the outcome of the vote in the suburb last Tuesday on the question of issuing bonds of $125,000 for the building of a new high school, it was learned Saturday. In addition the opponents of annexation may seek to have the election on this question declared null.

An injunction will be asked to prohibit the village board from certifying the results of the election, it is said. Affidavits that many persons illegally were denied the right to vote and that others voted who were not qualified to cast their ballots will be filed in support of the petition for an injunction.

The vote on the school bonds was 428 for, and 418 against, but a 51 per cent majority is needed for the proposal to carry. Unless all nine of the mail votes to be counted Monday night favor the bond issue it has lost.

Those citizens who think that a new high school is needed in College View immediately, fear that if the suburb is consolidated with Lincoln a new school building will not be constructed for at least four or five years.

"Lincoln is in no position to give us help," declared Ed. F. Degering. He thinks there was enough irregular voting that the bond issue should have carried but declares that there was a sufficient majority for annexation that there seemed to be "a clear cut case on it."

If Lincoln does not annex College View another vote on the bond issue within the next thirty days is favored by Sam Gatenby, a member of the village school board. If the suburb is consolidated he thinks Lincoln can take care of the problem.

Sam Loomis, a high school teacher and a member of the council, hopes for a recount on the school bond question. The challengers at the polls told voters they must own real estate or have children of school age in order to vote on the bond question according to Mr. Loomis. He says that all persons who have real estate, personal property or who are the wives of husbands of persons possessing real estate, or the parents of children of school age should have been permitted to vote.

DOUBTS WISDOM OF ATTEMPT TO CONTROL LOANS

McFadden Says Reserve Board Has No Right to Fix Rates.

Claims Stock Speculation Not Harming Business or Industry.

PHILADELPHIA, April 6—(U. P.)—Representative Louis T. McFadden Pennsylvania, chairman of the house banking committee, sharply questioned the soundness of the federal reserve board's policy of attempting to suppress excessive stock speculation in an address to Five O'clock club here tonight.

McFadden said the board's policy may cause the public to lose confidence in the stock market, and that the federal reserve management cannot prevent the loaning of call money or the buying and selling of stocks.

"If the present restrictions that are being applied by the system are continued, the high interest rate may make it too expensive for corporations to finance themselves," McFadden said.

"I don't think that it has been shown that any positive harm thru increases of brokers loans is being done to business and industry or to employment. The total amount of rediscounting by member banks, when compared with a year ago, is only slightly above that which was

DENVER, Col., April 6—(U. P.)—Harold I. Weiss, 26, dapper young salesman who killed his wife because she "kept having babies," must hang for her murder. A jury so decided here today after deliberating all night.

The man who told police he shot his wife "because she loved me and I never loved her," heard the verdict in silence.

The slaying occurred the night of February 13. After taking Mrs. Jaffa Weiss, 32, mother of three young children, out for an automobile ride, Weiss chased her through a residence street and shot at her five times. A bullet hit her in the back of the neck, causing death.

LEADERS IN HOUSE ARE DETERMINED TO RESTRICT PROGRAM

Speaker Longworth Insists Work of Special Session, Opening Next Week, Must Be Limited to Agricultual Relief and Tariff Revision, But Senators Feel Differently— McNary Cooperative Marketing Bill Favored by Committees of Both Branches.

WASHINGTON, April 6.—(U. P.)—A dispute between senate and house leaders over the program for the special session of congress beginning a week from Monday has developed as the result of the decision of the house dictators to hold the program to farm relief and tariff revision.

The house leaders, at the instance of Speaker Nicholas Longworth, decided no other than these two subjects could be considered at President Hoover's special session, and have attempted unsuccessfully to persuade the senate negotiators to hold their program within those limits. The senate leaders, including Senator Watson of Indiana, recently elected head of the majority in the upper house, insist that they cannot control under their liberal rules the subjects to be considered.

They want to pass a repeal of the national origins provisions asked by Mr. Hoover and some other legislation.

Plan Prompt Action.

In retaliation, the house leaders have decided upon a straight program. The farm relief bill is to be taken up as the first order of business a week from Wednesday under rules which will require its disposal within a week. The tariff bill then will be considered in the house under the same limited debate restrictions, which will insure final action within two weeks.

Unaided by any of the debate restrictions of the house, the senate leaders are in a quandary. They have proposed that the farm bill should be considered first and hoped the house would have the tariff bill ready for consideration as soon as they finish the farm bill. They find,

Woman Ends Life At Crete, Hanging Self on Bed Post

CRETE, Neb., April 6.—Anna Sobotka, 70, committed suicide here about 11 o'clock Friday night by hanging herself to a bed post, according to County Attorney Dredla. She had been seriously ill for several montrs and desponlency over her condition was believed responsible for her taking her life. She had lived in this country sixteen years and was residing at the time of her death with her daughter, Mary Bokoun. She also is survived by a son in Omaha and a son in Europe. She will be buried Sunday at Wilber after funeral services in Crete.

TWO BUSINESS MEN ACCUSED

Auburn Men Charged With Theft of Large Quantity of Eggs.

(Special to The Star.)

AUBURN, Neb., April 6—With the arrest of two prominent Auburn business men, local authorities expressed the belief Saturday that the "Faster egg theft" case, which officials have been investigating for the past two weeks has been solved.

Charged with the theft of 82 cases of eggs both Roy C. Reed, Burlington ticket agent, and W. D. Dunigan, manager of the Auburn Fruit & Produce Co. were arraigned in County court here Saturday. They waived preliminary hearing. County Judge C. O. Snow fixed bond for each at $2,000 and set April 15 as the date of hearing.

Several prominent Auburn men signed bond for the two defendants. Both Reed and Dunigan are middle aged men and have families living in Auburn.

The car of eggs was loaded at Auburn three weeks ago for shipment to a Falls City concern. The night after the Burlington car had been prepared for shipment it was broken into and the 82 cases of eggs stolen, it is alleged.

For the past two weeks the Burlington has had a special agent here investigating the case.

BELIEVE FARMER TRIED KILL SELF

Lad Jelinek, 28, of Wilbur Found With Bullet Lodged in Brain.

Lad Jelinek, 28-year-old farmer living nine and one-half miles west of Wilber, was in St. Elizabeth's hospital in a critical condition late Saturday night with a bullet from a .22 rifle in his brain as the result of what is believed to have been an attempted suicide early Saturday evening.

Jelinek was discovered lying in a pool of blood about 6:45 Saturday evening by his wife. A .22 rifle lay by his side. Mrs. Jelinek called a doctor, and County Attorney Tom Dredla at Crete was notified. He had his driver take him to Wilber where he picked up Sheriff Henry A. Greer. Dr. H. Hein was just starting and made the trip with them. Dr. R. C. Kirschman arrived just a moment ahead of them.

After the nature of his wound had been determined Jelinek was rushed to Lincoln and taken to St. Elizabeth's hospital where X-rays were taken and he was placed under the care of Dr. C. H. Arnold. X-rays revealed that the bullet which had entered the middle of his forehead had lodged in the center of his brain.

According to County Attorney Dredla, Jelinek and his wife had been in Wilber in the afternoon. They returned to the farm about 3:30 intending to plant some trees, Mrs. Jelinek told Dredla.

Mr. Jelinek went to a neighboring farm to secure a cultivator and brought it home. He was sitting in

Dry Enforcement Has Cost America Quarter of Billion

WASHINGTON, April 6—(U. P.)—Prohibition enforcement by all agencies of the federal government most concerned in that activity during the past nine years will have cost between $250,000,000 and $300,000,000 by June 30, 1929, it was learned today.

This total is made up of prohibition expenditures by various agencies of the treasury department charged with detecting dry law violators and the justice department which prosecutes them.

The largest amount of enforcement of prohibition is spent by the treasury, whose bureau will have expended an aggregate of $170,000,000 for the nine years ending June 30.

REBELS HURLED BACK AT NACO

the American cavalry patrol and the Mexican rebels was made for the purpose of "preventing further accidents" from rebel air aids.

NACO, Ariz., April 6—(U. P.)—Mexican rebels today made another determined but unsuccessful effect to drive the federal garrison out of Naco, Sonora, Mexico.

Firing across the international line, the insurgents first wounded an American soldier and later a woman and a young girl.

Meantime they flew their airplanes over American soil and wounded an American citizen and destroyed American property by dropping a bomb in the center of the business district.

Pvt. Jone Finezee of Troop E, Tenth U. S. cavalry, was shot in the chest by a rebel band when his detachment challenged the insurgents as they came across the international border to get seventeen sacks of bombs, left by a smuggler.

The United States cavalry patrol found the bombs on the American side, three miles east of Naco. Four men remained on guard over the bombs while two others returned to Naco to get a truck.

The men who remained to watch the contraband heard a body of rebels approaching in the semi-darkness. The troopers challenged and the answer was a volley of shots.

Mexicans Flee.

Finezee fell with a bullet in the chest while his companions replied to the rebel fire and the Mexicans fled. Finezee was brought to the army hospital tent here where it was learned he was not seriously hurt.

The general rebel assault on Naco began shortly after this skirmish with the United States patrol.

American residents were driven form their homes and business houses a Mexican woman resident of this town was wounded and Miss Lydia Eberling probably was disfigured for life when a rifle ball struck her in the mouth. The wounded girl is a daughter of William Eberling, well known Naco merchant.

For more than four hours bullets raked the streets of this town and crashed through windows and into residences.

Many citizens sent their families to Bisbee, Ariz., while those remaining here sought refuge behind brick walls and other available shelter.

Bullets From All Sides.

Since the rebels attacked the town across the border from both flanks and from the front the bullets came into this city from every side.

Throughout the engagement rebel planes flew over American soil where hey were safe from federal fire, only to swoop back over the federal lines to drop bombs.

One of the dropped bombs fell in the very heart of the business district here. It struck and destroyed an automobile and shook windows in buildings throughout the town.

Charles Newton, an American garage owner, was struck in the hand by a splinter from the bomb.

Gen. Frank S. Cocheu, in charge of border operations, was here at the time and reported the situation to Washington. At the same time he sent a staff officer with a message of protest to Gen. Fausto Topete, the rebel commander.

When the federal commander, General Gonzalez, refused to agree to a short truce to permit the passage of officer, Capt. T. M. Rundell of the Tenth cavalry deliberately rode between the rebel and federal lines to deliver the protest.

Rebel Leader Gives Promise.

Captain Rundell returned with a letter in which General Topete promised there would be no further bombing. He said that he had instructed his airmen to use only machine guns in the future.

The battle, itself, resulted in a complete victory for the federal garrison. The rebels began the assault with tanks, airplanes, infantry and cavalry.

They were met and stopped by a deadly fire from the entrenched federals. Each succeeding attack was similarly halted.

At times the rebel tanks approached to within a few yards of the trenches, only to be driven off by federal machine gun fire.

The assault continued for four hours with rebel casualties heavy. One entire line of rebel infantry was mowed down by one federal machine gunner.

The insurgents took their dead and wounded with them as they withdrew. The federals claimed more than fifty rebels were killed and many more were wounded.

The federals said they suffered "practically no losses."

During the fighting 300 men arrived to reinforce the garrison at Naco. The men were those interned at Fort Bliss since they fled from Juarez when that city fell to the rebels.

Try To Cross Border.

Once during the battle an American squad under Lieut. R. W. Curtis discovered Mexican rebels attemping to flank federal trenches by approaching from the American side of the border. The rebels were driven back across the line.

Deaths In Three State Storm Rise To Nearly Score

MILWAUKEE, Wis., April 6—(U. P.)—A tornado struck a rural section of southwest Wisconsin tonight. It was the second twister in the state in twenty-four hours.

An unconfirmed report said a man was killed north of Blanchardsville.

Herbery B. Einerson, 25, a farmer, was seriously injured near Argyle when the twister picked him up and carried him 1,500 feet.

All the buildings on ten farms in the territory, were destroyed.

The tornado passed over, but did not strike Cuba City, Belmont, Benton and Argyle ,tearing down telephone poles and trees.

MINNEAPOLIS, April 6—(U. P.)—The casualty list from a tornado which swept Minnesota, Wisconsin and Iowa last night, dipping to wreak its destructive force at intervals, may reach twenty dead, it was estimated tonight.

Reports from towns struck varied, but more bodies were being discovered in debris of the storm which resulted in property damage now placed in the millions. More than sixty were injured.

University of Richmond opens a new stadium in the fall and Johns Hopkins university has been scheduled for the big game on October 12.

Weible Joins Navy

Lewis Weible, son of Mrs. Esther Weible, who left Tuesday to enter the naval training school at San Diego, Calif. He was honored at a farewell luncheon by his mother last Sunday at their home, 1555 R street, when eleven guests were present. They included Mr. and Mrs. Ed Scarborough, Mr. and Mrs. Bart Ellis, Mrs. Margaret Carter, Joe Smith, Miss Harriett Carter, Harvey Lanman, Bob Anderson, Oscar Youngblade and Harley Butler.

postponement, declared that the institution heads are now getting the equivalent of $5,000 a year each, taking into consideration their board lodging, household furnishings and supplies, telephones and other items paid for by the state. He was opposed to opening the doors for what he declared would mean a general increase of salaries from top to bottom in the state institutions, throwing a big additional burden upon the taxpayers.

Compares With Farmers.

"I haven't heard of any bill to shove up the prices of oats, corn and other things the farmer produces and sells," Davis continued.

"Why should we load them down with this extra expense? The institution officials are doing good work, but they are drawing good pay for it in comparison with other people."

Mr. Andrews took an opposite point of view, saying that the "help" in the institutions has all received an advance of at least 50 per cent in pay during recent years, while the supervising and managing officers are on the same basis they were a quarter of a century ago.

This plea was reinforced by Mr. Bishop, who declared the superintendents and the warden are worth to the state two or three times what it pays them for their services.

Mr. Jackman characterized the measure as "a Lancaster county bill" and predicted that if the heads were raised it would mean an increase all along the line.

Liberal to Solon's Mother.

When it came to appropriating $5,000 for the relief of Mrs. Catherine Lowry of Omaha, mother of Representative Vincent Lowry, on account of the fatal shooting of her husband twenty years ago while making an arrest in his capacity as a police officer at South Omaha, the house exhibited more generosity.

Over the protest of Mr. Jackman, who recalled that a bill to provide for the two orphan children of an officer in his home county, Perkins, who was killed in the performance of his duty, had been turned down two years ago, the Lory measure, H. R. 225, was advanced to third reading with only a handful of votes against it.

Speeches in support of the bill were made by Messrs. Johnson (Lancaster), Regan, Cone and several others. Mr. Bowring at first opposed it, but later joined the majority. Jackman's motion for indefinite postponement was beaten on a standing division.

"This is rank discrimination," declared Mr. Jackman. "Anybody who lives in Lincoln or Omaha is taken care of, but people out in the state get no consideration. I promise you that if I am in the legislature two years from now that Perkins county claim will be presented again."

Deaf, Blind Schools Stay Put.

The proposed constitutional amendment transferring the state blind school at Nebraska City and the state deaf school at Omaha from the board of control to the state university regents met its Waterloo during the afternoon. This was Mr. Kehm's bill, H. R. 194, intended to cure the defective procedure last year which caused the same proposition to be declared invalid by the Supreme court, after it had received a majority of the votes cast upon it at the November election.

Mr. Van Kirk offered an amendment substituting a special commission comprising three members appointed by the govenor, with the state superintendent as a fourth member ex officio, instead of the board of regents as the body to manage the two schools. When this was voted down, he drew in another amendment putting them under the state superintendent alone. The house rejected that idea also.

To save the bill from impending defeat, Mr. McKay moved to report progress on it, but a substitute by Mr. Rundle to kill it outright was carried with a large majority.

Against Butter Substitute.

H. R. 561, stiffening the present legal restrictions against imitation butter, was approved for passage after Mr. Burke told the house that the creameries, dairymen and farmers wanted it. The bill is aimed especially, he said, at a Kentucky product, whose chief ingredient is a vegetable oil, which is sold as a cooking compound but is put up to resemble butter and can be used as a substitute for it.

Speaker Coulter wasn't so sure that this might not hit the oleomargerine industry, in which the beef cattle raisers of western Nebraska are interested; but Burke assured him it wouldn't, and Coulter withdrew his motion for indefinite postponement.

Mr. Aurand, a farmer member, didn't think the bill should pass, inasmuch as it would hinder the sale of an article used by poorer people as a substitute for lard, rather than butter.

H. R. 134, requiring Douglas county contractors to report all new buildings constructed by them, as well as alterations and additions to told ones, to the county assessor, was sent to third reading.

The house adjourned at 3:30 p. m. to meet again Monday morning at 10 o'clock.

QUICK PASSAGE OF FARM RELIEF BILL IS LIKELY

however, that plenty of time is permitted for consideration of any legislation which any senator desires to bring up and they are at a loss to find methods to prevent senate consideration of their bills.

Favor McNary Bill.

A poll of the senate agricultural committee taken by the United Press tonight indicated a majority of 10 to 5 in favor of the McNary co-operative marketing bill, providing a revolving fund of $300,000,000 in government funds to be loaned to co-operative organizations so that they might market their products in an orderly manner. A similar majority in the house committee has been assured. This means the McNary bill will be reported as the first order of business in both houses and probably will be passed.

In the senate committee the poll showed those in favor of the bill include:

Republicans: Capper, Kansas; Norbeck, South Dakota; Frazier, North Dakota; Gouid, Maine; Thomas, Idaho, and McNary.

Democrats: Smith, South Carolina; Randall, Louisiana; Kendricks, Wyoming, and the farmer-lobarite, Shipstead.

Norris Expected to Oppose.

Those expected to vote against the bill are:

Norris, Nebraska, republican; and four democrats, Heflin, Alabama; Caraway, Arkansas; Wheeler, Montana, and Thomas, Oklahoma.

The lineup indicates the farm relief bill can be disposed of within the time limit set by the house leaders.

It is expected to pass both the senate and the house within a week after congress convenes, but after its disposal the program of the house and senate leaders diverge. Senators desire to pass a reapportionment bill, consider some prohibition amendments, like that of Tydings for modification of the Jones act, national origins and numerous relief bills.

As matters stand the senate probably will run footloose and free, sitting until August or later while the house cleans up the two major items of business within the first three weeks, taking three day recesses thereafter, which practically amounts to adjournment, with short sessions to act on senate bills and amendments.

Turn To Hoover Again.

WASHINGTON, April 6—(U. P.)—The house agriculture committee tonight appointed a delegation of five to call on President Hoover in a final effort to have him outline the administration's views on farm relief legislation.

The delegation, a sub-committee authorized to write the long awaited agriculture bill, is composed of Representative Purnell, republican, Indiana; Aswell, democrat, Louisiana; Williams, republican, Illinois; Kincheloe, democrat, Kentucky, and Chairman Haugen, republican, Iowa.

Meantime it was decided Secretary of Agriculture Hyde would be asked to appear before the sub-committee to outline further his department's idea in the event Mr. Hoover continues to maintain his silence. Other farm experts of the department will be called into conference from time to time to advise the committee on technical phases.

The senate agriculture committee concluded its farm relief hearings today and Chairman McNary is expected to call at the white house early next week to ascertain the president's views for his committee.

It has been decided, however, that the new senate and house bills will create a federal farm board of not more than seven members who will be paid a salary of from $10,000 to $15,000 annually.

Other features certain to be incorporated include establishment of stabilization corporations to handle surplus production and the appropriation of about $300,000,000 for stabilization work.

HIGHWAY PATROLMAN SLAIN.

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., April 6—(UP)—A quarrel between two youths proved fatal for Rufus Phillips, 46, highway patrolman, here today. The shooting followed a fight between Tony Eden, 27, Evansville, who was shot in the arm and Owen Ross, 22, who disappeared after the shooting. The quarrel started after a midnight dance at Evansville, an Arkansas -Oklahoma border town.

life if the wings caught fire, he slid the plane "into a dangerous sideslip for the entire 1,000 feet and maneuvered the flames away from the wings of the big plane.

Allen made a successful landing and emerged from the flaming craft only a few seconds before the gas tank blew up and demolished the plane. He suffered a severely scorched face.

"Boy, that was one great thrill!" the flier exclaimed as the doctors were working on him. "As soon as the motor began to blaze up the wind whipped the flames back into the cockpit and I couldn't even see what I was doing. I had time to take one look over the side to make the landing and then the flames caught me in the face.

"It was the greatest thrill of my life," he repeated, smiling in spite of his seared face. The physicians said his injury was not serious.

"Unless this decision is expedited very serious interference will result in many important social activities. Until it is known definitely where the vice president's sister is going to sit, it will be impossible for many socially - minded Washingtonians to properly shine in society, in accordance with their social and financial ambitions. Many social functions are awaiting anxiously and brothlessly for your decision.

"Not only is society in our country suffering in suspense, but the question seriously affects our international relations. Your predecessor officially gave notice to all ambassadors assembled in Washington as to just where the vice president's sister should sit and all nations assembled in our capital city have taken official notice. This decision has been appealed from the entire world is watching your official action with intense interest.

Just a Common Citizen.

"I have no personal interest in the decision. I am only interested and I am writing as one of the common, ordinary citizens, who, in a very small way, contributes in the shape of taxes towards the payment and the upkeep of this great mysterious social sham which towers in importance over questions of national and international import. If you delay this decision too long, the common people of America may have their eyes opened and may discover that issues in campaigns, usually fought out along national nad international lines, are second in importance to the social functions of our capital city.

"We have just emerged from a campaign where we talked about the tariff; we argued about farm relief; we secretly and covertly talked about the pope; we were agitated somewhat about world peace questions, the League of Naitons and the World war, but the common people did not seem to realize that these were all bluffs that they were only deceptive surface indications of an agreement about political matters and domestic matters, when as a matter of fact, the real contest, as is now shown by the agitation going on in the civilized world, was whether, if we elected a vice president, who was a widower and whose hostess was to be his married sister, the entire superstructure and underpining of civilized government was going to be shaken to the very foundation with dangers of controversies, even leading to war, until it could be officially determined by you where the vice president's sister should sit at the table or, indeed, whether she should have any dinner.

Rule on Husbands, Too.

While you are deciding this question, you might just as well also decide what is going to happen to the vice president's sister's husband. Just as soon as you have determined where his sister shall sit, you will be confronted at once with the problim of finding a place at the table for her husband.

"Toping that, without further delay, you may relieve official society of the terrible suspense in which it now finds itself, I am,

"Very truly yours,

(Signed "G. W. NORRIS."

HOOVERS SPEND A HAPPY DAY IN VIRGINIA WOODS

ousines and packed into six small cars as the roads from here on into the Shenandoah wilds were impassable to big cars.

Fishing License for Hoover.

At Criglersville, a few miles beyond here, the party halted while Mrs. Hoover went into a cottage at the roadside and changed from her street dress into the riding habit. The president remaining outside in the car, was approached by W. E. Carson, a resident, bearing a Virginia fishing license made out to "Herbert Hoover, Palo Alto, California."

Riding four miles further over the dirt road, the party again halted. Six horses were waiting. Mrs. Hoover, wearing her riding habit, black leather boots and a black turban, mounted her horse and, followed by the president, who still wore his dark business suit and high stiff collar, disappeared into the wilds.

Lunch was carried in small cardboard boxes. Other members of the party were dressed in rough army breeches, puttees, and soft flannel shirts.

Mrs. Hoover was the only woman in the party, but with her knowledge of camping and outdoor life generally she was more than a match for some of the men in the party.

The horseback ride was nearly two miles and led to a spot best described as being five miles from the nearest rural free delivery. At last the president was away from office seekers with nothing around to bother him but the fish.

The president's party included Secretary of Interior Wilbur, Dr. Joel Boone, white house physician, and several friends.

Fairyland of Blossoms.

The drive beyond Madison was over a narrow dirt mountain trail, which winds through the picturesque valley beside the Rapindan river. A mile from Madison the presidential party passed even beyond the limits of the R. F. D., mail routes into a virgin, springtime fairyland of blossome and buds.

The fishing site and picnic grounds was within twenty miles of Montpelier ,the old home of James Madison, and not more than fifty miles from Charlottesville, the site of Thomas Jefferson's famous Monticello. Ideal weather prevailed today.

Practically the entire route to Madison was through historic battlefields of the Civil war. One roadside marker near the Rappahannock crossing memorialized the spot on which Gen. Robert E. Lee last reviewed the confederate cavalry; another marked the last major engagement of Stonewall Jackson's forces.

Mrs. Hoover was delighted by the colorful scenes spread before her as she sped through acres of white apple blossoms splotched with purples, reds and delicate spring greens in the Rapidan valley. The outing in the woods beyond Criglersville was a three-hour picnic and the party started back for Washington shortly before 3 p. m.

Liner Paris Is Still Aground

NEW YORK, April 6—(U. P.)—Attempts to float the French liner Paris, which went ashore at Bay Ridge in New York harbor today, were unsuccessful tonight. Approximately 1,000 passengers were aboard.

Fifteen tugs attempted to pull the liner from a shoal onto which it had run, but even with the assistance of flood tide, the liner held fast.

The agents, when the tugs were unable to move the ship, established a chain of motorboats to carry passengers ashore for the night. Another attempt to float the vessel will be made tomorrow. Passengers had their choice of remaining aboard or going ashore.

more of the measures backed by the Nebraska league of municipalities saw their finish. These were H. R. Nos. 20, 21 and 28.

116—Lukens' luxury tax bill on cigarets soft drinks, malt and syrups, and flavoring extracts.

Objects to Price Fixing.

"I do not consider that the federal reserve management has any authority to fix prices except insofar as authority is granted to them to manage the total volume of credit and to maintain the gold standard, and I believe that is corporate profits do not warrant the present price levels of securities that the market will, within itself, correct this situation if given the opportunity.

"In the present precipitate fall on the stock market it was interesting to note that the prices of commodities fell in unison with the price of stocks. The average ration is 71 per cent, whereas the legal requirement is 35 per cent on outstanding federal reserve notes and 40 per cent on deposits, so I do not see why we need to be alarmed about reserve ratio."

SMALL TRADERS FRIGHTENED OUT

Professionals Do Bulk of Trading on Exchange Past Week.

Business Reviews Express Satisfaction Over First Quarter.

BY W. S. COUSINS.

NEW YORK, April 6—(I. N. S.)—The federal reserve board's review of credit conditions was a very much misunderstood document, and as a result the movements of stock prices on all the important exchanges of the country were confused and irregular.

Many of the small traders who were forced or frightened out of the market by last Tuesdya's big smash have remained on the outside, and the professionals had matters pretty much to themselves on the New York stock exchange this week.

The return flow of funds to banks in the latter part of the week had the natural effect of easing the strain in the money market. Call money, which started the week at 15 per cent, wound up the six-day period at 6 per cent, with offerings at 5 per cent in the outside market. The reserve board complains about the lack of funds and high money rates as a money hardship upon the business corporations, but industrial concerns are loaning nearly half of the six billion dollars total of speculative loans on the stock exchange, and the same corporations are receiving the 10 to 20 per cent interest charges exacted therefrom.

End Week at Peak of Rise.

Industrial stocks started the week 2 to 10 points below the previous week's close and ended the week at the peak of steady increase. Exceptions were seen principally in the oil shares, which received a setback in the department of justice's interpretation of the anti-trust laws and the statutes defining "restraint of trade."

Week end reviews of business and finance expressed general satisfaction with the amount of business placed on the books of the industrial corporations in the first quarter of 1929. Earnings of the representative manufacturers and distributors of the products of American factories in this period have been quite satisfactory, running from 20 to 25 per cent above the same months last year.

In many industries, production for March and for the first quarter set new high records for the periods, and the recessions in a few lines, most of them seasonal, are not regarded seriously. A steady decreaese in the number of business failures and in the total liabilities of failed concerns, is also a favorable commentary.

A Moderate Decline.

Bradstreet's reported a lateness in spring planting of cotton and other crops due to weather conditions. Most farm products declined moderately this week, continuing tendencies noted in the latter part of March.

Unfilled orders for railroad locomotives at the end of March were 488, compared with 178 on the same date a year ago. Fabricated structural lettings in the last five weeks have averaged 60 per cent above last year's average for the same period. Advance orders in the copper trade are running the best in the whole post-war period and the outlook is bright.

Wheat Closes Lower.

CHICAGO, April 6—(I. N. S.)—Wheat closed ½c lower on the Chicago board of trade today, with heavy selling on weakness at Liverpool and reports of general rains or snow in the Canadian west. May sold within less than 1c of the lowest price on the crop. Corn was unchanged to ¼c off and oats ⅛ to ⅜c up.

For the week wheat was off 2¾ to 3⅞c, corn 3⅞ to 4⅝c and oats ¼c lower to ¼c higher.

Bearish news and liquidation by longs depressed the wheat market. Short covering was active at times, but offerings generally proved too heavy for the demand. Crop news in this country was favorable with moisture conditions satisfactory and the winter wheat stand bright. Private estimates suggested yields of from 563,000,000 bushels to 570,000,000 bushels. Winter killing was lighter than anticipated. Flour business is quiet. Weather conditions in the Canadian northwest were generally favorable and all indications point to the largest wheat acreage ever known in the three provinces. Cables were irregular and export demand moderate.

Corn slumped with wheat. Liquidation was heavy and buying power light. The cash situation continues unchanged. No new export business was reported.

Livestock Score Gains.

CHICAGO, April 6—(I. N. S.)—All classes of livestock scored gains the past week. Hogs were up 25c, steers 50 to 75c, cows and heifers 25c. Lambs added 25c.

Hogs sold unevenly during the week. Light receipts early pushed up prices, top being $12.05, but on later trading prices eased only to go higher again near the week's finish. Dressed pork in the east had found a rather draggy outlet and as a result local shipping orders declined somewhat, having much effect on the market. Receipts for the week were 119,000 against 143,000 last week and 139,000 a year ago. Late top was $11.80, with many good grades at $11.55 to $11.75. Good heavy hogs were quoted at $11.25 to $11.50.

An unusually light cattle run of 35,000 this week, together with the termination of the Lenten season, caused prices on all killing classes to soar. Top for the week reached $14.75 for weighty cattle, with many selling at $14 to $14.50. A week ago arrivals numbered 46,000 and a year ago 37,000.

Fat cows ranged from $6.75 to $10.50, with an active trade. Heavy heifers moved at $9 to $12. A reduction in the supply of calves resulted in an advance of $1 to $2 in prices. Most of the calves ranged from $14 to $17.

Sheep receipts for the week were 67,000 against 61,000 last week and 67,000 a year ago. Demand was active. The best lambs sold at $17.75. Culls brought $14 to $15. Ewes ranged from $5 to $11.50.

Chicago Cotton Lower.

CHICAGO, April 6—(I. N. S.)—Cotton closed 36 to 48 points lower today. Trade was light and sentiment mixed.

Government weekly weather report was favorable. The boll weevil report from Washington indicated "Boll weevil emergence from 1929 season is indicated at 101.7 per cent per ton of moss in Texas against 74.5 per cent in 1929." The Liverpool cotton market was higher most of the week.

Closing prices here today were 6 to 8 points lower, May 19.80, July 19.88, October 19.72, December and January 19.75.

HOOVER'S DRY MOVES BEING EMBARRASSED

Action of Wisconsin, Violence of Agents Worrying Drys.

Wet Leaders Jubilant Over Events Since Inauguration.

WASHINGTON, April 6—(I. N. S.)—President Hoover's efforts to find some solution of the prohibition puzzle, and to secure more universal respect for the dry laws, have been considerably embarrassed during the first month of his presidency by a remarkable series of recent prohibition "incidents" calculated to inflame public discussion.

At the very time Mr. Hoover has been casting around for a "high type" commission to investigate all angles of the law enforcement situation and recommend remedies, Wisconsin voted this week to repeal her state enforcement act, and similar action has been started in the legislatures of Illinois and Missouri. And New York and Maryland legislatures again refused to pass an enforcement code.

Thus five of the largest and most populous states of the union, which cast their votes for Mr. Hoover last November, are either off the prohibition reservation, or are threatening to get off and leave it to the federal government to enforce the Volstead act.

Events Since Inauguration.

These "incidents" have all taken place since Mr. Hoover stood bareheaded in the rain on the steps of the cbapitol inauguration day and appealed to the country to have more respect for the eighteenth amendment.

Taken in conjunction with the public clamor over the Jones act; the killing of the Aurora mother by state agents who invaded a home without a legal warrant; the sinking of the Canadian schooner, I'm Alone, starting a controversy with England, France and Canada; the indictment of one dry congressman for having a trunk filled with liquor; the narrow escape of another; the boarding and searching at pistol point of Stuyvesant Fish's yacht in New Rork harbor; then admission by the treasury that federal agents have killed sixteen citizens in recent months—these and lesser incidents within the month have combined to keep prohibition frothing on the front pages of the newspapers daily.

Prohibition Still Issue.

It is beginning to dawn upon administration leaders that the wet-and-dry issue, which some fondly hoped was settled at the polls last November, is still a very lively corpse.

The events since March 4 have spurred both the wets and drys to greater endeavor.

Two national prominent women, Mrs. Charles H. Sabin of New York, and Mrs. George Orvis of Vermont, have resigned from the republican national committee, on which they served for years, in order to work for modification of the present dry laws.

The association against the prohibition amendment, well financed and including in its membership some of the outstanding industrialists of the country, took a prominent part in the Wisconsin referendum, and is planning more intensive work in other states.

Drys Also Industrious.

The drys are no less industrious. They held a week's jubilee meetings in Washington immediately after inauguration, but perplexed and somewhat alarmed by the events of the last few weeks, they are hard at work again.

Both wets and drys are eagerly awaiting appointment of the president's prohibition investigating commission.

Mr. Hoover is understood to be experiencing considerable difficulty in obtaining the services of the men he wants. He realizes that every member of the commission is going to be subjected to the most searching scrutiny as to his views on prohibition, his record, and his public utterances on the subject. It is his hope to obtain a commission that will command the respect and confidence of the public at large, whatever the professional wets and drys may think of it.

Louisville Has New Telephone System

Latest Improvements Installed So That Expansion May Be Properly Cared For.

(Special to The Star.)

LOUISVILLE, Neb., April 6—Louisville's telephone system was cut over to a new common battery system.

Due to an urgent need for improved telephone service and because of the growth that has taken place in the last year, Louisville has required an expansion of service, resulting in new telephone instruments for all subscribers and a new two position full feature common battery switchboard. This will do away with the hand ringing as a means of summoning "central."

The building has been remodeled and rearranged to accommodate the new facilities. The operating room has been enlarged. More than 180 new instruments have been installed.

Dealock Reached In DeKing Inquiry

AURORA, Ill., April 6—(U. P.)—Investigation of the dry raid slaying of Mrs. Lillian DeKing reached deadlock today when State's Attorney George D. Carbary appealed to a Circuit court for relief from an order issued by Attorney General Oscar E. Carlstrom that he must prosecute Deputy Sheriff Roy Smith, one of his own dry raiders, for killing Mrs. DeKing.

Judge John K. Newall, who received the petition several days ago, issued an order that Carlstrom supplant Carbary, which will be presented with another petition Monday asking for a special prosecutor. The petition will be presented by attorneys representing Joseph DeKing, husband of the slain woman.

Prior to receiving a letter from Charlstrom stating that he would not remove Carbary from the prosecution, Judge Newall said he would name a special prosecutor.

It was thought unlikely that Judge Newall would defy the attorney general and remove Carbary from the case.

Carbary also will present evidence to the grand jury concerning Eugene Boyd Fairchild, dry investigator, arrested on a charge of perjury. A coroner's jury recommended that the grand jury inquire into Fairchild's false affidavit about purchase of liquor from Mrs. DeKing. According to custom, Carbry will be obliged to investigate that angle of the case also.

Fairchild was released in bonds of $1,500 in order to give him time to employ legal counsel.

TRAFFIC BUREAU ANNOUNCES NEW FREIGHT RATES

The chamber of commerce traffic bureau Saturday announced the following changes in freight tariffs to Lincoln:

Brick in carload lots from Kansas City, 12 cents per 100 pounds; Atchison, 11 cents; and St. Joseph, 11 cents. The previous rate was 10 cents. The new rate is effective April 15.

Effective April 27 the rate on clay will be 40 cents per 100 pounds from Aurora and Ivie, Utah. The rate now is 50 cents. On this same date radiators and boilers in carloads will cost $1.25 per 100 from Lincoln to Durango and Farmington, N. M. This is a drop from $1.41½ and $1.70.

A rate of 47 cents has been in operation on flax seed in carlots from gulf ports, but it expires July 8. The former rate was 67 cents.

There will be a drop of 7 cents a hundred pounds on pipe, cast iron and fittings in less than car lots from Birmingham, Ala. The old rate of $1.15½ does not change until May 5.

A rate of 26 cents will be published soon on sawdust from Cloquet, Minn. The rate now is 28½ cents.

Effective May 1 a new rate will apply from interior Iowa stations on the Chicago & Northwestern line to Lincoln. It provides for the application of eastbound Mississippi river rates as maximum on westbound traffic. This will result in a saving of ½ cent, 4½, 4 and 2 cents on first, second, third and fourth class freight.

HOMESTEADERS FACE CONTESTS

Four Important Cases Soon to Be Tried at Alliance.

(Special to The Star.)

ALLIANCE, Neb., April 6—There are four outstanding homestead cases on the docket for trial before J. H. H. Hewett, register of the government land office here. In the case of the United States vs. Floyd L. Youeney, it is charged on the part of the government that the defendant failed to make sufficient improvements on his homestead claim of 477 acres in Cherry county. Improvements must amount to a value of $1.25 per year for each acre of land.

A case of the government against Charles Dalton is similar to the Youeney action. It is alleged that Mr. Dalton failed to make enough improvements on his homestead entry. He made entry on 320 acres of Cherry county ranch land.

A large portion of land in Knox county that was caused by the Missouri river changing its course is the cause of two contests for homestead claims, on file with Judge Hewett here. One contest is between Evelina Johnson and Edward Tonner for 77 acres in Knox county, and another contest case is between John S. Honey and Minnie M. Davis over 144 acres of land in that county. Mary Goin has filed for homestead on 127 acres of this land. Depositors will be taken in these three cases in the Knox county district court.

Wilkins Will Explore Earth's Axis at Pole

Plans Undersea Study to Determine If Depression Extends Through World.

LOS ANGELES, April 6—(U. P.) Capt. Sir Hubert Wilkins, famed polar explorer who flew here from New York to discuss plans for a submarine cruise in Arctic seas and who intends to fly over Antarctic regions within the next few months, will leave by airplane for Salt Lake City tomorrow, he announced today.

Sir Hubert, who has flown successfully over both Arctic and Antarctic oceans, layed preliminary plans for his proposed submarine trip to the North Pole to chart unknown drifts and depths and determine whether or not the earth's axis is a wide depression whose abysmal depths extend from pole to pole, as claimed by scientists.

A specially constructed undersea craft, with wheels and contrivance to allow men to emerge in diving suits to drag it free of obstacles beneath the frozen seas and numerous other protective features which would enable it to overcome obstacles such as never before have been encountered, would be necessary for the contemplated cruise, the explorer declared.

"Although I am here to discuss plans for the submarine trip," Sir Hubert said. "It must be delayed until some time next year. In a few months I shall start on a second trip of exploration in the Antarctic and ,of course, other expeditions must await my return—if I do return.

"Definite plans are being made for the submarine venture," he continued. "There is nothing new in the idea, although the combination of difficulties to be met and overcome in the polar seas will offer a greater test than has ever before been accorded a submarine."

Sir Hubert was confident of success in the proposed venture.

"The plan has been in my mind for fifteen years and has been analyzed in detail," he concluded.

Dr. Pool to Direct Biology Course In Rocky Mountains

The botany department of the University of Nebraska will offer biology courses in the Rocky mountains during the first six weeks of the 1929 summer session. The work in the mountains will be under the personal direction of Prof. Raymond J. Pool, chairman of the department of botany, who has conducted similar projects for the last three summers.

The principal course, general in scope, will utilize the varied resources of the mountain environment to present a broad view of modern biology, with particular reference to flowering plants and forests. An advanced course will be available for those with considerable training in plant taxonomy or ecology and who will be able to work independently or with minimum guidance. Registration in the former course is limited to thirty, in the latter to ten.

They got behind the wheel . . got the facts . . and bought BUICKS!

Among the scores of thousands of men and women who purchase Buicks year after year . . . who know Buick through and through and therefore never think of buying any other automobile . . . there is every bit as much enthusiasm over the performance of this newest Buick as among the thousands who are buying Buicks for the first time!

For instance, the owner quoted here goes on to say: "The way the new Buick climbs the steepest hills and passes other cars is simply marvelous." And this owner of fifteen Buicks adds significantly, "We have not had a minute's trouble with the car, which is typical of Buick!"

"I have owned fifteen Buicks since 1910 . . . . but have never driven any Buick or any other car that compared with this new Buick in power, smoothness and reliability."

Mr. J. M., San Angelo, Texas (name on request)

One fact is clear—one fact is as plain as noonday: This masterly Buick provides a revolutionary order of performance—embodies elements of power, getaway, swiftness, smoothness and reliability infinitely superior to anything that has gone before.

Prove this to your own satisfaction! Drive a Buick! See for yourself why more than twice as many people purchase Buicks as any other automobile priced above $1200. Then you'll know that you should have a Buick, too!

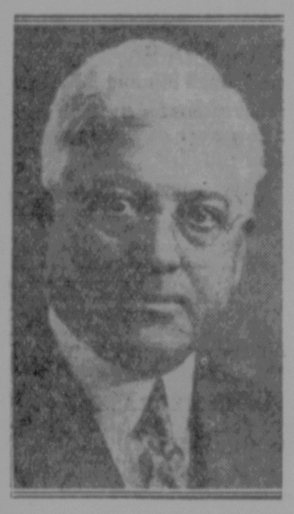
CANDIDATE FOR MAYOR



Wise Economy

City expenditures must be kept within the amount allowed by the charter. This can be done by wise economy.

Development of Public Parks and Playgrounds

The city government should foster the growth and development of the city both in business and as a beautiful and wholesome place in which to live. Our new parks should be developed, but the smaller close-in parks, used mostly for children's playgrounds must not be neglected.

Better Use of Municipally-owned Utilities

All municipally owned utilities should be maintained and operated for the benefit of the people and the development of the city.

Full Enforcement of Laws

All laws should be strictly and impartially enforced. Dishonesty in public office must not go unpunished.

Primaries Tuesday April 9th

has served this community ably and faithfully for twenty-seven years. There is no one who knows our city better than he. In the twenty-seven years he directed the welfare work there was not one dollar misspent or unaccounted for. No man in public life was able to make public dollars go farther in meeting the demands of the service and carrying out a constructive and progressive program of social work.

Lincoln needs to practice economy in its city affairs and must do so until a charter amendment makes it possible to be more liberal in certain directions.

Believing in his ability and integrity we recommend him to the voters as a splendid man to be elected as a City Commissioner.

ALLEN P. COWGILL
Candidate for City Commissioner.

Qualified To Handle Any Department

If elected he will devote his efforts as far as possible to this constructive program:

1. An effort to make the present 6.75 mill city tax levy pay the current operating expenses of the city government and leave from $50,000 to $70,000 a year for permanent public improvements
(a) A fire station for South Lincoln.
(b) A Public Safety Building and a garage for city motor cars and trucks on Market Square. (Allen Cowgill believes that these buildings should be built in five sections as the money becomes available, avoiding a bond issue and payment of interest thereon.)

2. A well planned budget that shows the taxpayers clearly what their money is to be spent for during the coming fiscal year.

3. An annual inventory and check of city property and tools as well as an audit of city funds.

4. An effort by the City Council to have available a portion of the auto license fees and gasoline tax money, estimated to be $280,000 a year, for the maintenance of city streets rather than the improvement of farm values in Nebraska.

5. Complete plans and specifications drawn and submitted to the taxpayers for public discussion of the proposed buildings to be erected on Market Square.

6. A uniform receipt system for all city agencies collecting money, to be controlled by either the Clerk or City Treasurer, and a daily audit of such agencies.

7. A definite policy adapted by the Council to stop the use of public motor cars for private purposes.

8. An attempt to have the City Council observe the provisions of the City Charter concerning the $500,000 limitation by levying taxes on the correct assessed valuation instead of a lesser valuation arbitrarily and illegally assumed by the Council.

9. An eight hour working day for all City Hall employees.

Favoritism at the city hall must be stopped.

Our citizens were shocked and humiliated at the manner the city council recently handled the misuse of city funds. Dishonesty in public office must not go unpunished and the city must not compromise with wrong doing. Our municipally owned utilities were established by vote of the people and must be honestly administered for the protection of our people.

All parks should be developed but first attention should be given to close in parks easily accessible to those who most need parks.

By careful and intelligent use of city money it will be possible to save enough from the present tax levy for a new city building on North Tenth street to be built one unit at a time; also for fire barn in South Lincoln.

I favor impartial enforcement of all laws and pledge myself to that end.

LINK DISCUSSES TREE PLANTING

Beautification Program for State Outlined In an Address.

Myriad of Organizations Take Part in State Arbor Efforts.

"Tree Planting and Landscape Beautification" was the subject of a talk given Saturday morning over KFAB by J. T. Link, as part of a program being carried on over the state to encourage beautification of the state through tree development.

The address follows:

"The value of trees has always been recognized and more so in recent years, as is shown by the establishment of an Arbor day in every state in the union and in all civilized countries of the world. Each year the president of the United States proclaims an American Forest week in which he calls upon all citizens to consider thoughtfully and constructfully our forest needs.

"In 1926 Governor McMullen inaugurated what is known as the Nebraska plan of reforestation. Last year the public schools under the direction of Supt. Charles W. Taylor took a leading part in the tree planting program. The schools planted 11,402 trees on school grounds. The agricultural etension service of the University of Nebraska, under the direction of W. H. Brokaw, distributed 682,000 tree seedlings among 2,600 farmers in every county in this state during the month of April. This year the department will distribute close to 900,000 seedlings, beginning next week.

"The United States Forest service planted 1,000 acres of pine transplants on the Nebraska National forests in Thomas and Cherry counties. The annual planting program in Nebraska's national forests calls for the planting of 1,000 acres annually. The bureau of game and fish planted 25,000 pine transplants on one of the state fish and game reserves in Cherry county.

"The railroads of Nebraska were loyal supporters of this program and forty-two station grounds were improved by tree planting. The Burlington railroad, cooperating with the agricultural extension service and farmers adjoining the right of way, planted 7,000 trees on the Sterling-Holdrege division between Holdrege and Grant. The project was to beautify the right-of-way, serve as an experimental snow fence planting, and furnish a field shelter belt for cooperating farmers. As a part of the Fremont project, 2,800 trees were planted, pruned, and watered in one day by labor contributed by the citizens of Fremont.

Beautify Landscape.

"This year's plan includes the forestry and tree planting idea; it fully recognizes that trees, the giants in the plant world, constitute a large element in the beauty and grandeur of the landscape, and that they have always had a great influence upon man's existence and development, but the plan also takes special recognition of Nebraska's needs, and so it includes beautification by means of trees, by the planting of shrubs, vines, and flowers. There is an apparent need for forestation for commercial production in our state, but this phase of development is not to be made the major issue this year; the plan rather emphasizes the environmental, educational, and aesthetic effects to be gained.

"To give special emphasis and official recognition to this work, the governor has designated the week from April 15 to April 22, ending with Arbor day, as "Tree Planting and Landscape Beautification Week." He has appointed a state committee for the 1929 campaign to formulate a plan for this year's work. The committee has evolved a comprehensive program which appeals to every citizen individually and to any organization to which he may belong, or in which he may use his influence to beautify Nebraska.

"The following is a list of places involved in the beautification program: Country, town and city homes; public schools, including rural, city and consolidated, state teachers colleges, the University of Nebraska; churches, with reference to their church buildings, church grounds, parsonages, welfare homes, hospitals, cemeteries, church schools, academies and colleges; institutions under the state board of control; industrial grounds; railroad grounds; highways, tourists parks, gas stations, and hotels; county and state fair grounds; state parks and recreational grounds; cities and towns, with reference to their streets, parks, hospitals, cemeteries, golf grounds, ball parks, and other civic developments; farms and ranches, with reference to shelter belts, woodlots, game protection, prevention of soil erosion, and planting for nut, post, pole, and lumber production; property belonging to various clubs, societies and other organizations.

All On Committees.

"All the institutions mentioned are represented on the state committee and on the subcommittees. The governor, in appointing this committee and specifying its duties, calls attention to an emphasizes the importance of this campaign of tree planting and landscape beautification.

"The committee is assisted by the state forester, the extension forester, representatives of the Nebraska National Forest service, the Federal Forest service, and other state and federal departments as well as the department of the university that gives technical advice to the selection, planting, cultivation, and care of flowers, shrubs, and trees. State Supt. Charles W. Taylor is chairman of campaign week and will bring the matter to the attention of the schools of the state.

"In agreement with the governor's plan and that of the committee, Dean Condra of the Conservation and Survey division of the University of Nebraska, who has been appointed state chairman of the committee, has prepared a bulletin on "Tree Planting and Landscape Beautification." The bulletin is dedicated to the memory of the pioneer planters of Nebraska, men "who have left their footprints on the sands of time:" J. Sterling Morton, the founder of Arbor day, Robert W. Furnas, Charles E. Bessey, C. S. Harrison, Isaac Pollard, William Solley, Peter Younger, and Julius Ami Sandoz, and is also dedicated in recognition of those who beautify Nebraska with flowers, trees, vines and shrubs.

Bulletin Has History.

"The bulletin contains a short history of the present plan, it emphasizes Nebraska's contribution along these lines. Nebraska has given the world an Arbor day; it is called the "Tree Planters' state," a name in keeping with its history and ambitions. The Nebraska plan has been copied by other states, because it enlists the popular support of so many citizens and produces results. The plan as followed in Nebraska is scientific, practical, and effective in meeting the needs of Nebraska.

"It's features as they now stand are as follows: 1. There is a definite agreement among the agencies involved as the state committee, conservation and survey division, the agricultural experiment stations, extension service, the nurserymen of the state and the Bessey nursery. 2. The Bessey nursery is to produce trees for the national forests and for distribution by the extension service for shelter belt and woodlot purposes. 3. The agriculeural experiment stations are to grow stock for planting on state lands and on state institution grounds. 4. The commercial field proper is to be occupied by the nurserymen. 5. State and federal departments are not to grow flowers, vines and shrubs for distribution. 6. Plans for each year's campaign are to be formulated by the state committee and the agencies named before, and submitted to a citizen's meeting to be held at the capitol, the governor presiding. 7. The plan as adopted at such public meeting is to be furthered by the committee during tree planting and landscape beautification week.

"The bulletin also contains the names and addresses of the committee on technical information from whom information may be obtained as to the planting of trees, not only how, but also what to plant. It has short articles on the value of tree planting and beautification of the home, school grounds, church grounds, cemeteries, state institution grounds, industrial grounds, railroad grounds, highways, parks, gas stations, and hotels. Finally the bulletin contains a list of references on tree planting, many of which may be obtained free of charge.

"The bulletin came from the press last week and has been sent to all members of the committee and subcommittees, to the newspapers of the state, to the officials of the various religious organizations, civic organizations, farm organizations, welfare societies, to the county superintendent, city superintendents, the higher institutions of learning, state senators and representatives, state and county officials, and others. This bulletin is called "Bulletin 2, Tree Planting and Landscape Beautification." Anyone interested may obtain a copy of this bulletin by sending a requese together with a two cent stamp to pay postage to the Conservation and Survey division, Station A, Lincoln, Nebraska."

SMITH UPHELD IN DEKING CASE

Dr. Wilson Defends the Shooting by Prohibition Agents.

WASHINGTON, April 6—(U. P.)—The shooting of desperate liquor law violators by prohibition agents was defended here today by Dr. Clarence True Wilson, general secretary of the board of temperance, prohibition and public morals of the Methodist Episcopal church. He also expressed qualified approval of wet-drinking, dry-voting members of congress.

In an interview with the United Press today, Dr. Wilson indicated that, in his opinion, the frequent shootings involved in the enforcement of national prohibition are for the most part necessary because of the desperate nature of the liquor law violators.

We cannot take soft methods in dealing wtih that class of criminal," Dr. Wilson said.

Shoot As Last Resort.

I do not know the circumstances surrounding each case, but in most instances where prohibition officers have shot they have done it as a last resort and they should be commended for bringing a law resisting criminal to time, rather than condemned."

Wilson included in his defense the shooting of Mrs. Lillian DeKing by an Illinois state enforcement officer. That agent shot in self-defense, he believes.

It is an outrage for him to be tried for manslaughter," Wilson said.

Several other current phases of prohibition enforcement were discussed by Dr. Wilson. The repeal of the life for a pint" law in Michigan, he said, was due to the influence of Governor Green, a wet.

He is a wet and wants to cater to the wets so as to insure his re-election," Wilson declared. But I never advocated the adoption of the Michigan law," he added.

LERNER STORES TO OPEN BRANCH

New York Ready-to-wear Firm Leases Store at 1211 O Street.

Lerner Stores, Inc., of New York City, will take possession of the building at 1211 O street November 1 and will establish a branch ladies' ready-to-wear store, it was learned Saturday. The building will be remodeled involving an expenditure of $25,000, it was announced.

Deeds for sale of a lease to the property for $55,000 by Eli Shire and Jennie Shire were filed Saturday in the recorder of deeds office.

Tentative plans of the firm indicate the store will be opened about Jan. 1, 1930, according to Mr. Shire. Remodeling of the front and inside of the building will be started Nov. 1, it is planned.

Under terms of the contract, Mr. Shire received $11,000 on execution of the contract. The balance will be paid in four annual installments of $11,000 each beginning Jan. 2, 1930. The lease will run 86 years or until Feb. 1, 2017.

The Lerner Stores maintain branches in other leading cities in the United States.

Mr. Shire took over a 99-year lease from the Kostka Drug Co., on Nov. 8, 1918. On March 4, last, he gained complete control of the property through another lease from B. O. Kostka and several other part owners.

The New York firm will pay Orlando and Calvin Webster rental of $500 a month. The original lease made to the Kostka Drug Co. in 1917 was for $415.800 payable in monthly rental of $350.

According to Mrs. Hartney, Tice slugged her husband to death during a quarrel over her affections when Hartney found the man in his home. FARM HOME BURNED.
(Special to The Star.)

ALLIANCE, Neb., April 6—The farm residence of W. F. Pyle, 12 miles north of Alliance, burned to the ground yesterday while the family was away. The residence was large and modern. Two chicken incubators in operation in the basement of the structure are believed to have caused the blaze.

As Rogers Sees It

NEW YORK, April 6.—The papers are quoting things from Mr. Coolidge's latest article, so explain this paragraph: "A strong group of the party in and outside the senate made the mistake of undertaking to oppose Mr. Hoover with a large number of local candidates, which finally resulted in their not developing enough strength for any one candidate to impress the convention." Why has it been considered a "mistake?" Socially, everything is quiet today along the Potomac. If we can just keep everybody from giving a dinner, we may get out of this yet.

Yours, WILL.

HER SIDE GIVEN BY MRS. INMAN

Wife of Wealthy New Yorker Admits She Kicked Him.

RENO, Nev., April 6—(U. P.)—That the "boys and girls" of her acquaintance lived rather informal lives and exchanged kisses in bedrooms was testified today by Helene Patton Inman, who is contesting the divorce suit of her husband, Walter P. Inman, wealthy New Yorker.

Mrs. Inman said that it was no infrequent occurrence for the kisses to be exchanged and that such amatory advances particularly had taken place in her bedroom because there were lots of big chairs there.

The wife also admitted that at one time she had kicked her husband, but added that "I was sick of that sort of thing,' 'and "my feet were all I had left."

"That sort of thing," she had explained, was being held almost powerless by her husband and being beaten.

"Yes, I kicked him," she answered in response to a question. "He held my hands with one of his. I was sick of that sort of thing—had enough of it—so, well I kicked him."

The trial session opened with Mrs. Inman taking the stand and being questioned relative to her legal counsel and the possibility of her husband attempting to "frame" her.

Tells of Interview.

She told of an interview with Emanuel B. Cohen, New York attorney, who represented both her and Inman in a property settlement, and said that Cohen had told her "money would do anything."

Just previous to her statement she had been asked;

"Did you believe Cohen in regard to statements relative to framing you?"

Mrs. Inman testified that after she and her husband had separated she had received numerous telephone calls from men who refused to give their names, but said she was well acquainted with them.

She said the men asked her to "go places," but that she did not go as she knew she had never met them.

Previous testimony of Mrs. Otto Schmitt, Mrs. Inman's maid, that she had been asked by the wife to "stick around and we.ll get all of Walker's money" was branded false.

Asked if she had had any talk with Otto, the butler, concerning being in love with him, as was previously testified, she answered;

"Oh, dear me, no."

SIX LOSE LIVES IN IOWA BLAZE

Twelve Others Injured in Escaping From Des Moines Hotel.

DES MOINES, Ia., April 6.—U. P.)—Six persons perished in a fire that destroyed the Kirkwood hotel here today. Twelve other guests were burned or injured in their escape from the burning structure.

The dead:

Mrs. Theodore Watson, 'Red" Jerru, a waiter; W. P. Radler, Thomas Coates, all of Des Moines, and two unidentified bodies.

Theodore Watson, husband of one of those killed, was probably fatally injured when he jumped from a window to the street. Cora Broecker, 20, of 49 Melbourne avenue, southeast, Minneapolis, also suffered injuries.

Origin of the blaze was undetermined. Police, however, were investigating a report that a "wild party" was in progress on the fourth floor shortly before the fire was discovered.

There were approximately 150 guests in the hotel when the fire was discovered on the fourth floor. Escape was easy for those on the lower floors, but nearly a score were rescued by firemen from the upper floors.

Jerrue, seriously burned, was killed when he jumped from his room on the fourth floor.

Damage was estimated at $150,000.

KANSAS PUZZLED BY CURTIS FUSS

Home Folk Take Up Gossip About Social Ranking of Mrs. Gann.

TOPEKA, Kas., April 6—(U. P.)—Kansas is gossiping, too, about the "diplomatic fuss" raging in Washington over whether Dolly Curtis Gann should sit at social functions.

In some statehouse circles tongues are wagging almost as glibly as in Washington's inner circles.

Kansans do not understand what has happened about the Curtis family in the nation's capital.

"Why, Charley Curtis is just as plain as an old shoe," his home state constituents replied to Washington stories implicating the vice president had become "high hat Charley."

But because Mr. Curtis is Kansas' favorite son and Mrs. Gann is a favorite daughter, none allow themselves to be quoted here.

Mrs. Gann is regarded as a "good fellow" in her home state.

In fact, she deported herself so well in the Curtis campaign that old time politicians remarked, "Dolly Curtis is a better politician than Charley."

They had opportunity to verify this in Kansas City last summer when Mrs. Gann played an active part in Curtis headquarters, with a friendly smile and handshake for every person who came to boost "our Charley for the presidency."

There are some of the Kansas constituency who feel "the national capital is being shown how to treat a lady from Kansas."

BIGGEST SELLING MEDICINE IN NEBRASKA

The Now Famous Herb Extract Called HERB JUICE Established Phenomenal Sales Record

Over Million Bottles Sold in Past Year

Mass of Evidence Given by Local People Fully Corroborates Claims for Celebrated Medicine

Druggists Astounded at the Tremendous Repeat Sales and Beneficial Results Obtained from Its Use

HARLEY DRUG STORE, Big Downtown Druggist, 11th and "O" Streets, Sells More Than 300 Bottles In Single Day

People amazed by actual results of this medicine. Now selling at the rate of 3 bottles minute, 180 bottles hour, 4,320 day, 30,240 week, over million yearly. Seems almost unbelievable that any one medicine would reach such a phenomenal sales record, but when you realize how quickly it gives results in the most obstinate cases and brings back the joys of living then you will understand why it has been proclaimed the greatest medicine on the American market.

Miller's Herb Extract, known as Herb Juice, is said to possess a combination of herbs, barks, roots and berries not found in any other preparation, the one medicine that is different. It is absolutely purely vegetable, pleasant tasting, effective, good for children, grown folks and old people.

Thousands of people from all walks of life, in every city where it has been introduced, are singing its praise and giving public testimonial statements for publication that their friends may read and learn of its powerful cleansing and health restoring power. Many Lincoln's most prominent citizens among the masses reporting renewed health. Space here permits only a few of the many thousand commendable statements on file in the office of the laboratories.

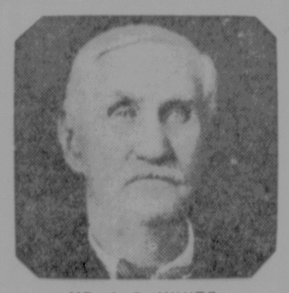
MRS. L. A. BEASON.

"The rheumatic condition is a thing of the past, neuritis pains bother me no more since I got my system thoroughly cleansed by using Miller's Herb Extract. Liver, stomach and kidney disorders I do not have to contend with now for my entire system is in fine condition. I am happy to state that I can eat the food I wish without suffering tortures from gas pains and indigestion. I was losing weight for a year or more until I used the Herb Extract, now I have normal weight, a good appetite, plenty of vim and energy for one of my age. I feel supple, well and strong all the time. I've lived in Lincoln for the past twenty years, I have many friends and good neighbors to whom I am always praising Miller's Herb Extract for the good health it brought. They rejoice at my wonderful improvement in health. Many of them are now using the great medicine with gratifying results. I'm glad it's so, for I think Miller's Herb Extract is the most wonderful remedy that any one can use to thoroughly cleanse the whole system, driving out all impurities and building up a rundown condition. I am speaking from experience, and it's a pleasure genuine to praise and recommend such a wonderful medicine to all ailing people. I know it is the greatest medicine I ever used, greatest health restorer known to me. All my folks, even down to my granddaughter, have been wonderfully benefited by the great Herb medicine."

CIVIL WAR VETERAN EXPRESSES HIS GRATITUDE

Although He Is Well Advanced in Years, He Finds Life Great With Good Health for His Daily Companion. Praises Miller's Herb Extract.

The power of nature's great medicine triumphs over and over again. Old people say it is the greatest health restorer and body builder ever placed on the market. Yes, it's great for old folk, grown people and children—people in all walks of life praise it sincerely for beneficial results. It is a household remedy in millions of homes. The reason: It gives complete satisfaction. It's Miller's Herb Extract, for years called "Herb Juice." Mr. J. S. White, well known Civil war veteran, heartily declares that the Herb Extract medicine is the only remedy he could find to keep him healthy and in an active condition. "Without an equal, I think," recently stated Mr. White in an interview with the Herb Extract man.



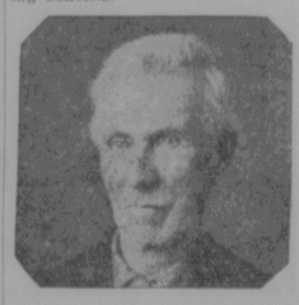
MR. J. S. WHITE.

"I was dreadfully run down and broken in health several months ago," continued Mr. White, "and the fact that I never derived any special benefit from the different remedies I used, made me somewhat skeptical about trying anything else. First, my daughter used Miller's Herb Extract, she got wonderful results from just a bottle or two. She insisted that I give it a trial, which I have already done, and the good results, lasting benefits, in fact, the good health this wonderful medicine brought me, prompts this statement solely for the benefit of other sufferers. I needed a good medicine, and I certainly did find it in Miller's Herb Extract. Those awful gas pains, nervous indigestion, the sluggish liver I had for months, rheumatic and neuritis pains, chronic constipation and all the ills which caused my ill health were overcome through the use of the great Herb Extract remedy. Now I feel different altogether—yes, like a different man in every way. Although I've lost my eyesight, I have good health, feel strong in mind and body. The nervous condition does not bother me nowadays—I have a keen appetite, splendid digestion, free from indigestion and gas pains. Bowels, liver and kidneys function in fine order. I intend to continue taking Miller's Herb Extract occasionally for I know it is the only remedy to keep me healthy and feeling fine all the time. I think it is the greatest system regulator one can buy or use—yes, it is without an equal, I think. I do not hesitate to call Herb Extract or 'Herb Juice' the world's greatest system cleanser and health restorer. To every ailing person, I heartily recommend its use."

LINCOLN MAN REACHES A RIPE OLD AGE, 80

His Wife Is 77, Married 54 Years Ago; They Carry On, Now In Good Health, Happy and Satisfied, Praising Miller's Herb Extract.

Here in Lincoln, (Neb.) as in most every place under the sun, age is no barrier to health and happiness when nature's great remedy, Miller's Herb Extract, for years called "Herb Juice" is used to keep renewed strength, energy and vigor in the body. A few bottles of this great health remedy proves its power. Mr. T. H. Utterback, well known and highly esteemed truck farmer and gardener, residing at 2933 Potter street, Lincoln, Nebraska, says he feels as well nowadays as when he was only forty-five years old. Praises Miller's Herb Extract above every remedy for good results and lasting benefits.



MR. T. H. UTTERBACK.

"I read Mr. Wing's testimonial in the Lincoln papers several months ago, and being in need of a good medicine at that time, I took advantage of the opportunity to test out this medicine to my entire satisfaction. Yes, indeed, Miller's Herb Extract called Herb Juice is by far the greatest medicine I ever used. No wonder at all to me now, that the people say it is the world's greatest system cleanser and regulator. It is the only medsine I ever could find that would thoroughly and completely cleanse my system and free me from chronic indigestion, constipation, rheumatism, torpid liver and weak kidneys. Those terrible ills ruined my health years ago and I tried most everything in an effect to regain my health. I can conscientiously and very truthfully say that Miller's Herb Extract gave me more genuine relief, lasting benefits and satisfactory results in every way than any medicine I have ever taken, and I've used dozens of different remedies, too. Now since using only four bottles of this good Herb medicine I feel as spry as I did when I was only forty-five. I am now eighty years of age, my wife is seventy-seven, we have been married fifty-four years. And the fact that we have found a medicine to keep us in a healthy condition, naturally, we are happy, satisfied and contented with our lot. The rheumatic pains are gone, gas pains, sluggish liver, weak kidneys, irregular bowel action troubles me no more. I am hearty, eat with a keen appetite and the best part all my food digests remarkably well. I am able to climb a flight of stairs, feel supple and fine all the time. Yes, I feel mighty well for an old man. My wife joins me in hearty praise for the great Herb Extract remedy which brought us health and happiness. We most heartily recommend it to everybody.

HER ONE DESIRE IS TO HELP OTHERS

Feels Sure She Can Be of Service to Ailing People If They Will Only Follow Her Suggestion.

"It is a pleasure to express publicly my hearty endorsement of your wonderful Herb Extract remedy known as Herb Juice. I feel that every sufferer of constipation, stomach, liver and kidney disorders should know of this great tonic-laxative. It has done more for me than any medicine I have ever used, hence I am glad to recommend it to others," said Mrs. Ada Hammond, 932 No. 30th St., Lincoln, Neb., in a recent statement to the special representative at Harley's Drug Store.

MRS. ADA HAMMOND.

Continuing, Mrs. Hammond said, "I have been a sufferer from chronic constipation, indigestion, acid stomach, gas pains, nervousness, headaches, etc., for 25 years, (nasal catarrh) trouble also sinus. My food would fail to digest, would sour and cause gas to form on my stomach. I would suffer those dreadful gas attacks regardless of how light my diet, was constipated all the time, which made me extremely nervous, could hardly sleep at all. My ailments had me in a pretty badly rundown condition. No matter what I tried nothing seemed to give me any satisfactory or permanent relief. I kept hearing and reading so much about your herb medicine known as Herb Juice and so many users recommended it so highly for troubles similar to mine that I decided to try it myself. I began to note beneficial effects after taking the first few doses. It seemed to go at once to the source of my trouble and give me relief such as no other medicine had ever done. Now since taking a course of this medicine I am feeling better in every way than I have in years. I am no longer troubled with constipation, indigestion, sour stomach, gas pains or headaches, sleep better and feel better in every way. It has also relieved my sinus trouble to a greater extent than any remedy I have ever used. It is the greatest system cleanser and general health restoring remedy I have ever found. Not only do I heartily endorse this great medicine, but urge other like sufferers to try it on my recommendation. If a sufficient amount is taken regularly and properly I feel confident they will enjoy the same pleasant results from its use that I have."

IT'S THE GREATEST MEDICINE I EVER USED

Said a Well-Known and Highly Esteemed Lincoln Lady, Praising Miller's Herb Extract. Gets Rid of Rheumatism and Neuritis.

"I am seventy-eight years of age and feeling fine. I want it plainly understood that no medicine I ever used would accomplish for me what Miller's Herb Extract (formerly called Herb Juice) has, in freeing me from rheumatism and neuritis. I know by actual test that it is a wonderful system cleanser and body builder. I was in poor health for a long time, and only through the use of the Herb Extract remedy did I find a suitable medicine to restore me to health and strength," said Mrs. L. A. Beason, highly esteemed aged woman, residing at 4602 Adams St., Lincoln, Neb., who numbers her friends by acquaintances.

Littrell, well known carpenter, who resides at 4719 Cleveland avenue, University Place, Lincoln, Neb., in a recent statement to the special representative.

SCOTT EXPLAINS INTANGIBLE TAX

Commissioner Issues Statement Relative to Division of Receipts From New Law.

State Tax Commissioner Harry W. Scott issued a brief statement Saturday explaining that intangible property, under the new law which went into effect just before April 1, bears only one tax, the proceeds of which are split up among the state and its local subdivisions of government. He said:

"A number of inquiries have come to this office as to whether or not the 2½ mills tax on Class A intangibles and the 8 mills tax on Class B intangibles, is the total tax charged for this kind of property.

"Some people have the idea that this tax is for state purposes only and that county, school and city taxes will also be charged against this property. The 2½-mill tax on money and the 8-mill tax an other intangibles are all that are levied against this kind of property. In other words, if a man has $1,000 in money, his total tax will be $2.50. If he resides in the city, the $2.50 will be divided as follows:

"One-sixth to the state general fund, one-sixth to the county general fund, one-third to the city general fund, one-third to the school general fund.

"If the taxpayer resides outside of the city, the $2.50 will be divided in this manner:

"One-sixth to the state general fund, one-sixth to the county general fund, two-thirds to the school general fund.

"On other intangibles, such as notes, stock in foreign (non-Nebraska) corporations and other securities, the total tax on $1,000 will be $8, and the $8 will be distributed to the different funds in the same manner as shown abive."

PROGRESS MADE IN AIR PROGRAM

Move Begun to Organize Syndicate to Make City Plane Hub.

Developments in the aviation industry as it effects Lincoln have been progressing rapidly the past week, it was learned Saturday. Simultaneous with the announcement that a groundplane phone station is to be located here, it has been learned that there is a move on foot to organize in Lincoln an air transportation company.

Under the tentative proposal the company would be a syndicate of Lincoln men. The purpose would be to establish air lanes in all directions with Lincoln as the hub of the system with passengers and express being carried along with light freight, and possibly eventually mail. The plane factories are here, it is pointed out, and there are plenty of landing fields. Couple this with the fact, advocates of the plan declare, that some of the largest air transport companies in the country are considering Lincoln in new routings of lanes, and there should be no hesitancy on launching the enterprise.

According to Secretary Whitten, secretary of the chamber of commerce, Lincoln already has a place in the aviation world. Almost daily, he says, he is receiving letters asking for inforation in connection with some phase of the industry here. Many of these are concerned with flying schools, although not a few ask about the number of plane factories and the type of planes manufactured.

One company already has virtually agreed to include Lincoln in its routing of an airplane from the Gulf of Mexico to Canada. Now another is negotiating for a location here in connection with a route from the east into the northwest and probably western Canada.

Announcement that the groundplane phone station is to be located here was ade by the Boeing Air Transport, Inc., holders of the air mail contract between Chicago and the Pacific coast. The same announcement added that Lincoln will be one of the division points. According to the announcement the service will be installed simultaneously with the inauguration of an expended plane service featuring ships that will carry eighteen passengers. These will come to Lincoln.

How soon this will be depends in a measure on how long it takes to get the municipal airport in condition for the landing of planes. Mayor Hedge and City Engineer Erickson have been rushing operations at the port and it is hoped that the new runways will be ready for use before the middle of May.

Seniors Will Get Practical Work on State Newspapers

Dr. C. H. Oldfather, professor of ancient history and languages at the University of Nebraska, has been assigned to translate from the Greek "Diodorus of Sicily" for the Loeb classical library. His work will be the first translation of Diodorus into English and is expected to be about thirteen volumes, the longest single work for this collection of classical authors which now numbers about 350 volumes.

The value of Diodorus' work is historical. He was not an original writer, but collected history of many periods of ancient times, and compiled the first history of all the peoples of the Mediterranean world up to the time 59 B. C. Many writings of early historians were lost but some periods of these are preserved in Diodorus' collection, as he traveled extensively and used the writings of others.

Professor Oldfather made a previous contribution to the Loeb classical library about six years ago, translating "Asclepiodotus," a Greek writer ,which is now included in one of the volumes of the collection.

Journalism seniors of the University of Nebraska will get their first taste of the real newspaper world when they report to various editors in the state for a week's work from April 15 to 20. This is in accordance with an addition to the requirements for students of the school of journalism this year.

Twenty editors in the state have expressed willingness to take students for a week's experience on their papers. Several others are expected to make definite arrangements. These papers will all be within a radius of 150 miles because of transportation difficulties, although a number of papers farther away from Lincoln have offered to take students.

The plan, in general, is to assign one student to each paper. Similar methods are in use by other schools of journalism in the country but these are mostly "team" methods, by which several students are sent to each paper. Assignments will be made with view to the type of work the students expect to do after graduation.

This requirement, new this year, is to insure some practical experience to all graduating students. All expense will be paid by the students and they will receive no pay for their work. The assignments will come during spring vacation so only two days of school will be missed, and absences on those days will be excused.

FRUIT OUTLOOK IS PROMISING

Severe Winter Leaves Southeast Nebraska Trees Unharmed.

(Special to The Star.)

STELLA, Neb., April 6.—Southeastern Nebraska has the promise of a full fruit crop, with no demerits or handicaps at the present time. All fruits passed through the severe winter without damage from the weather, and the ost delicate of them all, the apricot, is now a gloriously blooming tree, with a full percentage of blossoms.

Home grown apricots as a crop in this locality belong to the modern age, and during the last few years some families in southeastern Nebraska have had a few extra bushels to sell. Here and there an aged apricot tree is seen, but most of them are of mediu size, ome of the younger trees are seedlings.

At Brownville, the heart of diversified fruit culture in Nebraska, everything at the presene time is centered on the spring culture of the fruit, and the town and surrounding country present the appearance of a well kept garden.

In mythology it is "Jason of the Golden Fleece," or "Jason the Red." In tatology it is "Only Jason." Jason is owned by Mr. and Mrs. T. G. Hall, Pierce, and has made his home in this city since he was three years old. Most of his life thus far in Pierce has been spent in the Hall variety store, where he is the object of much attention and comment.

Lately Jason became very much bored with so much attention and was taken to the Hall home. There he is becoming too fat and lazy to take an active interest in the things going on around him, even leaving unmolested his worst enemies, the dogs. While staying at the store Jason cleaned up on nearly every dog in town, at least he was respected by all dogs in the city and all kept their distance when Jason was sighted.

When it comes to intelligence, Jason has it over most cats. His intelligence is almost human. He seems to understand when spoken to and likes to have people talk to him. He sits up on his hind legs for all his food. Every morning he has his bowl of shredded wheat and milk, then retires to a large rocker besides a radiator and spends the day napping. He seems to enjoy listening in on the radio, for whenever it is turned on he makes himself comfortable in a large chair beside it.

Jason's maternal grandmother was a full blooded yellow Persian cat, his mother a beautiful tiger colored cat, and his father a thoroughbred Angora. Jason himself resembles a Persian cat. He is a golden yellow with tiger markings, has a rather large and bushy tail with a white tip, and is quite a snob.

He was born in Lincoln and spent the first three years of his life in that city.

TEACH METHODS OF ENFORCEMENT

Central Idea is Value of Education for Chief Weapon.

WASHINGTON, April 6—(I. N. S.)—The high-powered executives of the nation's leading dry organizations are attempting to evolve new and more scientific methods of carrying on a campaign of education for support of the eighteenth amendment.

The old-fashioned ideas of painting the saloon as the chief instrument of the devil and of displaying flaming posters showing ragged children being beaten by a rum-soaked father have been tossed into the waste-basket.

Instead, there has emerged a new scheme of displaying prohibition as a necessity in an age of machinery when the average man must attain a high point of efficiency or take a place in the rear ranks of the world's procession.

Cherrington Father.

Ernest H. Cherrington, general secretary of the department of education of the Anti-Saloon League of America, is regarded as the father of the new idea.

The characterization by Herbert Hoover of prohibition as "a noble experiment" has been accepted, although some strong prohibitions still complain of this statement and declare that prohibition is a permanent accomplishment far beyond the experimental stage.

"The imperative need for a new type of education work in harmony with the intellectual process of the present age is evident," said Cherrington in a review of the accomplishments of his department.

"Arguments that made their appeal a generation ago need to be rephrased to meet the conditions of a changing era. Much of the data upon which the older prohibition propoganda was based is antiquated.

Many Problems.

"The increasing mechanization of industry, the steadily decreasing safety margin on our highways crowded with automobiles, the pyramid structure of installment buying which rests upon the integrity and earning capacity of the abstinent worker, the extension of mass production in industry, where a single drinker may throw a whole factory out of step, the maintenance of the enormous reservoirs of liquid capital made available for modern finance by the steady accumulation of savings banks deposits by a sober people, with scores of other significant economig factors, must be fully considered in connection with any proposed solution of the alcohol problem."

Referring to prohibition as an experiment he said:

"We are working out in the United States experiments whose significance is, or will be, worldwide. For the first time in history a great nation has attempted a social policy so far-reaching as the complete prohibition of beverage alcohol. If this policy is sound, as we believe it to be, we must insure its success in the United States not alone for the sake of the United States but because of the world-wide possibilities involved."

OLDSMOBILE IS WELL RECEIVED

1929 Models Continue to Draw Approval of Motorists.

The 1929 Oldsmobiles continue all of the qualities which placed Oldsmobile in an enviable position last year and to which have been added desirable refinements.

During 1928, Oldsmobile made one of the largest gains registered in the industry increasing production and sales approximately 64 per cent over 1927, which had been its best previous year. From the start of the spring business throughout the entire year it exceeded previous high records month after month.

The success of Oldsmobile was a direct tribute to the astuteness of the leading automobile critics. When the car was first displayed at the New York Automobile show, automobile editors of the important newspapers and trade magazines hailed it as a distinct achievement. Several critics proclaimed it "the car two years ahead." Others declared it established a new style. Technical experts praised its engineering qualities.

The opinions of these critics were reflected by the public demand. Month after month production was maintained at the highest peak compatible with the rigid manufacturing and inspection policies of the Oldsmobile. Nevertheless supply failed to keep pace with demand. A huge building program was put through to meet the increased demands.

Production of the 1929 Oldsmobile started in mid-December and is following a manufacturing schedule calculated to keep every one of the 2,500 Oldsmobile dealers in this country supplied with cars throughout the year. The schedule is far larger than ever before in the company's history and it is believed that new high records will again be made during 1929.

The Oldsmobile which was so successful in 1928 has been retained in all fundamental lines and engineering specifications with the addition of many desirable improvements. Those made in the engine have resulted in the development of 62 horse power and even finer car performance.

Greater beauty has been wrought by several interior and exterior refinements. An even finer grade of mohair upholstery enhances the interior of the closed cars, while new adjustable front seats provide additional driver comfort. External refinement consist of new color combinations, fully extended radiator shutters, a new type of cadet visor, larger head lamps with chromium plated supports and the addition of an Oldsmobile crest on the radiator. The name plate has been placed on a chromium plated bar connecting the head lamps.

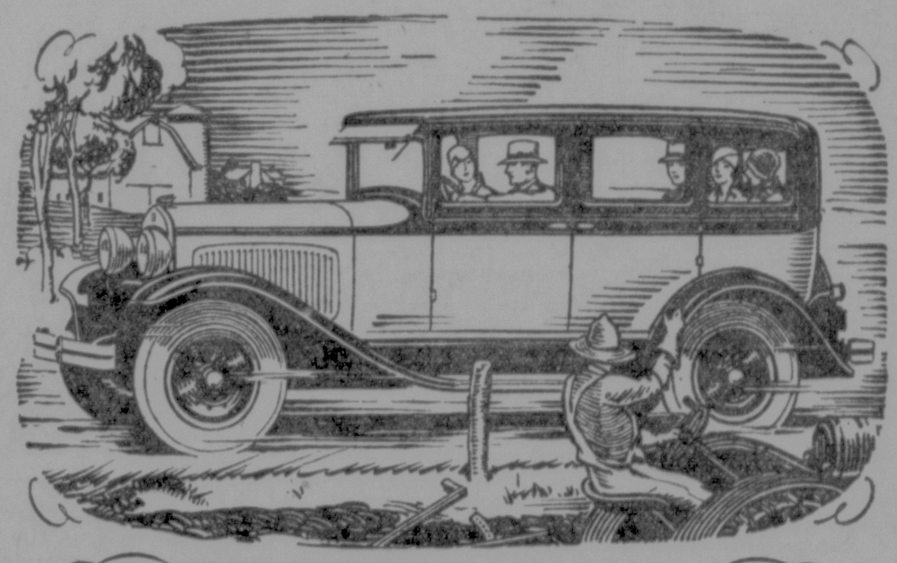
PLYMOUTH
AMERICA'S LOWEST-PRICED FULL-SIZE CAR

FULL PLYMOUTH SIZE



THE SMART FULL-SIZE FOUR-DOOR SEDAN, $695

When people discuss Plymouth, quality is the keynote of their conversation.

They say most complimentary things about its Chrysler smartness, its charm, its slender-profile radiator, its graceful "air-wing" fenders, its arched windows, its chromium-plate bowl-type lamps.

They comment highly on Plymouth's full-size dimensions, its richness and spaciousness, its wide, deep seats, its exceptional leg-room.

They refer glowingly to the powerful performance of Plymouth's 45 h. p. engine, of Chrysler "Silver-Dome" principle—its speed, its pick-up, its ability on hills, its smoothness, its quietness.

They speak of Plymouth's safety—of its full-size Chrysler weatherproof internal expanding 4-wheel hydraulic brakes, its rugged full-size chassis, springs and axles. They praise Plymouth's amazing economy in fuel, oil and upkeep.

After all, it is only natural that people should talk more about Plymouth's fine qualities than they do about its low price—for the Chrysler-built Plymouth is, first and last, a motor car of intrinsic quality and value.

OAKLAND PLANS NEW GUARANTY

Reconditioned Used Cars Will Carry Written Protection.

Part of National Good Will Program of Company.

PONTIAC, Mich., April 6—Another progressive step recently taken by a prominent automobile manufacturer toward better business methods in the merchandising of used cars, came to light here today when the Oakland Motor Car Co. announced adoption of a national policy under which all Oakland-Pontiac dealers will be asked to furnish a written guaranty with all reconditioned used cars.

Under terms of the guaranty, parts are furnished free to replace any found defective during the first 750 miles of driving, provided the mileage is run up within thirty days after the sale. The car also may be returned within forty-eight hours after the purchase if it proves unsatisfactory and the fullpurchase price applied to any other car, new or used, of equal or greater value in the dealer's stocks.

A written guaranty printed on lithographed bond paper is issued by the dealer to the purchaser at the time of the sale, while all cars carrying the guaranty also have a windshield sticker on which is printed, "Reconditioned guaranteed Good Will Used Car."

The object of the new plan, according to M. L. Buck, manager of the used car department, is to provide the purchaser with concrete evidence of the good faith of the dealer who makes the sale.

"Many of our reconditioned used cars are priced within the range of the cheapest new car," Mr. Buck stated. "If the money were invested in the small new car the purchaser would receive a standard warranty with it. In making a similar purchase of a good used car, he is entitled to a like measure of protection.

"We know that our dealers' reconditioned used cars are capable of performance comparable to a small new car. Consequently we aim to give the purchaser full ascurance of our faith in the car by backing up our claims in writing."

The used car guaranty applies only to those cars which have been thoroughly reconditioned and refinished under the Good Will plan—a policy inaugurated some years ago by Oakland to lend individuality to the quality used cars handled by the Oakland dealer organization. The familiar figure of "Good Will Oakland," with hte slouch hat and the inevitable stogie, is well known throughout the country through his association with the used car business of this company's dealers.

Trouble in Electric Starter

If the electric starter will not crank the engine ,do not continually depress the button until the trouble is located. This condition may cause arcing at the brushes, which will burn the commutator. Starter trouble is most frequently due to a discharged battery or a loose connection in the sysem.

A Tip From a Traffic Cop.

One of the most important things to remember by operators of vehicles is that pertaining to signals. Drivers continue to make turns and come to sudden stops without making any attempt to signal those in the rear what their intentions are. Under the traffic regulations, an operator of a vehicle is suppose to give a timely signal by hand, or in some other unmistakable manner. This same ruling applies to an operator of a vehicle or a driver who is about to turn either fram a stand still or while in motion. This particularly is important when turning to the left. An operator of a vehicle, before backing, should give ample warning and avoid injury to other vehicles and pedestrians.

Inspection of Car New At Hand.

Spring is the proper time to arrange for a complete checkup of the car. The work amounts to nothing more than minor adjustments which assure the car owner not only satis factory operating effeciency but avodance of unnecessary repair bills, for sometimes a small ailment is a forerunner of hidden weakness developing which can be brought to light only by an inspection. This is why the inspection and overhauling is so necessary to keep the car in the best operating condition. Fresation in the crankcase cause formaquent use of the choke and condention of an extra amount of sludge in the lubricating system—important reasons wh ythe entire oiling system of the car should be replenished with clean and heavier oil and the oil filter checked by the service man. Carburetor adjustment should be checked; fuel lines cleaned; breaker points adjusted; ignition system examined for faulty connections, and generator charging rate set for driving in warmer temperature.

Worth Remembering.

Riding the clutch is an easy habit to get into, but a hard one to get out of. Become accustomed to slowing the car down with the use of the brake only. This save the clutch and also gives one better control of the car in wet weather.

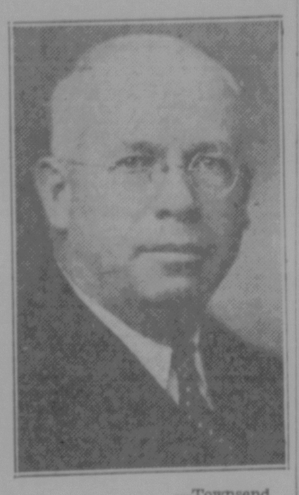
Conserving Power of Car.

A good driver never will labor his engine needlessly. Shift into a lower speed when climbing a steep grade. Conserve the power as much as possible, and by doin gthis, there always will be reserve power to fall back on. New drivers and often more experienced ones start the car at night with all the lights turned on. It would be more tdvisable to turn on only what is necessary, namely, the dash light. There is no need to strain the battery too much.

Getting Out Of a Skid.

One of the greatest dangers of driving is bring the car out of a skid. Skids are caused by applying the brakes and clutch at the same time, through uneven roads, or by puttin gon speed on a wet surface when the rear tires are thread worn In the first case release both the clutch and brake until the wheels start pulling against the engine, thus slowing them down. In the second case the driver has to use his own judgement as to the cause of the skid and bring the car away from such a spot. It is needless to sa ythat in the lase case the only advisable thing to do is to refrain from speeding with tires in such condition. In any event a short swerve in the opposite directions of the skid will right the car.

Waddle Talks To Goodyear Dealers



—Townsend.

G. A. WADDLE.

One hundred and twenty-eight Goodyear dealers and salesmen of southeast Nebraska heard Mr. Waddle, assistant general sales manager of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co., of Akron, O., speak on "Going Ahead with Goodyear," following a banquet Friday night at the Cornhusker hotel.

Turning from a discussion of modern rubber manufacturing methods, Mr. Waddle told of the progress being made by Goodyear in the field f aeronautics. The Goodyear company has supplied the government as well as private individuals, with blimps and semi-rigid airships for a number of years past, said Mr. Waddle, and at present a huge airship dock, 1,200 feet long, 325 feet wide and 200 feet high is under construction in conjunction with the plant at Akron. There is not an obstruction in the entire dock, which is so lareg that fourteen football games could be played on it simultaneously, according to one statistician's estimate.

Mr. Waddle closed his talk with a six-reel motion picture showing the latest methods of tire manufacturing and the improvements being put into the new Goodyear products.

GRAHAM - PAIGE PRODUCTION HIGH

Deliveries for March are Nearly Double Same Period in 1928.

Graham-Paige, with its new line of 1929 models, continues to surpass production records, to meet the demand for the improved cars on five different chassis.

March production of 9,610 cars brought the total for the first quarter of 1929 to 25,284, nearly double the figures for the same period last year, when 13,125 cars were built.

The success of the Graham-Paige has not been confined to the United States, the demand in foreign countries having grown so rapidly that export shipments for the first quarter totaled 3,554, exceeding the total for the first seven months of last year. Export overseas shipments in March alone were 1,330. Canada took 666 cars, which is a new peak figure for Graham-Paige business in that country.

The factory's records of retail sales, for both United States and the rest of the world, show 15,407 deliveries for the first three months of this year, as compared with 6,309 sales in the same period last year.

The new foreign distributors have recently extended the export field for Graham-Paige to Manila, Porto Rico, Caracas, Venezuela and Bogota, Colombia.

AUTO OUTLOOK FOR 1929 GOOD

Several Factors Make Industrial Outlook Unusually Bright.

Prominent Development of Year is Widespread Use of Trucking.

Sales volume in the truck, bus and motor coach field for 1929 appears unusually bright from surveys of the market represented by the world-wide dealer organization of Dodge Brothers, according to Howard E. Sneathen, director of the company's truck sales.

Outstanding factors in supporting this outlook are:

1.—General prosperity shared alike by industrial and agricultural districts.

2.—Construction of additional thousands of miles of paved roads and street widening projects.

3.—Stabilization of foreign markets, opening larger export possibilities.

4.—Engineering and mechanical improvements of new models that represent desirable features for more economical and dependable operation.

5.—The growing demand for fleets of trucks on the part of corporations expanding its motorized delivery service because of its many advantages.

"The year 1928 represented an increase of 16 per cent in production sales volume compared to 1927," said Mr. Sneathen. "These figures alone show the remarkable growth of the industry, and indicate that just as the public is profiting by every development of the automobile it is likewise reaping the benefits of the increased use of the motor truck, bus and coach.

Importance Trucks Grows.

"A prominent development during the past year has been the moves of the truck manufacturer to furnish a unit that exactly meets the particular requirements of any owner. Every effort has been made to completely cover the transportation field, so owners can operate in the most economical and practical manner. In our own company, the varied truck capacities, wheel bases and body styles are designed to meet the demands of 96 per cent of all hauling requirements.

"Trucks are playing a big part in the changing diet and styles of America. On the tables of city residents are found an increasing amount of fresh fruits and vegetables. Milk drinking is increasing. Blanket distribution made possible only by the short speedy hauls of motor trucks from cities are bringing the rural districts the latest styles and fashions in wearing apparel. Even the wash tub is fading as an institution under the onslaughts of armies of laundry men riding in swift fleets of motor trucks.

"In the present competitive markets, enterprising business firms are increasing business and lowering costs by operating efficient motorized delivery service. The utility of the commercial car, which alone determines sales, is being constantly advanced by numerous engineering improvements.

GRIDDERS TRAIN WITH PLYMOUTH

Auto Transformed Into Bucking Machine by Michigan Coach.

Players Try to Carry Car Backward With Wheels Sliding.

Rugged power, unusual strength, and stamina are essentials in both football players and good automobiles. When Coach Tad Weiman of the University of Michigan wishes to develop these qualities in his players, he turns to the automobile for the features he desires.

With the opening of the spring football training season at the University of Michigan, Coach Waiman devised a new and unique method of eliminating the winter kinks from his players. The players were met at the field with a Plymouth coupe driven by the coach and attached to the front bumper of which was a 12-foot beam. This device makes an ideal bucking machine and serves admirably in training the athletes in the fine points of line bucking.

Coach Weiman sits in the driver's seat and directs the players who put their shoulders to the beam and buck the car with all their power. The car rolls backward a few feet until Coach Weiman applies the brakes. The car comes to a sudden stop. When the players can carry the car backward with all four of the wheels sliding, they are learning something of what it means to meet a tough foe on the gridiron.

The Plymouth car used by Coach Weiman for this purpose is ideally suited for the work. The Chrysler internal expanding hydraulic four wheel brakes assure positive brake control under all weather conditions. The internal expanding principle of construction of these brakes eliminates any possibility of dirt, water, or other foreign substance entering the brake drums and causing a loss of breaking power. The sturdy front bumper built directly to the chassis acts as a barrier that will withstand any pressure that the team can exert.

Brakes - another All-American feature that arouses owners' enthusiasm . . .

In thick traffic . . . where quick, sure deceleration is imperative. On slippery pavements . . . where equalized action is the crying need. In hilly country . . . where ordinary brakes heat up and drag and sometimes stall the engine. Under all these conditions Oakland brakes have proved their superiority.

It is only natural that Oakland brakes should be remarkably efficient. Among the first American manufacturers to adopt four-wheel brakes, Oakland has had six years to develop them to their present perfected state. The brakes which owners of the New All-American Six endorse so enthusiastically were selected after two years of testing four distinctly different types.

Internal-expanding . . . they are fully protected. Unaffected by mud or rain or ice. As a result they maintain their high efficiency in any weather. They are always positive and smooth in action . . . always exceptionally quiet.

Their design is extremely simple . . . unusually free from "floating shafts" . . . "compensators" and the like. No equalizers are required. Braking does not interfere with steering. No lubrication is needed and a single adjustment is good for 10,000 or more miles.

In Oakland's brakes there is ample clearance between drum and shoe . . . eliminating "drag." This . . . plus the fact that minimum pressure is required for effective braking . . . means greater length of life for the bands.

Yes . . . Oakland's brakes are far from ordinary. But the same is true of everything else in the New All-American Six. Come in . . . and we will show you how much more it offers for its price.

Consider the delivered price as well as the list price when comparing automobile values.

Oakland-Pontiac delivered prices include only reasonable charges for delivery and financing.

Prices $1145 to $1375, f. o. b. Pontiac, Michigan, plus delivery charges. Spring covers and Lovejoy Hydraulic Shock Absorbers included in list prices. Bumpers and rear fender guards extra. General Motors Time Payment Plan available at minimum rate.

FIGHTS LINED UP FOR LINCOLN RING

Matthews, Garcia Slated Square Off April 15 At the Liberty.

George Manley, Big Boy From Denver, Also on Lincoln Book.

BY "CY" SHERMAN.

Legalized fist fighting in gobs and clusters — a saturnalia of knuckle-whirling under state commission supervision—looms on Lincoln's sport horizon. Harry Lavine, business agent for Harold Matthews, Lincoln's mighty mite, hopped up on the publicity counter Saturday night with the announcement that his protege has been matched for a 10-round main event encounter with Frankie Garcia, tough fellow of St. Joseph, Mo., date of their rumpus being Monday night, April 15.

Before Manager Harry's ballyhoo had ceased to echo, Promoter Billy Hale, acting for the Maccabees, broke loose with a pronunciamento to the effect that George Manley, noted Denver heavyweight, would square off against a husky opponent in a main event wrangle during the week of May 22. Both battles are to be staged at the Liberty theater, this city.

Long Hunt for Opponent.

Conclusion of arrangements by Lavine and Matchmaker Moon, acting for a local National Guard company, for the Matthews-Garcia tangle climaxed 10 days or more of a hunt for a suitable opponent for the hard-socking Lincoln midget. Garcia was one of several boxers first considered, but the deal ran into a hitch when Garcia sent word that he had been injured in training and had been advised by his physician to take a short vacation before resuming fist-slinging.

Garcia wired the information Saturday that he would be ready to shoot the works April 15 and Matchmaker Moon quickly closed the deal. Garcia will be coming in with a substantial weight advantage over the Lincoln mite. The Joetown battler will be under contract to scale at 118 pounds, whereas Matthews seldom balances the beam at more than 114 and easily could step into a ring at 112.

Garcia' Fine Record.

"We preferred to take a lighter boy than Garcia," Manager Lavine said Saturday night, "but we had been wiring for a week or more to every western fight center and were having no luck in drumming up an opponent. Haroid will be spotting the St. Joseph boy five or six pounds, a margin that may make it tough for the mite.

"I have letters from a friend in St. Joseph advising me that Garcia is rated as a fine prospect in bantam circles. He had had several bouts, winning every start and never once taking the rap for a knockdown.

Mite Picks Tough One.

"Haroid, as I dope it, will have to tend to his knitting while in training this week, as I figure he will be tackling the toughest boy he has ever faced.

"Haroid broke into professional boxing exactly a year ago. He has had 18 bouts, winning nine with knockouts and losing one decision on a foul, although he had the edge in the milling when an accidental low blow cost him the verdict."

A card of five bouts and 30 rounds of boxing is being arranged for the April 15 carnival, with Ted Gartin, local welter, going on in the semi-windup.

Manley High-Grader.

Promoter Billy Hale's successful dicker for the services of George Manley undoubtedly will appeal to the fans who like their bites big. Not since Ace Hudkins achieved a two-round knockout in a local bout last June has fist fighting in Lincoln been able to attract a mitten-whirler of national reputation equal to that possessed by the Denver heavyweight.

During a six-year career, Manley has battled many of the top-notchers, and the record book discloses that he stands credited with a decision over Johnny Risko, the Cleveland baker boy. In two tussles with Tommy Loughran, world's champion light-heavy, Manley dropped a 10-round decision and held Tommy to a draw in the second affair. As a matter of fact, fighters of the Manley class seldom show their wares in Lincoln.

On Leading Team.

Howard English, member of the Hub Recreation team of Joliet, Ill., which is leading the A. B. C. tournament with a score of 3,063. Their mark seems likely to win the top prize.

FROSH SMASHES VARSITY RECORD

First-Year Shot Putter Hurls the Iron Ball Over 46 Feet.

Hugh Rhea, Arlington freshman, provided the fireworks for the track program arranged by Coach Henry F. Schulte at the University of Nebraska Memorial stadium Saturday afternoon. Rhea got 46 feet 2 inches with the 16-pound shot, surpassing the varsity record in the iron ball event nearly two feet.

Varsity and frosh vied with each other to turn in sterling performances. Varsity high lights were in the 440-yard dash, 110-yard sprint and half-mile run. The frosh cut loose in the shot and half-mile.

Campbell Wins Thriller.

Captain Campbell won an exciting quarter-mile when he came up in the last 50 yards to win the event in 50 3-10 seconds. Wyatt, Currier and Mays were close on his heels. Art Easter was clocked in 10 seconds for the 100-yard dash, while Milton "Alphabet" Januelwicz won the 880-yard run in 1 minute 59 2-10 seconds.

Fullrod, former Midland college runner, also turned in a fine mark in the 880-yard event. His time was 1 minute 59 5-10 seconds.

Hokuf Wins Discus.

Bevard, varsity record-holder, won the javelin with a cast of 186 feet 1 inches. Clauss, first-year member of the squad, pulled into second with a heave of 170 feet 5 inches. Steve Hokuf, Crete freshman, hurled the discus 126 feet 1 inch for a first place.

Steffan of Norfolk, non-varsity competitor, broke the tape ahead of Lowe in the 220-yard dash, but was spotted a five-yard handicap. Lowes' time was 22 seconds. Steffan ,with a three-yard handicap, was second in the century.

Lamson, Tomson Absent.

Willis Lamson, whose sensational hurdle work scored a first at the Texas relays, was nursing a cold Saturday and did not compete. Fleming took the high barriers in 15 4-10 seconds, while Thompson won the lows in 24 5-10 seconds. Cobe Tomson, varsity broad jumper, and Claude Rowley, shot putter, also were absent from the meet.

"Orange" Battles "Red" In Regulation Football Combat of Four Periods; Contest Scoreless Until the Final Plunge, When Halfback Art Perry Drives Across to Register Only Touchdown of the Day; Head Coach Expresses Pleasure Over Showing By Members of Nebraska U. Squad.

BY GREGG McBRIDE.

Cornhusker football prospects, while nothing to shout about from the campus cornices, looked fairly good as Dana X. Bible, new head grid coach, sent his spring training squad through a practice game at the Memorial stadium Saturday afternoon.

Three Teams In Action.

More than three complete teams saw action during the drill, the squad being pretty well stripped of veteran material by the heavy demands made by track and baseball, now in the collegiate spotlight. It was, nevertheless, a most satisfactory exhibition from the standpoint of early fundamentals and team spirit, the whole-hearted fashion in which the boys mixed it on the gridiron indicating that spring practice in the camp of the Cornhuskers has taken on a serious aspect.

Orange Wins, 6-0.

The "orange" team grabbed a 6-0 victory at the expense of the "reds," if that statement means anything to the sport fans. Head Coach Bible had the teams pretty well scrambled throughout the afternoon, the effort being made to enlist two teams of equal strength, rather than to place on the field first and second combinations.

The near-perfect fashion in which the Cornhusker coaching staff succeeded in balancing the scales may be seen from the fact that the "orange" team scored on the last play of the game.

Perry Goes Across.

An intercepted pass gave the victors possession of the ball on the "red" four-yard line and Art Perry, former Lincoln high halfback promptly hurried the pigskin across the final chalkmark for the only score of the afternoon.

During the Saturday skirmish the Cornhusker players concentrated their attention on one formation and plays passed out during the first week that Head Coach Bible has had charge of the spring drill.

From Punt Formation.

The boys were working from a punt formation and double wingback, with a few passes thrown in to add to the general merriment of all concerned. The teams had been drilled in offense and defense

Same Old Ballyhoo.

Writer's Paralysis.

Mr. Tunney having killed his Spanish bull and Mr. Dempsey having officially blasted his way into Gotham fight promotion, one is compelled to confess that neither one of these late kings in the fist racket is overlooking the importance of keeping the upper lip in prime trim for blowing the ballyhoo. In other words, a lot stranger things might happen than for Gene and Jack to suddenly fare forth with an arrangement for another two-million dollar fracas.

Gene's case, however, is different. Jack frankly admits that fighting is the game he loves, and if he isn't in the thick of it as a combatant, he purposes to stay in as a promoter, whereas Gene has has million, earned with his knuckles, and his bride, Polly, has so much wealth that Croesus, in comparison, would look like a piker.

Nevertheless, we are unable to muff the fact that Gene, arch hater of publicity for the past several months, went out his way to appear in a Spanish arena, then and there plunging a sword into a bull's neck, whereupon the populace howled in high glee.

Gene's stunt, we suspect, shows him up as an interesting, resourceful spoofer. The great disciple of pugilistic uplift, who professed that his pet devotion was Shakespeare, has discarded his mask as a hater of the public's vulgar gaze, so it may not be a far step from the bull ring to the prize ring. But Polly, the heiress, may have a lot to say as to that. Fifty millions surely could be a powerful convincer.

TEXAS QUINTET TOURNEY WINNER

Athens Bests Oklahomans In National Meet By 25 to 21.

CHICAGO, April 6—(U. P.)—A great passing offense and ability to make practically all shots count for points, tonight gave a husky team from Athens, Tex., the high school basketball championship of the United States.

To win the title, the Texans defeated the strong Classen high team of Oklahoma City, 25 to 21, in the final game of the eleventh annual interscholastic tournament.

Hard fought throughout, the final game taxed the endurance of both teams. Each had played six games and both were tired when they came on the floor tonight.

Athens Finishes Strong.

The Athens team, the best fourth period quintet of the tournament, lived up to its endurance reputation and finished strong tonight.

The Texans' six victories were scored over Cleveland, Tennessee, Central high, Oklahoma City, Naugatuck, Conn., College Grove, ... Jackson, Mich., and Classen.

...sen exhibited the greatest individual player ever seen here in Andy Beck. A fine leader, Beck jockeyed his team through its first five games in great fashion.

All his scorers stopped by the Athens defense tonight Beck took over the point making and scored five field goals from near the center of the court.

The bullet like pass of the Texans was responsible for much of their success. Taking advantage of its height the Athens team used a high, hard pass which baffled all opponents. The success of the pass was due to the fact that Athens scores almost all its points on short shots after the ball had been worked in under the goal.

Joes Loses To Classen.

Athens reached the finals by defeating Jackson, Mich., 27 to 13 this afternoon and Classen won the right to play tonight by defeating Joes, Colo., 29 to 23, in the semi-finals games.

Joes came back tonight to win third place by defeating Jackson, 21 to 17.

Brockton, Mass., won the consolation tournament tonight. The Brockton team defeated Morton, of Cicero, Ill., 17 to 10.

This year's tournaments drew forty entries all either state champions or runners up, from practically all sections of the country. Score:

STUDENTS SEEK BUY OFF COACH

Undergrads Willing Pay Coin to Unpopular Bagshaw.

SEATTLE, April 6—(U. P.)—The "Battle of Bagshaw" tonight had declared an armed truce, with members of the opposition and defense absent from the city over the week-end, and further encounters were not expected until Monday.

The special faculty committee acting for Dr. Lyle M. Spencer, president of University of Washington, refused to sanction the outright purchase of the contract of Enoch W. Bagshaw as football coach of the institution, as proposed by student opponents of the coach.

Smith Troy, president of the associated student board of control said that if Bagshaw refused the direct offer of the students to take the money due him on his coaching contract that has three years to run and withdraw from the situation, he was at a loss what step to take next.

HUSKER NINE ON ROAD NEXT WEEK

Four-Game Trip to South Ushers in Ball Season At Nebraska U.

Coach Rhodes Has Green Outfit and Prospects Not Encouraging.

BY GREGG McBRIDE.

Baseball being a renewed sport in University of Nebraska athletic circles, the diamond outlook at the Cornhusker institution is very much in the dark this season as the squad rounds into condition for the opening game.

A Big Six conference rule against scheduling games with non-conference teams has forced Baseball Coach "Choppy" Rhodes to divide his squad for practice purposes and while it has not given the diamond mentor an opportunity to test his outfit with outside competition, it has convinced him that he has 18 or more hustling ball players with a generously supply of pep and enthusiasm to offset the lack of experience.

Southern Trip First.

The Nebraska schedule opens with a tough assignment for the Cornhusker nine. A southern trip, which calls for two games with the University of Oklahoma at Norman and a pair of contests with the University of Missouri at Columbia, means the Huskers will be drawn into competition against teams that have had the advantage of more favorable weather for early training. Coach Rhodes, therefore, is none too optimistic over the outlook for the opening four-game series.

Pitching Prospects.

Leading twirlers on the varsity horizon, as evidenced by early games, include Clair Sloan, Cornhusker backfield ace during football season; Ther Pickett, brother of John of early varsity fame; "Hank" Armatus, Columbus boy, who looks like the real goods. Other leading contenders inclue Pochon, a left-hander, Urban, Bittner, Salisbury, Strek, Buhrman, Gauger, Roberson and Wondra.

Catchers who have been getting the call are Snygg, Halbelsen, L. Williams and Gaston. Snygg, former Omaha athlete, perhaps is looking the best.

Rivalry At First.

Lewandowski and Swanson are blazing the trail among the candidates for first base, with Harvey Grace ready to step in should either falter. Grace, if not at the initial sack, will be found patroling the outfield, his hitting being the best of the squad during spring work. The Mascot youth, however, has been on the shelf during the past week because of illness.

"Buster" Betts and Seldon Davey are arguing out the second base position. Davey, a cagester, reported at the close of the baseball season.

Third and Short.

Keyes and Row are in the race for the third sack, with Keyes having a shade the better in the fielding. Poppe and M. Williams look like the best of the shortstop aspirants.

The outfield presents a problem, with Ullstrom, Witte, Grace and Maser probably the selections, the latter having been bothered by a lame hand the past two weeks. Other leading candidates for the garden positions include Decker, Allen, Smith and Kotab. The Nebraska baseball schedule:

Nebraska's Schedule.

April 16, 17—Oklahoma at Norman.
April 19, 20—Missouri at Columbia.
May 3, 4—Kansas Aggies at Lincoln.
May 10, 11—Haskell Indians at Lincoln.
May 17, 18—Kansas Aggies at Manhattan.
May 20, 21—Oklahoma at Lincoln.
May 24, 25—Iowa State at Lincoln.
May 31, June 1—Kansas at Lincoln.

Injury Jinx Cuts Wide Swath In Lineups of Majors On Eve of Start

BY GEORGE KIRKSEY.

NEW YORK, April 6.—(U. P.)—Major league managers are making final preparations for the opening of the baseball season 10 days hence. Injuries and the failures of rookies to come up to expectations have caused several managers to revise their lineups. The clubs hardest hit in this respect are the Philadelphia Athletics, St. Louis Browns, Detroit Tigers, Chicago White Sox, Brooklyn Robins and Pittsburgh Pirates.

Orwoll Fails at First.

Joe Boley's "dead" arm and the failure of Ossie Orwoll at first base have brought a shakeup in the Athletics' inner works. Jimmy Foxx has moved from third to first and Sam Hale placed at third. Jimmy Dykes probably will start the season at shortstop, although young Joe Hassler's play has made a favorable impression.

Dan Howley has given up hope of developing a rookie third baseman from Ed Grimes, Leonard Dondero and Ed Roetz and has shifted Frank O'Rourke from second back to third base. Oscar Melillo will be at second base. Tom Jennins, a hard hitting outfielder from Wichita Falls, will be used as a pinch-hitter for Melillo when necessary and a rookie infielder used in Melillo's place after the latter leaves the lineup.

Schuble Flat Fizzle.

Heinie Schuble, the highly touted shortstop from Houston, has failed to impress Bucky Harris with the qualifications as a major leaguer and changes have been necessitated in the Detroit lineup. Harris probably will start the season at second himself and shift Charley Gehriger to shortstop.

Charles Cissell, the $123,000 shortstop, may start the season on the White Sox bench as a result of his disregard for training rules. Bill Hunnefield or George Redfern will replace him. Bud Clancy will be at first base in place of Art Shires, the Texas play boy, who attempted to incite mutiny against Lena Blackburne. Shires has been sent to his home at Italy, Texas, awaiting further orders.

The Brooklyn Robins are perhaps in the worst shape of any major league club. Del Bissonette at first base is the only fixture in the Robins' infield and the outfield is far from settled. It is still problematical whether Glenn Wright's arm will permit him to start the season at shortstop. Jake Flowers, second baseman, is still weak from a tonsilitis operation.

Country Boy Puts One Over On City Slickers of New York Commish

BY DAVID J. WALSH.

NEW YORK, April 6.—Having seen Chicago stage one championship fight in which either of the principals stood to make $40,000 by losing, New York will now pull one for the old album. It is putting on a bantamweight championship next Friday night in which either of the fighters can win the title. It isn't difficult to get that way if the attendants are careless about re-lining the cell on the first of the month.

Title Fight Without Titles.

Anyhow, the fighters who will fight for a title they can't have are Kid Chocolate of Cuba and Bushy Graham, the perennial contender, Bushy being one of those lads who is always handy when somebody wants to prove something. The last time, for instance, he helped Charley Phil Rosenberg prove that he, Charley, no longer was a bantamweight and, therefore, no longer champion. On his own behalf, Bushy proved that he had the naive faith of an early Christian.

The contract they privately made for him gave him only a lot of exercise and the right to live.

Putting On the Bowser.

It resulted in the New York commission putting the bowser on everyone concerned for a period of one year, which probably accounts for the fact that the commission has declined to give titular absolution to the Chocolate-Graham winner Friday. In other words, the only championship element the occasion will lack is the piffling detail of no championship being involved.

Mr. Chocolate plans to out-fox the commission by coming in at 118 pounds, thus placing himself in a position to be elected to the title by acclamation. This is very knowing work, indeed, as the fight has been set at the championship distance of 15 rounds and only La Barba will be left for purposes of the run-around when it is over.

Where Bushy Gets In.

Where does Graham figure? As usual, he sees to figure in a manner most un-smart. They had to get the bowser off him again, as a matter of fact, before he could start to figure and Bushy seems to be a lad who needs plenty of advance warning before the figuring is scheduled to begin.

This particular bowser introduced a new figure into a plot that already was complicated beyond redemption. He was only a country boy, as they say, and he came trustingly to the great city, where villainy abounds. Naturally the city fellers were all for plucking him for what he had. But he fooled them: he had nothing. That is, Morgan Bird of Wilkes-Barre had nothing when he came.

Umpire-Manager Kicked Away a Wonder Pitcher

Hubbell Back to Minor Loop, Only to Blossom as Phenom for Giants

NEW YORK, April 6—Every time Frank Navin of Detroit sees the name of "Hubbell" in the Giant lineup, he clutches wildly at his thinning thatch, jerks out a few more hairs, thinks of George Moriarity and thereafter emits groans of anguish and despair.

Yes, 'Tis Sad Story.

It is a sad story, mates. But, after all, what else can you expect when a club owner gathers an umpire unto himself, and tries to make a manager out of him?

Navin can blame Moriarity for the technical blunder, but the Tigers' boss himself is the real culprit. Anyway—

Navin made Moriarty manager of the 1928 Tigers. The escaped "guesser" took his cageful of Bengals to San Antonio for spring training. Included in the group was a left-handed transmitter of horsehide covering and its spherical contents.

Rode the Tigers' Bench.

Whether Moriarity knew that Hubbell was a member of the squad, or mistook him for a volunteer bat boy, is a matter of debate.

But there isn't much debate on the point that Hubbell got as much chance to display his wares in a Detroit uniform as Gilda Gray would get with hers at a D. A. R. convention.

Hubbell was on the training premises, day after day, hoping with his every emotion that Moriarity would let him strit his stuff and help him in polishing off the rough edges so that he might make the major league grade. Hubbell wanted to bring gladness to the heart of Navin, which for so long has ached for the possession of a truly great pitcher.

Never a Chance to Show.

"But I never got a chance," relates Hubbell. "The only time anybody paid any real attention to me was when the squad had to be cut. They noticed my name on the roster and chased me right along to the Beaumont, Texas, team."

Grimly determined to "show up" the Tiger crowd, which had plastered him with an "N. G." label, the port-sided Hubbell went to Beaumont and flashed such miraculous stuff that scouts galore were killed, and many distressingly wounded in the free-for-all brawl to get him.

Giants Grabbed Him.

The Giants won, took Hubbell captive, hurried him along to their Gotham tepee and, as soon as they had bedecked him in their own war paint, they turned him loose against the enemy. The left-handed kid, showing no more nervousness than if he were laboring on a grammar school lot, pitched as glittering for the Giants as he had for the lowly Beaumont club.

"If that kid had arrived a month earlier to bolster up my wobbly staff, it's likely we would have won the pennant," confided McGraw before the end of 1928.

Going Great This Year.

Down in the Giants' training camp this spring Hubbell has been performing with increased brilliance. His speed seems greater, his curves more deceptive and his control well-nigh perfect, and he has the poise and the wise head of a weather-beaten old-timer.

"He will win 25 or more games for us this year," gloat the gleeful Giants, as they see in Hubbell a mighty battering ram to use in crashing through to pennant heights. And then those Giants, loudly seconded by the experts, add the something that brings those low moans from Frank Navin:

"He's a $150,000 pitcher that the Tigers kicked aside and we got him for a song!"

JAPAN SOLDIERS PLAYING RUGBY

TOKYO, April 6—(I. N. S.)—Rusby football has been accepted by the Japanese army as a semi-official course, according to the new supplement to the military drill regulations published by the Army Department.

In military language the English pastime is referred to as "Ball Battle" with fitting changes made in the position of players. The full-back, for instance, is called the "gateway defense," the three-quarter line, the "third-line of battle," the half-back position "the second line of battle" and the forward ranks, "the first line of battle." The goal posts are termed "the gateway."

AMERICAN TEAM AWAY THIS WEEK

Premier Yankee Golfers Embark Wednesday for Ryder Cup Test.

Special Quarters Fixed Up on Mauretania to Practice Enroute.

NEW YORK, April 6—The members of America's Ryder Cup golf team, who sail from New York for England Wednesday, April 10, to defend the international trophy against the pick of Great Britain's professional linksmen, as well as to play for the British open championship, will not be lacking for practice during the Atlantic crossing. Every provision is being made to keep the ten golf argonauts in perfect physical fettle for the tests with the Britons at the end of this month and early in May.

The Ryder cup matches will be played over the Moortown course, near Leeds, April 26 and 27, and the British open classic will start May 6 at Muirfield, near Edinburgh, in Scotland. America's golf argosy embarks shortly on the Maurentania, the greyhound of the seas, and officials of the Cunard line have just announced that they have arranged to provide the American invaders with every facility to help them maintain their fine golf form on the journey across.

Practice on Upper Deck.

A portion of one of the upper decks of the giant liner will be set aside for constant use by Captain Walter Hagen and his mates. Several driving nets will be installed, as well as apparatus registering the distance on drives. Miniature putting "greens" will be available; also obstacles for chip shots.

Every section of the United States is represented in the Ryder cup lineup. hTe east, middle west, far west and the south have capable standard-bearers on the array, which consists of the following:

Personnel of Team.

Walter Hagen, captain, Detroit; Johnny Farrell, Gene Sarazen and Joe Turnesa, New York; Horton Smith, Joplin, Mo.; Ed Dudley, Los Angeles Cal.; Al Espinosa, Chicago; Leo Diegel, New Mexico; Johnny Golden, Paterson, N. J.; Al Watrouse, Detroit.

Smith and Dudley are the two new members of the squad, all the others having figured in the overwhelming victory over the British team at Worcester, Mass., in 1927. Smith is the latest scintillant in the golf firmament, and is expected to make a brilliant showing on his first visit to foreign lands. During the winter campaign, just closed, young Smith—he will celebrate his tyenty-first birthday in England, May 22—won seven major tournaments and a total of nearly $15,000 in prize money. These included the $15,000 LaGorce open event at Miami (first prize was $5,000 in cash and $1,000 in gold plate); the Florida open championship at Jacksonville and the North and South open at Pinehurst last week.

Dudley Second to Smith.

Dudley finished second to Smith in the LaGorce classic, two strokes back of the Joplin sensation, and the performances of Smith and Dudley abroad will be noted with keen interest by golf followers throughout the world.

Hagen's showing in the LaGorce tournament, in which he tied for third place, at 292 strokes for the 72 holes of medal competition, only three shots behind the victorious Smith, presages a possible "repeat" for this "lion of the links" in the British open. Recently Hagen won the international four-ball team championship with Leo Diegel from Farrell and Sarazen in a 36-hole match that was not decided until the final green, where Hagen's birdie three settled the issue.

The Grand National steeplechase was first held in England in 1839 and has been staged ever year since, though the races from 1915 to 1919 were regarded as substitute affairs.

Maj. Gen. John A. Lejeune, former commandant of the marine corps and now superintendent of Virginia Military Institute, is a strong believer in sports.

The Way Side Tee.

BY GRANTLAND RICE.

A young professional golfer from Joplin, Mo., is starting for an invasion of England and Scotland this week that should turn out one of the most interesting stories of golf. Horton Smith's trip across the Atlantic recalls a far different invasion just twenty-five years ago, when Walter J. Travis put the first dent in British golf supremacy. No two invaders were ever more different. Smith won't be twenty-one until the Ryder cup matches and the British open are over. Travis had never swung at a golf ball until he was thirty-five years old. He was past forty—around forty-one or forty-two—when he went afteh tre British Lion. Horton Smith at twenty has blazed a trail that no golfer has ever followed before for a five or six months' stretch. Horton Smith and Walter Travis, making their first invasion, were over twenty years apart in age. No one gave Travis a chance over the long, hard Sandwich links, where hard hitting is a big factor, but he was just long enough to clear all the bunkers as they continued to move the tee back near the final matches. Travis has been credited with winning this 1904 championship with a putter, but he happened to win it with wood and iron as well. You win no championships at Sandwich with a putter.

Horton Smith gets his first foreign test in the team matches at Moorland park. Dr. McKenzie, who has helped to rebuild this course, called up recently to say that it would be a fine championship test, calling for all-round skill. Smith's fame has already traveled across the big water hazard and he will be followed by greater crowds than he has ever known. There were 3,000 or 4,000 after him at La Gorce, Miami Beach, and about as many at Pinehurst. But in England and Scotland he is likely to look upon 15,000 or 20,000 making an inspection of his golfing wares. They will all want to see the golfer who has stampeded such golfers as Hagen, Armour, Farrell, Sarazen and others for month after month. And whatever happens, they will see a golfer able to meet every requirement that a great golfer needs.

This next invasion of British golf will carry more than its share of high spots. In addition to Smith's first shot at foreign conditions, Hagen, the present title holder, will make a terrific bid to bag his fourth British crown. Hagen is always a leading factor in British golf championships, where he ability to save strokes is a winning factor. Then there will be Johnny Farrell's attempt to hold and wear two crowns at the same time. Farrell is now U. S. open champion of the United States. Another feature will be Gene Sarazen's determined effort to win a British title. Sarazen failed to qualify in the wind and arin of his first trip and las spring, when he had a great chance, a buried ball in a bank guarding a stream failed to help him a lot down the stretch. As it was, he finished only a shot or two back of Hagen.

This will be one of the strongest and one of the most interesting teams the United States ever sent to Great Britain. It looks strong enough to win the Ryder cup tests against British pros, but when the British open starts ti will have to watch Mac Smith and Tommy Armour. Mac Smith has decided that it is about time a Scottish Smith supplanted the Missouri Smith. Mac went over some time ago to get thoroughly set for the effort of his life. He was playing better golf than ever when he went across with more confidence in his ability to set a fast pace and hold it. This next championship at Muirfield early in May will bring together one of the greatest fields that ever fought for a title, and it is almost sure to return a record number of thrills before some survivor leads the field.

Just how many thousands of golfers are facing the new campaign with the fear of slicing in possible estimate. But their number slicing over their heads is an imtheir hearts and the shadow of is legion piled on legion. The hook may get you into more trouble than the slice, but the hook has a better feel and usually a longer run where the sliced ball has the taste of ashes and the feel of complete surrender.

Any scientist woh can take the slice out of golf would be conferring a boon to humanity, since it si something that eats into the soul of such a human army.

How can the slice be cured? This is rather a large order, since a number of things can lead to this heavy malady. It might be of more benefit to take up the main cause of slicing, for if this main cause is cured there will be much less likelihood of any minor causes developing trouble. One famous expert says that the main cause of slicing is starting the club back with the right hand in control. Another says that it is not pivoting or turning, "leaving the left shoulder behind." It so happens that these two faults work together who takes the club back with his right hand in full control is almost certain to leave his left shoulder behind, which merely means that the left shoulder doesn't pivot enough.

If the left side, left shoulder, left hip and left knee are turned sufficiently and properly toward the right on the back swing, then the right hand and arm will hardly have control of the back swing. If you watch most bad slicers you will see an almost total absence of pivoting or turning? They face to the left of the course to allow for the slice and keep their bodies almost rigid. When the left shoulder is locked or stopped during the back swing the golfer is almost certain to bring the club head across the face of the ball on the down swing. It is almost impossible under this condition to swing "from the inside out." He will be sure to swing from "the outside in." And the worse he slices the more he will lock or check that left shoulder.

The club head should be taken back on an arc slightly inside the line of flight and it should come down on an arc slightly inside the ball.

To get this effect it is necessary to let the left shoulder turn freely and comfortably toward the right on the back swing. One can do this and still slice for other reasons, but one will be much less likely to do so.

Here are just a few suggestions for those golfers who are constantly bothered, annoyed, harassed and dismayed by slicing:

1—Start with a square stance, not an open one.

2—Get the left hand more over the club shaft, with the back of the left hand showing.

3—Be sure on the body turn toward the right that the left shoulder isn't locked or checked or left behind. Let the left side turn naturally and easily, just as if you were drawing back to throw a baseball.

These three things will prove to be a big help in curing a slice.

The next step is to concentrate on hitting with the club head and not rushing body, hands and arms in too far in front of the club head.

If the hands are rushed through before the club head reaches the ball it is impossible to keep from slicing. But when one lets the body turn to the right as fully as it should turn, which is well around, it is then much harder to rush the body and hands in ahead of the swing—at least too far ahead.

The club head has a long way to travel. The body has only a short distance to move. If there is lack of body turn on the back swing, then the body is far ahead of its place on the down swing.

What part of the body should leave the pivot or body turn? It is my belief that the turn should come as one part, left heel, left knee, left hip and left shoulder all working together as far as they can. This turn can't be made in sections. It must be one well-linked turn to the right as the weight begins to leave the left foot and flow to the right. Nine golfers out of ten are afraid to pivot. They are too badly cramped, too tense, to let the left side swing around in a natural, comfortable way. But they can get the feeling of this with more practice, thinking along these lines as they swing the club.

HIGHS ON MARK IN HOME RELAYS

Free Junket to the Drake Games as Reward to Best Team.

The first event on the Nebraska interscholastic track program is scheduled to get under way April 8-20—the annual home course relay championships. Events on the relay card are the 440-yard, 880-yard, mile and two-mile relays.

The relay compet is one of a series of home course affairs arranged by Coach Henry F. Schulte, head track mentor at the University of Nebraska, the competition being calculated to boost the interest and improve the caliber of track in Nebraska high schools.

Best Teams to Des Moines.

Athletes wil compete on their home tracks and forward their results to Coach Schulte, the evening of April 20. The Nebraska mentor then will compile the results and enter the first three teams in each event in the high school section of the Drake relay carnival.

E. H. "Red" Long of the College Book Store, Lincoln, will sponsor the appearance of the best relay team in the Drake carnival to be held in Des Moines, April 26 and 27.

Numeral Awards.

Additional numeral awards to Nebraska high school athletes for proficiency in track and field sport were announced Saturday evening by the University of Nebraska athletic department as follows:

Arnold — Herman Nelson, full blue.

Culbertson — Carrol Eisenhart, Adam Brecht, half blue.

Kimball — Kenneth White, full blue.

Harvard—Clayton Schwenk, half blue; Clyde Higgins, full blue.

The opening game on Penn's baseball schedule this year is with Drexel, but seldom is the game played because of rain. This year was no exception to the rule.

The Sportlight

By GRANTLAND RICE.

THE CHANCE FOR 9 2-5.

Bracey of Rice Institute has been timed in 9-25 seconds, with a slight wind at his back. His trainer still believes he is good for 9 2-5 over this route without a favoring wind. The same belief is held concerning Percy Williams, the Canadian Olympic champion. His trainer also is sure that Williams will do 9 2-5 for the hundred before 1929 has dipped into past history.

The main difficulty comes in adjusting split seconds to yards. A fifth of a second at this clip means nearly two yards. Measurements to be nearly true, or timing, must be made in tenths of a second. And even this is difficult work. One sprinter might beat another by a yard and yet both might run in 9 3-5, since one yard would represent less than a fifth of a second.

Some sprinter will be timed in 9 2-5 before the year is over in all probability. Whether he will meet all the conditions of timing and judging and wind is another matter.

NURMI AND THE MILE.

There was a time some years ago when Nurmi, under the best of conditions, pressed to the limit, could have run the mile around 4:06. He believed that he might even beat this mark. But there is small chance now that he will ever equal his own record again of 4:10 2-5. He has run himself out of some of his stamina or some of his speed, to judge from recent exhibitions. Nurmi has been in hard competition now at least for 10 years. The old elastic spring or the young elastic spring in one's legs doesn't last forever. He is still a great distance runner, but I doubt that any one will ever see again the great Nurmi of 1924, when he ran away with the Paris Olympics. He might have beaten 4:08 for the mile at that time, if there had been any mile to run. He had the speed and the stamina on that occasion to beat any one in the world from the mile to the marathon, inclusive.

THE TEST OF FORM.

The test of form is consistency. For example, a ball player hitting in bad form might get three or more hits any one afternoon. But he is never going to lead the league.

A golfer with serious faults might shoot a 70. On a certain day there might be a blend of faults that worked out for good result, largely by accident. Such a golfer would never have a chance for a championship. Lack of form, or lack of the right form, would soon eat into his nervous system.

Form, after all, is nothing but a mastery of the fundamentals. To many it means grace and other fancy trimmings. It is possible to look fairly awkward and still have fine form. Honus Wagner was not the most graceful ball player in the world, but his playing form was almost flawless.

Why is it that certain competitors, apparently backed up by good form, never get anywhere? Largely because they are not temperamentally fitted for competition. Their form is only flawless when there is no heavy pressure at hand. Almost any golfer can show good form at flicking the head from a dandelion or thumping a cigar butt. Hitting a ball over penalizing hazards is another problem. In the first case they are relaxed. In the second they are as full of tension as the average modern fighter is full of alibis.

It is an old story in these dispatches, probably harped on too often, but form and a certain amount of relaxation naust work together. Certainly form and high tension rarely travel the same road.

"I want my football men," says Rockne, "mentally keen but physically relaxed." When you get that combination you have something to beat.

TWO HARD LUCK RECORDS.

In the matter of hard luck pitching episodes, two of the records belong to Theodore Breitenstein and King Brady, from older days. I saw Breitenstein have a no-hit game at hand, with only one man left in the ninth inning. One more man to retire and a no-hit game was on the record. This last man cracked a low line drive through the box that broke Breitenstein's ankle, laid him up for two months and practically ended his career.

Just before that King Brady pitched a no-hit game against New Orleans and was beaten, 5 to 0. The score doesn't always tell the complete story.

A recent supreme court decision was handed down 67 years after the first hearing. How old will that leave Max Schmeling before his managerial troubles are decided?

"Big Train" and Alex Greatest of Right-Handers

Statistics Show This Pair Wonder Hurlers Even In Major Record

BY FRANK G. MENKE.

NEW YORK, April 6—In all baseball history the careers of no two players so closely parallel each other as those of Walter Johnson and Grover Cleveland Alexander who, for many years, were the ranking right-handed aces in their respective leagues.

Big Train Longer On Track.

Johnson became an American leaguer in 1907 and withstood the withering blasts of big time volleying for 21 seasons; Alex started as a National leaguer in 1911, has completed 18 seasons, is embarking on his nineteenth and still has enough of sip and cunning to warrant the thought that he may tie "The Big Train's" durability record.

The gross totals of the men naturally show Johnson leading "O' Pete" in practically all grand totals departments of the pitching art, for the reason that he operated for three more years than old Grover has thus far.

The Grand Totals.

But when all those figures are reduced to a basis of annual performance, the closeness of the race is really astonishing when it is realized that it has been carried on for a generation in rival leagues and under conditions ever changing.

Here, first of all, are the grand totals.

	Johnson	Alex
Pitching years	21	18
Games worked in	802	665
Innings pitched	5,824	5,069
Games won	414	364
Games lost	276	197
Strikeouts	3,497	2,141
Bases on balls	1,405	822
Hits allowed	4,924	4,600

Per Season Averages.

Reducing it all to per-season averages, it is found that Johnson appeared in 38 games each year, either as starting or relief pitcher, while Alex figured in 37 games per year—a remarkably close duel.

Johnson's busiest years were 1914, when he labored in 51 struggles, and 1912, when he was participated in 50 games. Alex made his "iron man" showing in 1915, when he pitched 49 games, while his next best performance was 1911 with 48 games.

The Yearly Performances.

When the innings pitched during the careers of each is reduced to complete nine-inning games, it shows that Johnson slung 658 complete baseball dramas, while Alex has registered 587 full games. When that is averaged down to yearly performance, the astonishing fact is revealed that both Johnson and Alexander averaged exactly 21 full nine-inning games per season during their careers.

And just as strange is the arithmetic which shows that Johnson averaged 20 victories per year through his 21 seasons, while Alexander also was averaging 20 triumphs through all of his 18 seasons.

Strikeouts and Passes.

Johnson was Alexander's superior in the matter of strikeouts, but Alex balanced up affairs by displaying more perfect control, i. e., yielding fewer free tickets to the first station.

Here are the final figures which detail the soul-starring, neck-and-neck race that was run through the years by the two greatest right-handers uncovered since Christy Mathewson's day and who can be rated surely as the peers of the immortal "Big Six":

Statistical Comparison.

	Johnson	Alex.
Years in baseball	21	18
Total games worked in per season	38	37
Total 9-inning games per season	31	31
Average victories per season	20	20
Average defeats per season	13	11
Strikeouts per season	167	130
Bases on balles per season	67	51
Hits allowed per season	235	260
Strikeouts per 9-inning game	5.3	3.7
Bases on balls 9-inning game	2.1	1.7
Hits per 9-inning game	7.5	8.4

Denver Gets in With Heavy Candidate

DENVER, April 6—(I. N. S.)—A new heavyweight candidate who will seek the crown vacated by Gene Tunney has been discovered in Denver—according to his manager.

Ray Melli, known to the boys around North Denver as the "Iron Man," is the heavy, and Frankie Scozza Primavera is the manager.

Melli is 19 years old; six feet tall; weighs 175 pounds, and started working out this week to attain his ambition of gold and glory in the heavyweight ranks.

RUSSIAN OFFICER SETS SKI RECORD

Red Army Soldier Reels Off 1,636 Miles In 64 Days.

MOSCOW, April 6—(I. N. S.)—A long distance Russian ski running record has been established by Gregory Koropotkin, 29-year-old officer in the Red army, who travelled from Omsk, Siberia, to Moscow, 1,636 miles, in 64 days.

Koropotkin twice narrowly escaped death, once when attacked by wolves in the Siberian forests at night, and again when he was forced to cross a half-frozen swamp in the valleys of the Ural mountains. He fought the wolves off with his revolver, shooting at the eyes that gleamed through the dark, and by sher force of human strength pulled himself out of the morass by clinging to weeds. The weather during the trip varied from 10 to 50 degrees below zero.

Arrived in Moscow, Koropotkin told reporters he made the trip for his health and that he felt fine. He lost two pounds in weight and insists that he is an inch shorter than when he started out.

Pug Demands Balm For Hurt Reputation

SAN FRANCISCO, April 6—(I. N. S.)—George F. Hogan, once known as "One Round Hogan," is "humiliated and mortified."

And so he has on file today in superior court a suit for $750,000 damages against a motion picture company and sundry "John Does" for producing the motion picture "One Round Hogan."

Hogan's complaint recites that between 1910 and 1915 he gained his "One Round Hogan" sobriquet by quick knockouts in the prize ring. In 1915, however, he "reformed," married, raised a family and wanted to forget his prize fighting career. And then came the movie bearing his now distasteful monicker as a title, and "showing pugilists stripped to the waist pummeling each other and knocking each other into unconsciousness."

All of which humiliation "ruined his health and held him to the ridicule of his friends," Hogan alleged that it will take $750,000 to soothe him.

GREAT TRACK MARK.

Tommy Conneff's record of three minutes, three and two-fifths seconds for 1,320 yards, made at Travers Island in 1895, is viewed by many experts as the greatest of all track marks.

Nebraska HORSES and HORSEMEN

by "Columbus"

Again occasion seems to call for an additional reference to J. W. Lash of Auburn and his trotting stallion, Pat L., 4, 2:09¼, the first 2:10 trotter bred in this state. Careful investigation shows that Mr. Lash was the first man associated with the light harness horse industry in all the west to breed, develop and race to a record of 2:10, a trotting stallion—and, so far as we are able to learn, that holds true for all of America. In recent years, other men have accomplished as much, but not before 1896, the year Mr. Lash drove his stallion to a record of 2:09¼.

Among the rather small list of men doing what J. W. Lash did, an outstanding figure is George Ketcham of Toledo, O., who bred and raced Cresceus to a championship record of 2:02¼. That was accomplished nearly 30 years ago and since that time only two men have equaled that effort, the first one in mind being J. L. Dodge, Lexington, Ky., who bred and raced to a record of 2:02¼, trotting, the stallion Great Britton, a sire of 2:10 speed, by Peter Chenault, 2:04¾. The other is Fred Edman of Memphis, Tenn., who bred and raced to a record of 2:01¾, the trotting stallion Pavonian, by J. Malcolm Forbes, 2:08.

Warren Dennis, training at David City for a number of years, came to Nebraska at the age of three, but did not start training in this state. After locating in Idaho, Mr. Dennis began his successful career as a trainer and race driver and since that time has brought out a number of very fast horses, the most noted being Hal Mahone, p., 2:01, that was raced to the record given by Marvin Childs; Oregon Hal, p., 2:04, raced by Tommy Murphy, and others.

Probably Warren Dennis drove Billy Mac, p., 2:06¼, more races than he did any other horse raced by himself, and that horse came to his stable after returning to Nebraska. He trained and raced his own trotting mare, Paralee, to a record of 2:08¼, using her for breeding purposes until her death not long since.

Warren Dennis purchased the green filly Shirley Harvester, by The Harvester, 2:01, while a yearling, developed her speed and after that filly gained a two-year-old trotting record of 2:09¾, at Omaha, in 1927, sold her at a long price to eastern parties. But Dennis did not give the filly the record named, that being accomplished by his second trainer, Clyde Bell. A list of trotters driven to records of 2:10 by Warren Dennis follows:

W. J. Conly of Hartington, Neb., giving the trotting gelding Harvest Heart, by The Harvester, 2:01, a win-race record of 2:10 last season over an Iowa half-mile track, has been training and racing more than 30 years and was born at Elk Point, S. D. In 1918 Conly gave David Look, 2:07½, a world's record when he won a four-heat trotting race at Sac City, Iowa, the odd heat being won by the Nebraska-owned trotting mare, Miss Rexetta, 2:07¼. At that time, the Sac City event was the fastest four-heat race over a half-mile track by trotters.

Clyde Bell, giving Shirley Harvester, by The Harvester, 2:01, a two-year-old trotting record of 2:09¾, at Omaha in 1827, started training at Council Grove, Kan. He is a brother to C. D. Bell of Omaha and C. E. Bell of Hastings, both breeders of standard trotters and pacers. He is also a nephew of Ed F. Bell, one of the successful breeders of Kansas. Although living at Hardy, Neb., several years, Clyde Bell is now located at David City.

Ray Reeves came to Nebraska from Colorado and for a number of years was second trainer to Roy Owen, during which time he demonstrated his ability to drive as good a race as any man associated with the business in this state. His best campaign was made with Liberty, p., 2:05, through the Kansas and Oklahoma circuit in 1923, when he started that pacing gelding in 10 races, winning each one and, while doing so, established a record never before approached in that state and never since equaled.

In connection with list of horses driven miles in 2:10 by Mr. Reeves, we wish to state that a seeming inconsistency may exist, as other men drove some of the horses named miles in 2:10 or better. But that is easily explained by stating that Roy Owen, Warren Dennis and Ray Reeves, all drove Verawanna miles in 2:10 or better in races and, so far as Owen and Reeves goes, the same thing is true of Liberty, Prince Mac, Gold King, Lady Fuller, Rags and Red Wing, both trainers having driven those horses.

A list of trotters driven to records of 2:10 by Ray Reeves follows:

Gold King	2:08¼

That mile by Gold King, a Nebraska-bred trotter, established a state record for trotters racing over a half-mile track in Kansas.

A list of pacers driven to records of 2:10 by Ray Reeves follows:

A. L. Clubs Again Train Guns On Yanks.

The pleasant expressions in this American league managerial gallery have no significance. They're all worried. Miller Huggins is afraid his Yankees will succumb to the law of averages and not repeat, and the other seven pilots are afraid they won't.

NEW YORK, April 6—The same old target will be in position ready for the heavy firing when the American league season opens April 16.

In other words, the Yankees apparently are the team the rest of the junior loop clubs will have to shoot at again this year.

When Miller Huggins began experimenting with the left side of his infield the remainder of the clubs had new hopes for a break. But Mark Koenig and Leo Durocher now seem to have mastered their new positions at third and short respectively, thus giving Huggins a perfect rating on another big test.

Since the only hope for the remainder of the junior loop teams is for the Yankee machine to crack, some observers also have sought to pick on the throwing arms of Second Baseman Tony Lazzeri and Pitcher Herb Pennock as weak parts. Yet both players declare their wings to be ready for duty.

The rest of the field in the American league represents a wide variety of changes over last year, with the exception of the Athletics and Browns. Connie Mack has the same squad that rallied brilliantly to crowd the Yankees in the closing days of the 1928 race, and Dan Howley plans to use his 1928 lineup unless one of a pair of rookie third basemen beat Frank O'Rourke out of the third base post.

There has been much more activity in the way of trades and purchases at Washington, Boston, Chicago, Cleveland and Detroit. Washington has a new manager in Walter Johnson, a new third baseman in Budy Myer and also has Stuffy Stewart, formerly of Birmingham at second base to replace Bucky Harris.

Cleveland has concentrated on new outfield strength, buying Porter and Averill from the minors and getting Bib Falk by trade. Detroit, with Bucky Harris at the helm, has a rookie, Dale Alexander, at first, Roy Johnson, another first-year man in the outfield, and a makeshift keystone arrangement that may finally draw Harris into service as player-manager.

The White Sox are counting on Autrey, a young catcher obtained from Cleveland in the Falk deal, for needed reserve strength behind the bat and have two recruits—Johnny Kerr and Art Shires — at second and first respectively.

Boston, which received five Washington players for Budy Myer, has these and other new men to look to for help. Bigelow, who batted well up around .400 for Birmingham in the Southern league, has been showing promise both at bat and afield and may supply that old punch that Bill Carrigan looked for in vain last year.

Walter Stewart pitched 13 innings for the Browns and Blaeholder hurled the last inning. By innings:

St. Louis— 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 1 0 0 1 0 3—5 10 2

Steers Knock Off Pirates.

DALLAS, Texas, April 6—(U.P.)—After 11 innings of fast and furious baseball, the Dallas Steers barely edged out a 6 to 5 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates here today. With a one-run lead staring them in the face at the beginning of the ninth the Pirates ran in one tally to tie the score, 2 to 2. After a scoreless tenth inning, the Pirates bunched three runs in the first half of the eleventh, only to fall down before a Steer onslaught in the last half which netted the Dallas team four runs.

Giants Maul Memphis.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., April 6—(U.P.)—The New York Giants defeated the Memphis Southern league team this afternoon, 16 to 1, giving John McGraw's team a record of 14 victories in 16 exhibition games. Larry Benton and Harry Kelly allowed but eight hits. Bill Terry hit a terrific home run over the center field fence in the ninth. By innings:

Atlanta Scares Cardinals.

ATLANTA, Ga., April 6—(U.P.)—Scoring six runs off Hal Haid in the ninth inning, the Atlanta Southern league club gave the St. Louis Cards a bad scare here today, but the National leaguers nosed out a 9 to 8 victory. Chick Hafey's second home run in two days featured the Cards' attack. He also made two other hits. By innings:

He left with contracts for three fights. He also left his best wishes.

Bushy Frequent Offender.

It all came about through Bushy earning the bowser in Pennsylvania and New York through his lack of interest in a contract to fight Steve Smith under Bird's auspices. Jess McMahon had the Chocolate-Graham fight lined up for the opening of his coliseum here Friday, but, naturally, the bowser had him licked. Ensued then a conference between McMahon, Bird and the managers of the two fighters, from which Bird emerged with Chocolate's contract to meet Smith May 7 and another from Graham, agreeing to meet Archie Bell at Bird's club June 4. In addition, he still had the Graham-Smith fight.

Fighter Pays Fine.

Meantime, the bowser was removed by Graham paying his fine, but Bird took no part of that rap. All he gave during the conference was his word. He agreed that he wouldn't throw the Graham-Smith party until after McMahon had got out from under his fight here.

The point of all this is very simple. It merely concerns the following question:

What and Why Not?

What is this boxing racket coming to and why not? The intricate details concerning Scheling and his obligations to the Garden; McMahon and the Dempsey-Fugazy combine; and the involved terms of the Walker-Loughran and Graham-Rosenberg fights clearly indicate one conclusion. This is that boxing no longer is walking on its heels. It has worn these down to the uppers and has gone back to knee pads.

INJURY JINX ON MAJORS' TRAIL

Pittsburgh Pirates. Earl Sheely apparently has won the first base job and George Grantham has been moved in from the outfield to play second base. Sparky Adams probably will start the season at shortstop, but if Traynor is not able to play, Adams will move to third and Dick Bartel take over shortstop.

Gap in Giants' Infield.

John J. McGraw is dissatisfied with the second base situation on the New York Giants and Melvin Ott, the kid outfielder with the trenchant bat, may be moved into the keystone sack, replacing Andy Reese.

Miller Huggins has definitely decided to start Leo Durocher at shortstop in place of Lyn Lary in the New York Yanks' lineup. Norman McMillan may start the season at third base for the Chicago Cubs in place of Clyde Beck. All other positions in the Cubs' lineup are filled by stars.

The injury to Tommy Thevenow has crippled the Philadelphia Phillies severely. Joe O'Rourke or Terry Lyons probably will be shoved into the breach at shortstop.

FAIRMONT AHEAD TRIANGULAR MEET

FAIRMONT, Neb., April 6—Fairmont high won the triangular track meet with McCool Junction and Exetear held here yesterday. Fairmont scored 53 points. McCool tallied 41 points and Exeter counted 32 points.

White of Fairmont won both hurdle events. The Fairmont half-mile relay team of Breeden, Moul, Brown and Woods won easily. Fairmont will compete att he Hastings relays next Saturday.

Golf Wizard Plays In Foursome Today

NEW YORK, April 6—(U. P.)—Horton Smith, the youthful Joplin, Mo., golfer, who has won seven major tournaments the past winter, will make his Metropolitan debut tomorrow when he pairs with Leo Diegel, P. G. A. champion, in a foursome against Johnny Farrell, national open title-holder, and Gene Sarazen at the Cherry Valley golf club, Garden City, L. I. The match will be over 18 holes.

Brass Tacks

waukee Brewers must have been a sad disappointment to the husky hurler from Dwight, but the young man in question has no real cause to repine. Managerial mistakes in baseball have been many and Manager Jack Lelivelt of Milwaukee, who high-hatted the Dwight boy at the Little Rock camp, eventually may be kicking himself all over the Brewers' home park.

It is on record, we recall, that the Cincinnati club had the immortal Christy Matthewson at a spring camp, but the manager muffed his great opportunity. Christy later joined the New York Giants and, within a single season, bloomed as one of the greatest pitching stars in the annals of the game.

Of more recent date, is the case of Lefty Hubbell, rated today as one of the stellar side-wheelers of the National league. Hubbell was a Western leaguer only three seasons ago—a raw youngster who had so much zipp and stuff that he was marketed to Detroit at a round price. The Tigers farmed him to the minors the following year and when the youngster reported to Manager Moriarity last spring, the Detroit pilot gave Hubbell not so much as a pleasant look, sending him down the river to Beaumont in the Texas circuit.

A two months' campaign at Beaumont did the business for Hubbell, who, as a scout for the Giants appeared on the scene and bought the Tiger castoff for McGraw. Once in New York duds, Hubbell proceeded to turn in a string of brilliant victories, taking rank as one of the season's finds.

Krenk, in coming back to the Nebraska league, hasn't barred the door to subsequent promotion. Meantime, the Dwight boy would take it as sweet revenge to go up again, make good and thus show up the Milwaukee manager.

In taking the football coaching reins at Nebraska, Dana Bible has bitten off a man's-sized chunk. A count of noses of the varsity men in spring practice discloses that of the 11 regulars who started the final game of 1928 in Cornhusker moleskins, only five are in prospect for service next fall. The survivors are Broadstone, Richards and Morgan for the line and Captain Farley and Sloan for the backfield.

Bible's job, therefore, is to develop a center, two guards, one end, a quarterback and a fullback. He must fill six varsity gaps and, in addition, develop a string of subs of first-string quality. We have heard of tougher coaching tasks in football, but can recall nothing quite like it in Cornhusker history.

Losing the services of a regular ever is calculated to prompt heart pangs, but Bible confesses a special regret over the passing of Blue Howell, Nebraska's sturdy, line-ripping fullback of the past three years.

"There was boy I would like to have at Nebraska this fall or on any other team that I ever coached," Coach Bible says concerning the Omaha hardrock. "I saw the Big Six-Southwest post-season game at Dallas last December and Howell showed me the sweetest exhibition of driving football that I ever inspected in 20 years' connection with the sport."

Nebraska has had its Bender, its Chamberlain, its Rutherford and other gridiron satellites, each a specialist in his line, but the writer, after 36 years of scanning Cornhusker squads, is frank to concede that Howell ranks well up with other Nebraska dazzlers of the past.

It is true, quite regrettably, that Howell did not click at full speed in all his games, a discussion of the reasons for which may be passed as a waste of space and printer's ink. The fact remains, nevertheless, that after Blue had closed his book at Nebraska, he mingled in two post-season games—one at Frisco and the second at Dallas—and rounded out his career in a veritable blaze of glory.

One of the teams in the National Professional league is reputed to have made Blue an enticing offer and the writer, while holding no brief for pro football, inclines to the wish that the former Nebraska hardrock may stay in the game, at least another year. Drivers of the Howell type are much too scarce in football to see one pass without working up a profound regret.

Track sport at Nebraska and other Big Six conference schools, with its constant string of indoor meets and relay games, is being overfed on a deleterious diet. Nebraska's cinder-burners, for instance, have participated this spring in the K. C. A. C. indoor, the Big Six indoor, the Illinois indoor relays, the Texas relays and the Southern Methodist relays—with the Kansas and the Drake relays still ahead.

Candidly, this sort of thing is a patent case of over-playing the racket. Track in the Big Six conference well could afford to lay off the numerous early meets, while concentrating on a series of dual and tri-angular meets within the conference circle, thus building track interest in a region where it needs strengthening and eventually leading up to the Big Six outdoor championships and then the national championships.

Neither the Drake relays nor the Kansas relays is of material value to track at Nebraska, which likewise applies to every other Big Six camp. The same statement fits as to every other meet in which the Husker tracksters have competed this year, the only possible exception being the Valley indoor carnival, which, by the way, may be staged next spring at Omaha's spacious new Ak-Sar-Ben den. The Big Six conference will not be doing its full duty toward sport within its own circle until it gets down to genuine business in protecting and conserving its own interests.

Several weeks ago, this department broke loose with a prediction that Foxy Jack Kearns, then in the thick of negotiating a Mickey Walker-Tommy Loughran mitten brawl in Chicago, would by some manner or means wiggle out of a return rumpus involving his man Mickey and our Lincoln prodigy, Ace Hudkins.

The Walker-Loughran affair was staged two weeks ago and Foxy Jack has $50,000 jingling in his jeans. Meantime, not one move has he made toward matching Mickey against the Ace, nor is he likely to be making such a move any time in the future.

The writer was a more than casual witness of that Walker-Hudkins joust of last June in Chicago. From a second row seat, he saw the Nebraska boy make a monument of Foxy Jack's meal ticket in nine of the 10 rounds and then, to his amazement, saw Mickey's mitt hoisted as victor by dint of one of the rawest decisions in the history of the racket. The writer's memory of that Chicago affair is perfectly good, and so is that Foxy Jack—so good, we believe, that Hudkins never will be able to entice Jack and his man Mickey into grabbing a fountain pen to get down on the line.

HUSKERS GO IN SPRING CLASH

against the brand of play used during the Saturday session.

Following the game, Head Coach Bible expressed satisfaction with the showing made during the first game, explaining that the play was rather ragged, as expected, but that it afforded the coaches an excellent opportunity to size up the capabilities of the squad members.

New Formation This Week.

"Next week we shall take up another formation and the game will be devoted to a laboratory drill on its use," Bible continued. The head coach indicated next week would find the squad doing some more passing, although the Saturday game was productive of more than the usual quota of aerial flips manipulated by Nebraska spring squads during the past several seasons.

Although there has been little effort on the part of the coaching staff to groom team play for the Saturday game, the contest went off in smooth fashion.

Plenty Pep In Evidence.

There was the usual epidemic of fumbling, but this was more than offset by the fire and enthusiasm exhibited by the candidates in their efforts to make good in their first game.

Outstanding players among the linemen during the Saturday play included Koster, Greenberg, McPherson, Kroger and Peterson. The backfield luminaries included Frahm, Long, Scherzinger, Marquis, Perry, Paul and Farley.

Punting Laurels to Packer.

Punting honors of the afternoon went to Berne Packer, former Lincoln high backfield star. The sorrel-thatched halfback got off several lengthy kicks which set the "red" team back in its territory during the early stages of the game. Packer was shifted to the "red" team at the start of the second half and twice got away good kicks from the end zone. The two teams lined up at the start of the game as follows:

How They Lined Up.

Reds—	Pos.	—Oranges
Hokuf	LE	Hunt
Eno	LT	Craig
Koster	LG	Gilbert
Morrison	C	Bauer
Greenberg	RG	Justice
Peterson	RT	Douglass
J. Still	RE	Prucha
Peaker	QB	Marquis
Scherzinger	LH	Packer
Paul	RH	Manley
Farley	FB	Frahm

First Period Scoreless.

The tw oteams battled through a scoreless first quarter with Scherzinger bearing the brunt of the attack which finally brought the "Reds" to the Orange 13-yard line as the quarter ended.

At the start of the second quarter the "Orange" team halted charges by Scherzinger and Farley to gain possession of the ball and promptly punt out of danger. Frahm's 25-yard run after an off-tackle play and Packer's long punt carried the play into "red" territory and the two teams were in mid-field at half-time.

The lineups were revised at the start of the second half as follows:

New Second Half Lineup.

Reds—	Pos.	—Oranges
Hunt	LE	Dempsey
Jenkins	LT	Jenson
Schlientz	LG	Gartner
Phillips	C	Rhea
Smith	RG	McPherson
Peterson	RT	Kroger
Still	RE	Nuttleman
Brenton	QB	Hornev
Packer	LH	Long
Andrews	RH	Perry
Bloch	FB	Nelson

Substitutions — Watkins, Holt, Lemkuhl, Marquis, Bauer.

Long Goes 20 Yards.

The third quarter went by without a score, the orange team having the better of the argument, with Long and Perry alternating at lugging the ball.

Shortly after the fourth quarter opened, Long got loose on a 20-yard run which brought the ball to the red 14-yard line. Three line plays failed to gain and a pass to Manley was one yard short of the necessary distance.

An intercepted pass by Bauer and Perry's short jaunt then brought the score for the orange team.

Speculative and southern selling was in fairly heavy volume throughout the short session, but there was noted a considerable shifting of traders to the bullish side private predictions for a return of unsettled weather to the cotton belt failed to materialize.

Both the weather map and forecasts for over the week-end were favorable.

NEW YORK STOCK OPENING.
By the International News Service.

NEW YORK, April 6.

A spurt in the active steel, oil, motor and railroad stocks in the final period of today's short session of the market restored a good part of the early losses and the market was firm in all departments at the close. Speculative interest centered about a small number of the "pool pets" which have been basking in the market spotlight for the last few weeks, but prices scale on heavy profit-taking since Wednesday.

New Haven's leadership in the popular rail shares was emphasized by the 3-point advance in that stock; above 92, a gain of 10 points from the low of last week. Erie and Allegheny Corporation sold higher. United States Steel and Bethlehem led the steel shares and Standard of New York the better grade of petroleum stocks. Transactions today fell under 2,000,000 shares for the first time this year in a Saturday session.

Most of the industrial stocks which led the forward movement near the week-end dropped to lower price levels in the short session of the market today as the result of profit-taking and speculative selling. Some question about the stability of the present price status of copper metal led to the selling of copper stocks, but the volume of offerings was not large and the list recovered most of the early losses.

Excellent reports and surveys of the steel industry helped to boost prices of the steel shares a point or so beyond Friday's final quotations, Bethlehem was the outstanding attraction in this group, with heavy trading around 110⅝. United States Steel held its ground against fairly heavy offerings and Vanadium moved up more than a point.

Nervousness among the rank and file of margin traders over the money market situation helped the professionals in the "drive" against certain sections of the market and it required comparatively little selling pressure to drive the high-priced favorites down a point or more. Radio was freely offered below 99, Chrysler Motor aro'und 94 and American Can at 124. General Motors lost 1¼ at 85 and Wright Aero moved down 4 points to 248.

New Haven and Erie continued at the head of the move in the moderately priced railroad stocks, moving fractionally up the scale. The oils were again under pressure, and in some cases dipped to the lowest prices of the week. Even at these levels, however, they showed moderate gains over last Saturday's closing prices.

Pools in a few of the newcomers to the active list, like Royal Baking Powder, Brown Boveri, Advance Rumely, took occasion to "dress up" their favorites in the hope of enticing a new crop of outside speculators. These specialties at times were among the most active stocks on the whole list.

Motor stocks were inactive rather than reactionary in this period. As nothing was to be gained by "demonstrations" in the motor, copper and steel favorites, the pools withdrew and permitted the market to take its own course. Trading dwindled to the lowest volume of the week, the tape was abreast of the market and odd-lot sales were thickly sprinkled on the tape.

The week-end commodity markets were steady, with cotton off about 5 points and grain fractionally lower.

Industrial stocks were unsettled at the opening of the market today and most of the ecive shares sold off a point or less. Friday's final spurt failed to carry through and was therefore put down as a short covering move of the professionals on the floor of the big board.

A block of 5,000 shares of Chrysler Motor sold at 94⅛, down a point. General motors was unchanged at 85½; Hudson down ⅜ at 86½; Nash down 1 point at 100¼; Yellow Truck down ¼ at 41 and Briggs manufacturing up ¼ at 44¾.

Most of the popular industrials lost ground at the opening. American Can sold off a point at 105¾. National cash register lost a point at 129½; Radio was down ¼; Combustion was up ½ at 72 and Gold dust up ½ at 63⅛.

Bethlehem led the steel stocks with a 1-point gain at 110½, United States Steel was up ¼ at 186⅝; Vanadium up a point at 97½, and Youngstown unchanged at 129¾.

The rails were generally firm, with New Haven up ¾ at 89¾; Kansas City southern up ⅛ at 87⅛ and Pennsylvania unchanged at 75.

Coppers and oils were irregular, with narrow price changes. Atlantic refining moved down ⅝ to 87½. Pan American petroleum sold down ¼ at 80¾; Shell Union down ⅛ at 29⅛; American smelting down ⅝ at 106⅛; Andes Copper and International Nickel down ⅛ each.

Roast Pig!

CENTURIES AGO a Mongolian had the misfortune of having his home burned. Like many of his race he kept a pig as a part of his chattels. To eat? Oh, no. They kept them as sacred animals. By chance, when the fire was over this particular gentleman in searching through the ruins poked his fingers into the roasted pig and almost burned them. Child-like he cooled them in his mouth and—wonderful. They tasted good. He tried it purposely then and liked it. Thus came the discovery of roast pig.

THE MORAL WE SEEK to convey is that many of you prospective buyers of cars look with appreciation on the good rebuilt heavy cars but pass them by as too expensive to operate; too hard to handle; to much tires, etc. If you knew the real truth about their operating costs and their small repair costs, you would always buy a good guaranteed quality car instead of spending a like amount for a two or three-year car. It will pay you to look over and investigate the cars we offer you today. Every one of them represents quality in construction, appearance and comfort.

John Bull Plots Stymie U.S. With Wooden Clubs

Yanks In Their Bid to Win Ryder Cup Must Discard Steel Shafts

BY LES CONKLIN.

NEW YORK, April 6—(I. N. S.)—The Florida golf season, which has just ended, provided valuable training for the members of the American Ryder cup team, who sail on April 10 to play the British team at Leeds in the international event. The professionals ran into a lot of wind in Florida and played under conditions similar to those prevailing on the gale-swept British seaside courses.

Battled Gale In Florida.

Being forced to drive into the teeth of a stiff wind on Florida links eminently suited the Ryder cup players, who realized that the practice gained thereby would stand them in good stead in the international matches. In the tournaments on the peninsula they perfected their low trajectory shots, the "wind cheaters" which are so vital to low scoring on the English courses.

Leo Diegel, P. G. A. champion and a member of the Ryder cup aggregation, says that the windstorm during the national open at Olympia Fields last year ruined his chances. Diegel believes, however, that he has overcome this fault and will be able to get off screeching low hooks against the Englishmen.

Strive for Efficient Hook.

The golfer who seeks an efficient hook is confronted with the same problem as the young baseball pitcher. A sweeping curve, like the round-house baseball delivery, is out like a match in a gale. What Ryder cup players have been trying to perfect is a drive which swerves slightly just before striking the fairway, similar to the outcurve which does not break until it reaches the plate.

Another change to which the members of the Ryder cup team must become accustomed is the matter of wooden-shafted clubs. British golfing regulations do not permit the use of steel shafts and there is the possibility that some of the American players may be thrown off their game by the switch.

Horton Bothered By Wood.

Chief fears in this regard are held in the case of Horton Smith, the brilliant youngster from Joplin, Mo., who has been grabbing all the winter prizes. Smith has favored the steel during his brief but meteoric career. He tried the wooden shafts at the Bellair tournaments in Florida, and the results were disastrous during the winter that he made a mediocre showing.

Walter Hagen and Diegel also must re-shaft their drivers, brassies and spoons with hickory and will practice with the woods along with Smith. The other members of the team—Johnny Farrell, Gene Sarazen, Ed Dudley, Johnny Golden, Joe Turnesa, Al Espinosa and Al Watrous—have been using the wooden shafts all winter.

A score of years after he had graduated from Carnegie Tech with basketball letters, E. L. Schumacker had the pleasure of seeing his son win the same honor.

DE SOTO ADEPT IN BIG TRAFFIC

Chrysler Machine Well Suited For Solving Parking Problem.

More than five million cars are parked daily in the business districts of the large centers of population in the United States, according to a nation-wide traffic analysis just completed by Detroit automotive engineers studying parking conditions throughout the country.

Observers found the De Soto six a car that best meets the serious situation and gave it a wide margin over other makes of cars viewed from a window in a high building in the motor metropolis as they checked the traffic flow in a congested area down town with stop watches. Because of the ease with which it can be parked quickly in a small space, the elapsed time with the De Sota six was considerably lss than for other cars. Officials of the company said this was due to the particular type of steering gear used by the De Soto and the exceptionally quick response of the engine to the accelerator and to the four wheel brakes.

"As much as 10 minutes was necessary to park some cars," said Henry A. Irwin, a Detroit traffic expert who was presnt. "Although this was to some extnt due to the heavy traffic, it was found that some cars did not handle readily in the stram of 2,000 automobiles clocked passing the building. At no time did the De Soto hold up other traffic whil it was being guided to the curb.

Chrysler Stresses Problm.

In this connection it is intresting to note that Walter P. Chrysler in a recent interview, declard that prior to the actual manufacture of any cars by him, he decided ease of parking would be one of their features. He was influenced, Mr. Chrysler said, by watching New York traffic from his offic window, witnessing how long lins of cars were constantly delayed for minutes on end by the efforts of drivers to park cars which wre unwieldly to handle in narrow confines at crowdd curbs.

The De Soto six embodies these features Mr. Chrysler knew would be most acceptable not only to drivers but to officials endeavoring to control motor traffic in congested areas.

Motorists seeking parking space in heavy traffic swoop down on a vacant spot at the curb, the prize falling to the driver with the car that immediatly responds to the touch of the accelerator—the car that handles easily and turns in a narrow radius.

Consequently, parking ease often is a determining factor in the acquisition of a car by the prospective owner.

Many drivers, and especially women drivers, who hav found parking difficult and physically exhausting with other cars, declare they can perform the same operation with the De Soto six much more readily.

HUDSON OFFERS COLOR VARIETY

Company is Marketing 176 Combinations in New Models.

Cars Adapted to Meet Individual's Desire For Distinction.

To give the idividual car distinction increasingly demanded by motorists and at the same time retain the cost advantages of mass production is the problem long tried by the automobile industry, and now solved by Hudson-Essex engineers, according to announcement of the Hudson Motor Car company. Continued development, to meet the expressed demand of the public, has marked the progress of the automotive industry. Its most important achievement to date has been the development of mass production of cars, at almost incredible speed, with every car manufactured to constantly more exacting specifications laid down by engineers, to insure perfect fit of very working part and consequent smoothness of operation economy and long life.

Public Wants Indiviuality.

Public demand has made important changes necessary. Today's car must meet the individual's desire for distinction. This demand has been met by the development of the wide range of colors now available in paint jobs, with body colors, stripings and wheels to harmonize in tint, and in the color and the material of upholstery fabric. Originally, individual taste could be satisfied only by the buyers of high-priced cars, who were willing not only to spend large sums of money to get a distinctive car but to wait for weeks, if necessary, to have the car slowly colored and upholstered to their order.

Individuality in motor cars used to mean extra money, plus extra length of delivery time. The manufacturers have faced and solved this problem, as they have so many others connected with the development of the industry. Because of improved systems of conveying parts in factories, they have been able to develop to a marvelous degree the synchronization of arrival of the 2,00 parts of the car at the assembly line. Modern methods of manufacturing and applying color to automobile bodies, fenders and wheels have played their part in producing the handsome, colorful cars that are the present vogue.

In the case of the Hudson Motor Car company, this method of manufacture has been carried to most remarkable lengths. iWth the present setup, the company is marketing 176 color combinations and 225 different types of cars—considering each variation, even minor, as a separate type. This is done with the same speed and resultant economy of production that ordinarily mark the manufacture of cars that are precisely alike in every particular.

Clashing of Gears.

The clashing of transmission gears is the result of hasty shifting and not givin gthe clutch the chance to throw the gears into neutral. With practice the driver soon can acquire the habit of hesitating a fraction as he shifts from one gear to another. To attain quiet changes of speeds only takes a little experimenting to become acquainted with each individual car. Once found, however, the driver will know the exact fraction to hesitate and will change gears with no more noise than a slight click.

WHIPPET SALES SMASH RECORDS

Increase of 33 Per Cent Over Previous High Marks of 1928.

New Body Design and Finger-tip Control Are Popular.

Although Whippet sales from month to month in 1928 set new high records for Willys-Overland, sale o fthese four and six-cylinder products in the first quarter of the current year show an increase of 33 per cent over the same period of 1928, John N. Willys, president, said last week at Toledo. This unusual high sales volume is attributed to the immediate wide public acceptance o fthe new cars which bring to the low price field a new standard of style and performance usually found only in the higher priced cars.

With this marked increase in Whippet sales in the first quarter over any similar period in Willys-Overland history, executives point out that the company's car building schedules for the present year, which call for a record output, is fully justified.

Finger-Tip Feature Popular.

It is pointed out that both the Whippet four and the Whippet six, in addition to setting a new style trend in body design, color combinations and fitments, also include distinctive mechanical improvements that have been important factors in the high sales volume. Both the four and the six are equipped with the new "finger-tip cnotrol," which consists of a button in the center of the steering wheel placing all the functions of starting the motor, operating the lights and sounding, the horn at the finger-tips of the driver. Since these cars were first shown, this feature has attracted the widespread attention, not only of the public but the entire automobile industry as well.

With the wheelbase of both the four and six materially increased, it has been possible to design the bodies with longer and more sweeping lines and at the same time provide increased roominess in the interiors for driver and passengers.

This high production is being maintained, not alone at the Toledo plant ,but at all other Willys-Overland factories in Pontiac, Mich., Elmira, N. Y., Toronto, Ont., and at the new assembly plant which was recently opened at Los Angeles.

Auto Notes

Obstinate cotter pins can be removed without difficulty by a claw hammer or a steel rod with an "S" shaped point.

Nebraska Horses And Horsemen.

by E. G. Bohanon, Lincoln. We first learned of Erickson when he was shoeing horses for the late Ed Gould at Kearney, and during that time developed a fast three-year-old pacing colt that he sold for $3,500 to parties at Knoxville, Ia. He has raced at Nebraska meetings a number of years.

Fred Robare, training in Nebraska as long as any man we know of and winning races away back in 1876, drove but one horse a mile in 2:10, that one being Spill, p, 2:06½, greatest money winning pacer ever bred in this state. The year Robare had Spill in such good condition, he won 13 races with that gelding and gave him a record of 2:09¼. Robare resided at Beatrice many years, dying five years ago.

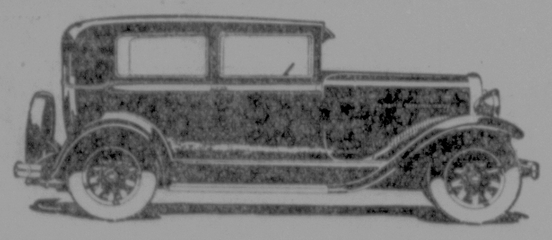
The 1929 Oldsmobile is winning even greater admiration from owners, because it is

DESIGNED TO DO ALL THINGS WELL



It is a relatively simple engineering task to design a car that emphasizes only a few qualities at the sacrifice of others. It is an engineering achievement, however, to combine all desirable qualities to an outstanding degree in a balanced whole. Yet that is exactly what Oldsmobile engineers have done in the new 1929 Oldsmobile.

You have only to drive it to realize what brilliant all-round performance it provides. Its big high-compression engine now delivers 62 horsepower. And the piston pins are pressure-lubricated, a feature formerly characteristic of high-priced automobiles.

In appearance, this finer Oldsmobile is as beautiful and as smart as any car on automobile row. Its grace of line—its perfection of detail—its harmony of color—all bespeak the artistry of Fisher craftsmanship.

The interiors are luxuriously appointed and richly upholstered . . . they are roomy and restful as well. And the new Fisher adjustable front seat, combined with Oldsmobile's adjustable steering wheel, assures a comfortable driving position.

Why Fat Returns
when folks stop starving

One may reduce by starving, but the fat returns when one stops. The reason is this: Most people who are over-fat have an under-active thyroid. That is the gland which largely controls nutrition. Until this deficiency is corrected, much food goes to fat.

Modern physicians, in treating obesity, aim at this condition. They use to correct it the chief factor used in Marmola.

Marmola prescription tablets are made by a famous medical laboratory. The formula appears in every box, also the reason for results. Users know what they are taking and why.

When science discovered this method and proved it, the main factors were embodied in Marmola. That was over 20 years ago. Since then, people who were over-fat have used millions of boxes. Users told others the results—the loss in weight, the gain in health and vigor. Thus the use has grown to enormous proportions.

That is one great reason why excess fat is nowhere near as common as it was. Slender figures are the vogue.

Beauty, health and vitality demand that excess fat be banished. To lose 20 pounds means to drop ten years. Try it in this easy, pleasant way.

No abnormal exercise or diet is required. Go get Marmola. Watch results for a little while and you will be delighted. Don't delay.

Marmola prescription tablets are sold by all druggists at $1 per box. If your druggist is out, he will get them at once from his jobber.

The present exhibition has been assembled to contribute to the general knowledge on the subject rather than to convey any adequate idea of the qualities and characteristics of the work of the artists representde.

A collection of nineteen water colors by Elizabeth Spalding of Denver are on exhibition on the third floor corridor of Morrill hall. Miss Spalding has exhibited widely in this country and abroad, and examples of her paintings are found in several of the more prominent art museums.

Axis Club Election Officers

Delegates to Convention Chosen and Professor Pool Speaks.

Axis club held its regular meeting at the Y. W. C. A. Tuesday night. This being election night, the meeting was a closed one. Prof. Pool of the University of Nebraska gave an illustrated talk on our national parks. There are twenty or more national parks. Professor Pool took Axis members on an imaginary vacation through several of the western parks. Many of the pictures were from Rocky Mountain national park in Colorado, which has more high mountains than there are in Switzerland.

Thousands of tourists go to Switzerland each year to view its scenery, and many of them do not know that Colorado is just as picturesque. Professor Pool conducts a class of tourists very often, saving that sometimes the mountain climbing is done on foot and sometimes on hand and foot. He said that Uncle Sam never tires of talking of the glories of his parks where beautiful lakes nestle among the snows of the mountains, and nature's colors have no rivals. Here and there are built cabins so that tourists may rest or stay over night. He showed many pictures of wild life in the mountains, telling of the beds of beautiful flowers growing out of the snow, and of the birds found among the highest peaks, one of which changes its feathers from a dull brown in the warm season where it nests among the shrubs, to pure white when the winter snow surrounds it.

One of the most beautiful and most interesting pictures was of Mt. Ranier which covers 160 square miles. Prof. and Mrs. Pool spent six weeks in the mountains the past summer when many of the pictures were taken, including their own party.

Officers, Delegates Elected.

After the program the election returns were reported as follows: President, Dr. Margaret Hammond; vice-president, Fay Sherwin; recording secretary, Lillie Peterson; corresponding secretary, Margaret

Tuesday

we start a special 7-day demonstration

of the new Frigidaire

Cold Control

FROM April 9th to April 16th we're giving one of the most interesting exhibitions ever held in our showrooms. We are demonstrating the new Frigidaire "Cold Control." We are showing how it speeds the freezing of ice cubes, salads and desserts—how it gives you a wide variety of Frigidaire-frozen delicacies that could never be made before.

Taste one of these new desserts

The development of the "Cold Control" has made it possible to add dozens of delightfully different recipes to the Frigidaire Recipe Book. And during the entire week of the demonstration we will serve in our display room delicious frozen delicacies made from these recipes.

Helpful hints from domestic science experts

As a special feature of our demonstration we have arranged to give our guests a valuable book on refrigeration written by Dr. P. K. Bates. This book shows you how to make the best use of the storage space in your refrigerator. It tells you which sections of your refrigerator to use for different foods. It tells you how to keep foods fresher—longer. Be sure to ask for your copy of this free book.

SPECIAL OFFER
for seven days only

We are prepared to make a special offer to all who buy Frigidaire during our 7-day demonstration. Let us tell you about this offer. Let us give you the surprisingly low prices. Let us tell you about the General Motors liberal payment plan. Come in tomorrow or at your first opportunity. We will be open evenings until ten o'clock all this week.

Don't fail to see the most sensational electric refrigerator ever announced

Another feature of our 7-day demonstration will be the new D-4 Frigidaire—a Frigidaire that can be placed in your home at the lowest price in Frigidaire history. And yet, despite its remarkably low price, it has all of the essential features that have made Frigidaire the world's most popular electric refrigerator.

See this new Frigidaire. Compare it with any other electric refrigerator. You will agree that the D-4 sets a new standard of value. Don't miss this special demonstration.

Charles Porter, a Pioneer Resident of Ponca, Reviews Changes Last Half Century

By HARRY L. PETERSON.

Nearly fifty-four years of married life have been rounded out by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Porter, residents of this community for forty-nine years. They were married at Leyden, N. Y., June 1, 1880.

In looking back over a half century of change Mr. Porter declares there is a world of contrast between the old order of things and the new. For instance, when he came to Dixon county butter was worth 5 cents per pound, eggs 3 cents a dozen, flour sold for 60 cents a sack, corn was worth 10 cents per bushel, hogs 3 cents a pound, a load of hay could be bought for $1.50 and he often worked for a $1 a day.

Oxen and the grain "cradle" were still in use and fortunate the man who had a good buggy to travel in. Wearing apparel was often of the coarse home-spun variety, yet warm and serviceable. Overshoes of those days were crude and expensive and the men generally wore gunny sacks wrapped around their greased cow-hide boots. Fields of corn were "checked" by a sled marker and planted by a hand planter. Forty and fifty acres were considered large fields. The first corn planters which came shortly after were equipped with a rope checker and wooden buttons in contrast to the steel planter wires of today.

Arrived in 1880.

Mr. Porter arrived in Dixon county in June 1880 and went to work for Fay Mattison in his sawmill on the river bottom northwest of Ponca. That fall he worked for Solomon Stough in a sawmill located at Elk Point, S. D., and later for George Mattison on the Nebraska side of the Missouri river.

Having been joined by his wife Mr. Porter says they set up housekeeping in a tiny cottage near where he worked. They paid $3.50 for a set of six chairs and Mr. Porter made a table and two bedsteads to complete their furnishings.

The Missouri river bottoms was the scene of a great flood in the spring of 1881 and Mr. Porter and two men were marooned in the cottage when the flood rose in the night. They were rescued in a boat and given breakfast by S. P. Baltzly, a neighbor. Fearing the possibility of a flood Mrs. Porter remained in Ponca and so escaped the danger. That fall Porter worked in the sawmill operated by Lincoln Baltzly and helped saw thousands of feet of lumber which went to build Dixon county farm homes. The following spring he purchased a farm west of Ponca which he still owns.

Mr. Porter was born in a log house in Cattaraugus county, New York, April 27, 1854. He grew to manhood on the farm and helped his father clear the land of trees. He says he has often milked eighteen cows twice a day when he was a lad at home. His mother, like all pioneer mothers, spun the family clothes from flax and wool. Mrs. Porter was born Dec. 29, 1858 at Ithaca, N. Y., and grew to girlhood near Jamestown. Both are active for their ages and enjoy good health. They have five daughters, all married.

Value of Nebraska Research

By CHANCELLOR E. A. BURNETT.

One of the hardest tasks, and yet one of the greatest needs, of university work is to explain to the average man the practical value of research work and adequate libraries. What do men who work in laboratories really accomplish? What is the object of accumulating in libraries thousands of musty volumes and reports?

The answers to these questions are no better illustrated than in a piece of research work which the university has just completed and which is here publicly mentioned for the first time.

This was the problem:

In northwest Nebraska horses were dying from a mysterious liver disease. That was about all that was known about the matter at first. It was not any ordinary disease, but something insidious that baffled the ordinary man who tried to solve it.

The problem was presented to the university. What caused the disease? Out of the scores and scores of possible causes how would it be possible to select the right one?

It meant intensive study of the symptoms of the disease, repeated trips to northwest Nebraska, laboratory examinations of material and experiments of one sort and another by the department of animal pathology.

While this was going on, there was study into all the reports of the past to determine if there had ever been outbreaks of this kind before in any part of the world.

Briefly, the project required more than two years of careful study, but it was finally determined that it was a species of the scenecio, a wild prairie, plant that was causing the disease. In some of the isolated parts of the world, it was found, that this particular plant had caused trouble, and in Africa the disease had attacked human beings, when accidentally some of the plant became mixed with flour. But it could not be left to guesswork. It was necessary to determine by feeding experiments with scientific accuracy that this was the cause of the Nebraska trouble, and the facts now seem to be proved beyond a doubt.

Here then is a very definite and practical illustration of the need of research, experimentation, and adequate library facilities.

Summer Sports Outdoors Planned by the Y.W.C.A.

The basketball season closed April 3 with the Hectors and the Be Be's playing an exhibition game. The elimination of tip-offs in the game, introduced by Coach Sam Barry of Iowa, was the feature of the contest and a fast open passing game took the place of bunching at the center.

The Hectors won for the season with a record of five games won and none lost. They turned in a total of 106 points. The Be Be's, runners up for honors, turned in a total score of 187 points, passing the winners by 81 points. The Live Wires took third place with four games won and 93 points accumulated. Total scores and games won follow:

	Games won	lost	points
Hectors	5	0	106
Be Be's	4	1	187
Live Wires	4	1	93
Kandy Kids	2	2	76
Nebraska Buick	2	4	36
Telephone	1	3	57
Y. M. C. A. Flashes	0	4	54

The season was topped off with a picnic at Oakwood lodge, the Y. W. C. A. camp at Crete. Thirty girls attended. Baseball, hiking, nature hikes and cooking dinner over a camp fire on the bluffs overhanging the Blue river were features.

Tennis Season Opens.

The tennis season opened Monday April 1. Despite a rather damp court beginners started practicing forehand drives against the building. Much interest is aroused by tennis among the business girls due to the recent closing of the winter sport season.

More experienced tennis players are invited to become members of the club. Invation tournaments will be held Saturday afternoons. Wednesday evening is taken up with advanced players alone and special instruction given in advanced technique.

Out Door Sports.

Bicycling occupies a prominent place among the sports offered this spring. Trips for beginners and picnics for experienced riders are but a part of the program. Many different groups are interested in bicycling this spring. Matrons of the city as well as the business girls,—even the high school youngster pedals along beside her mother—all may be seen bright mornings joyfully riding along country roads.

Hiking will be sponsored in relation to groups of star gazers, weekend campers, picnickers of all kinds. Many hikes are planned to study birds, nature hikes, reducing hikes, breakfast appetizers, overnight camping hikes. Hikes Saturday morning early are planned for the business girls.

Camp craft will be offered this year due to a demand by enthusiastic campers. Biscuits on a stick, kabobs, slimbilligans, and hunters stew will be only a sample of the appetizing concoctions cooked by groups of ruddy-cheeked business girls. An all-night hike with star gazing, sleeping in the open air on beds of boughs, built by the campers, will give zest to the program at the end of the season.

Horseback Riding.

Horseback riding is a sport of keen interest among the young matrons of the city. Advanced riders are starting fancy riding, and long rides with picnic dinners are planned. Beginning riders are learning to "post" a trot and canter. They too, will attempt longer rides and picnics.

Archery is an interesting feature in the individual gymnastics classes. Tennis and archery vie for honors among the very slim and the nicely plump matrons. Archery is being introduced in all classes this week and archery tournaments will be worked out later in the season.

April Lightning Imprisoned In The Diamond

April's birthstone was likened by the ancients to imprisoned lightning, and certainly the ecstasy of April, with its sharp electric showers followed by radiant sunshine, seems to be embodied in the diamond.

According to Greek legend, the diamond owed its origin to a beautiful, pure-minded Greek youth of that name, who had helped to care for the great god Jupiter in his cradle. Unwilling to see this beloved Diamond suffer the ills and final extinction of other mortals, Juniter transformed him into pure crystallized carbon, the hardest and most brilliant substance in nature, this securing his immortality.

With this tale, the diamond became the symbol of indestructible purity, and so figured in the magic lore of succeeding ages. Even today the children of wealthy Hindu parents in India are sprinkled with diamond dust as their naming in order that they may grow up pure and virtuous.

It was a diamond in the girdle of Queen Donna Isabel II of Spain that saved her when an attempt was made upon her life. Striking the stone, the point of the assassin's dagger glanced off, leaving only a small flesh wound instead of a mortal one.

The great Napoleon also firmly believed in the good fortune attracted by diamonds, and well he might, since it was the famous "Regent" diamond of France, on which he borrowed large sums of money that made him emperor of the French. Later when the mortgage was lifted on the huge stone he had it set triumphantly in the hilt of his sword.

In addition to all its other virtues, the diamond was said to be especially beneficent to wedded love, which doubtless accounts for its important place in engagement and wedding rings. It was called the "Gem of Reconciliation" and certainly its power in this respect cannot be questioned even today.

Diamonds And Their Value

How can you tell a good diamond when you see one? This question, which puzzles many people who are planning to present diamonds in some form of jewelry to their families or to the girl or boy friend, is easily answered. The answer is: "You can't!"

At least, the average person is no more equipped to judge diamonds, with all their strange variations and idiosyncrasies, than he is to judge Vermeers or Rembrandts, which explains why so many fly-by-night jewelry auctions do such a highly profitable business in paste. Unless you have had years of experience in handling and examining precious stones, then the only sensible thing to do is to buy your diamonds from some one who has—some one whose reputation is at stake if he shows faulty judgment.

A diamond is not a standard article like a motor car or a radio, for Nature seldom, if ever, duplicates herself. Although the price of the stones in the rough is standardized by the London Diamond Syndicate, the rough stones go into the hands of cutters of varying degrees of skill, over in Amsterdam and in New York, so that there is no telling what any individual stone will be worth by the time the cutter gets through with it.

It is the cutting which brings out the diamond's color and brilliancy, which are the two most important factors in establishing its value. Without brilliancy the finest natural stone appears undesirable; in fact, an uncut diamond is by no means a thing of beauty—you would scarcely bother to pick one up if you saw it lying on the sidewalk.

Among the ordinary stones with which the average person is concerned, white and white with blue tints are the most desirable and valuable, while yellow and brown tints are the least so. The term "white," as applied by the trade, covers all these varying degrees of color. Yellows are worth only about half as much as crystals; browns are only about a third as much, and the various tints of yellow in between are scaled accordingly. Diamonds with decided blue tints are the most valuable of all the "white" stones.

Although possessing fine color, a diamond may yet lack brilliancy, which may be either a natural lack or due to poor cutting. So-called lumpy stones—that is, stones which are too deep—are worth 20 per cent less than well-proportioned, finely-cut stones, and "overspread" or shallow stones are worth from 10 to 20 per cent less than those of normal brilliancy.

Besides brilliancy and color, the question of perfection (or degrees of it) enters importantly into the valuation of a stone. A flawless diamond is one of the rarest objects on earth, so don't get your hopes aroused in that direction. Usually the finest stones have the largest flaws, which is a pet way Nature has of mixing extremes, so that a flaw more or less need not bother one, although, of course, some flaws are less desirable than others. In many cases these so-called carbon spots or fissures are imperceptible to the naked eye and do not in any way mar the brilliancy of the stone; in others they are plainly visible if you blow your breath on the stone while it is cold and hold it in a north light.

Many people in buying diamonds prefer to select their stones unmounted, choosing their own settings. This is because size and color and flaws may be more easily perceived in an unmounted stone, and special designs in settings are now in great demand by women of fashion. In buying a diamond ring or bracelet or wrist watch, there is just one way for the average person to be sure he is getting his money's worth, however—and that is to take the word of a reputable jeweler.

Prince of Wales Buys Cuff Links Set With Jewels

THE PRINCE OF WALES.

The Prince of Wales recently bought for his own use a pair of beautiful cuff links for evening wear. Each link consisted of four diamonds set in platinum with a sapphire as centerpiece cut en cabochon. During the day, the prince wears plain gold links and enameled ones when he goes riding or indulges in some other form of sport. Sometimes he wears in his hunting stock a beautiful miniature of a fox's head worked out in tiny diamonds. Not very long ago the Prince of Wales paid a great compliment to modern jewelers, whose designs he described as having reached "the zenith of perfection."

Jewelry fashions for men follow a very somber course, the only real note of distinction being the blending of precious metals into folorful patterns. Cigarette cases and holders, lighters and cuff links are usually of gold and platinum, although the latter are frequently of crystal or onyx. Pearl tie-pins are extremely fashionable and one often sees a solitaire diamond, sapphire or ruby as an ornament in the neckwear.

Modernistic Style.

That the new, or modernistic, style of decoration is due for a prolonged stay in the favor of the women of today is evidenced by the eagerness with which they have accepted the new designs in diamond and wedding rings as well as the triangular motifs displayed in the recent watch patterns.

Diamonds Owned in United States are Worth Four Billion

American girls surely have their share of the diamonds, or if they haven't—they should have. For there are in the United States over $4,000,000,000 worth of these gems, an amount in excess of the combined capitalization of the United States Steel and American Telephone & Telegraph. Few of the largest, most famed world diamonds are United States owned, however, the nation's diamond supply consisting chiefly of stones of moderate weight.

Jewel Fashions to Be Different, Say Designers in Paris

The question of future jewel fashions, when put to a number of important designers on the smart Rue de la Paix, was almost unanimously answered with the opinion that diamond jewelry will be distinctly "different" during 1929. Severe and pure lines, extreme simplicity and an entire absence of familiar forms will distinguish the new ornaments, it is said.

Paris is wearing brooches in pairs. Two identical pins, either of which would be sufficiently striking if worn separately, are placed, one where each shoulder strap would start if Chanel had not ingeniously substituted an almost invisible strip of flesh colored net, or one at the front and one at the back of a dress of which front and back cut are almost the same. Two matched brooches are likewise worn on daytime dresses, sometimes each at the corner of a square neckline, sometimes both on the left shoulder.

Note of Simplicity.

For its simplicity yet utter lack of extremeness the new wedding ring is refreshing. The plain, highly polished band of dainty platinum or white gold is relieved by two tiny rows of beading near the edges. This style particularly adapts itself to the custom of adding a diamond on each wedding anniversary, and presents a very stunning effect when paved all around with the brilliant gems.

PLANS FORMING TO TAKE CENSUS

Army of 100,000 is Expected to Start Work Next November.

Will Be Fifteenth Decennial Count of Population in U. S.

WASHINGTON, April 6—(U. P.)—Down at the United States census bureau plans for the fifteenth decennial census of the United States, which probably will begin next November, are getting under way. An army 100,000 strong is being assembled to take stock of the population, resources and activities of the country.

A population thirty times greater than that the 4,000,000 persons revealed by the first census of 1790 and twice larger than that of 1890 is anticipated by the bureau when its computations are completed next year, William M. Steuart, director, said today.

"History records no other instance in which population has increased so rapidly," Steuart said. "And there has been no other nation in which the increase in population has been accompanied by such improvement in the comfort and well being of the people."

Contrasting the 1920 census with the first one conducted in the nation's infancy, Steuart said:

"In 1790, there were in the United States only six cities having as many as 8,000 inhabitants. The population of these cities formed a little more than three per cent of the total population of the country. In 1920 there were 924 such cities and their population was nearly 44 per cent of the total.

Gain 1,400,000 Yearly.

"The population of continental United States is now increasing at the rate of about 1,400,000 persons per year, or approximately one person every 23 seconds. The total increase is made up of the annual excess of births over deaths, which amounts to 1,150,000 and the excess of immigration over the emmigration, which amounts to an additional 240,000 per year.

Taking of a census is mandatory under the constitution. The first census reported only family heads and the total of persons in the family. The record for 1790 lists the family of John Hancock. Only his name is given, but his household was recorded as including two white males over 16, three white females, and seven other persons not white, presumably negro servants.

Inclusion of individual names began in 1850. The census of 1860 lists Abraham Lincoln's family as including himself, his wife, Mary; his three sons, Robert T., Willie W., and Thomas; a servant, and a boy of 14 named Philip Dinkell.

Director Steuart and his 100,000 or more assistants must "take stock" of the United States in one month, whereas the sheriffs, who were assigned the job in 1790, were given thirteen months.

Losses in Rebellion Are Unusually Heavy

Reports of Passengers Indicate 2,000 Were Wounded and 400 Killed of Mexican Federal Force of 3,000.

LAREDO, Texas April 6—(UP)—Special train loads of wounded Mexican federal soldiers brought into Monterey and Torreon Friday afternoon and evening from the battle field near Jimenez, Chihuahua Mexico, indicate federal losses in that battle in killed and wounded were much heavier than first reported.

Passengers arriving here by train Saturday noon from Torreon stated that over six hundred federal wounded were brought to Torreon for treatment at the hospital there Friday afternoon, while another passenger reaching Laredo from Monterey stated that federal wounded were being treated in Monterey hospitals.

Reports current in Monterrey were that several hundred federals under the command of Gen. Juan Andreu Almazan were also killed in the battle with rebels before Jimenez and about 2,000 wounded.

It is estimated that of the force of 3,000 federals under Almazan, about 400 were killed, while the rebel losses were more than 600 killed.

Artificial Cotton Growing is Planned by American Group

LONDON, April 6—(U. P.)—Owing to the overwheiming volume of inquiries from America regarding artificial cotton, C. J. He will be accompanied by experts and will be ready to enter into negotiations for the American growing of the plant whose fibers produce the artificial cotton, which he discovered in British Guinea.

DURANGO, Colo., April 6—(INS)—Workmen were busy today repairing damage to railroad tracks and washed out bridges in the San Juan basin, caused by flood waters and snowslides that menaced the district during the past forty-eight hours. Anne's Sister Flies Back To Resume Studies

BROWNSVILLE, Tex., April 6—(U. P.)—Miss Constance Morrow, daughter of Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow and whose sister, Anne, is engaged to wed Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, left Brownsville this evening by train to resume her studies at the Milton academy, Milton, Mass.

She was accompanied by Mary F. Turner, chaperon and traveling companion, who will remain with her throughout the journey to Milton.

Miss Morrow and her companion arrived here this afternoon as passengers aboard the regular mail and passenger plane of the Mexican Aviation Co., running daily from Mexico City to Brownsville.

Miss Morrow said little today concerning her future plans and would not pose for photographers. With Miss Turner, she spent her few hours here shopping.

Police Baffled by Murder Case At Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES, Cal., April 6—(U. P.)—Forty-eight hours of intensive investigation have failed to produce a single clue to the murder of the girl whose decapitated body was found floating in the Los Angeles river Thursday night.

Authorities said tonight that the case was "the most puzzling in southern California's history," and admitted that all efforts to establish the time, place and manner of the killing, as well as the identity of the girl and her slayer, had been fruitless.

During the day, the sheriff's office asked "newspapers, radio stations and the citizens" to aid in clearing the crime and report any incidents which might have a bearing on the case.

Friends of Mrs. Hazel Glab, widow of John I. Glab, former Chicago druggist, told the sheriff's office that the body might be her's.

Officers discounted this report since Mrs. Glab appeared at headquarters last week and asked that a gun belonging to her be returned because she was going back east.

Glab was shot to death in front of his home almost year ago in what was said to be the followup of a fued that started in the beer running racket in Chicago.

DENVER WOMAN IS A MRS. KING

Mrs. Eleanora Becker Shows She Legally Married Bigamist.

DENVER, Colo., Apil 6.—(U. P.)—Mrs. Eleanora King, 35, of Denver, late today revealed that she was the legal wife of William Hamilton King, 41-year-old bigamist, who committed suicide in Chicago Friday. Two other wives in Chicago already are wrangling over which shall have charge of King's body.

Mrs. King, known in Denver as Mrs. Eleanor M. Becker, president of the Lady Eleanora Mining Co., also disclosed that she and one of the Chicago wives, Mrs. Mildred King, lived here with King last summer while the two women nursed him through an illness and broke him of the drug habit.

Mrs. Becker, member of a titled Danish family, she said, settled in Richmond, Va., in 1907. The William King family lived nearby. A school romance developed and one day William Hamilton King, then 19 years old, and his 13-year-sweetheart, Eleanora Becker, slipped away and were married. Their parents objected and they separated, she said, but there never was annulment or divorce.

Had Second Ceremony.

Mrs. Becker studied painting and music in this country and Germany, went upon the stage and dropped the name of King. She came to Colorado ten years ago studied mining and finally started her own company. In September, 1927, she went to Chicago, she said, and chanced to meet King again. He wooed her and they went through another marriage ceremony.

Learning of her husband's addiction to narcotics, she discovered he had married another woman—Mildred—in 1918. Mildred seemed to be the only one who could influence King when he was under the effects of narcotics. Mrs. Becker decided to bring King to Colorado in the hope of saving his life, but she feared she could not manage him by herself. So she brought Mildred along.

After Mrs. Becker had made a long fight to save King, paying out hundreds of dollars for doctor bills, she gave up the fight, a separation was decided on and King and Mildred went back to Chicago to live and Mrs. Becker went back to her mining business.

She said after he left Denver, King sent her long telegrams threatening to kill himself.

Dillingham is Held by Cleveland Police

Sales Manager Who Left Body of Baby in Car Says Grand Rapids Undertaker Sent Him.

CLEVELAND, O., April 6—(U. P.)—D. S. Dillingham, district sales manager of Pennsylvania for a manufacturing company, who on March 25 left the body of a week old boby in a brokendown car in a Cleveland garage, tonight was held by police here pending word from authorities in Grand Rapids, Mich.

When Dillingham was arrested tonight and taken to police headquarters for questioning he revealed that the baby's name was Nancy Iee Edgar, daughter of William L. Edgar, Cransdal Road, Grand Rapids, Mich. He said that D. W. Greenhoe, a Grand Rapids undertaker, had given him the body to take to Erie, Pa. for burial. He produced a removal permit bearing the number 1664 and issued in Grand Rapids. He had no transit permit.

Dillingham revealed that the Grand Rapids undertaker gave him the old automobile in which he brought the body of the baby as far as Cleveland. The car bore Michigan license number 553,532, issued to a resident of Kalamazoo. Dillingham said the reason he did not call for the automobile sooner was that he did not know whether the undertaker would stand for such a large repair bill.

Dillingham left the car in the garage on March 25 and a day later told the man in charge that there was the body of a dead baby in the rear. He came back again on March 30, ascertained the amount of the repair bill and left, saying he would return immediately with the money.

When he did not appear in two days, the garage owner notified police. Their investigation today revealed a live canary in the same compartment in which the baby was found. The bird had lived, apparently without food, for 11 days.

OPERA STAR ON FAREWELL TOUR

Schumann - Heink Will Appear at Coliseum May 1.

Mme. Ernestine Schumann-Heink, now making her farewell tour, will appear in Lincoln at the coliseum Wednesday night, May 1, under the auspices of the American Legion.

The great contralto's tour, which is of unprecedented proportions, will bring her back to the Metropolitan Opera company where she will sing once more the great Wagnerian opera arias which brought her world fame. She will sing this year in seventy-five of the larger cities in the United States and Canada.

At the outset of her tour Mme Schumann-Heink was accorded the remarkable honor of being greeted by the governor if New Jersey, Harry Moore, and a delegation of a dozen New Jersey mayors. Last year, her golden jubilee of song, she was lavished with honors by governors, mayors, organizations, colleges and audiences.

Made Her Debut in 1909.

Her American debut was made January 9, 1909, when she sang in the role of "Ortrud" in "Lohengrin," for the Metropolitan Opera company at Chicago. She was recalled twenty times in her sensaional debut.

Only four weeks later her eighth and only American born child was born in New York City, being christened George Washington Schumann-Heink. Five weeks later she sang for the first time in the Metropolitan Opera house and scored as senstional a debut there as she did at Chicago.

Since the New York success in 1909 Mme. Schumann-Heink has been an American institution. During the war she not only gave her sons to the American cause but also sang for the soldiers. As a result of her efforts in behalf of her country she was known as the "Mother" of the service men.

After the war she made tours in behalf of the disabled soldiers. For her present tour, which is considered significant in the history of music, Mme. Schumann-Heink has given herself a liberal rest and is fully refreshed to carry her art to what many critics believe will be its greatest heights.

Crete Boy Violinist To Be Sent To National Orchestra Summer Camp

(Special to The Star.)

CRETE, Neb., April 6—The violin recital of Millard Taylor last Tuesday sponsored by the various civic clubs, was a success from every standpoint. The program was excellently rendered and the large audience enjoyed it thoroughly. This concert was to help provide the funds to send Millard to the national orchestra camp at Interlochen, Mich. Of the $300 necessary, more than half was raised by this initial attempt. Club representatives and business concerns all contributed to the success of the concert, and there was but very little expense incurred.

A meeting of the committee in charge will be held Monday night to discuss means to raise the remainder of the money. The Crete Music club has already volunteered to give a benefit tea on April 28 at the home of Mrs. Robb Douglas. The program at this tea will be given by the Doane string quartet and Miss Kathleen Carter, soprano soloist.

Millard Taylor, who is a sophomore in high school, has fine native talent plus ability won by hard work; a lovely tone quality and considerable interpretative ability. His program given on Tuesday evening included such numbers as the Sonata in G Minor by Locatelli, two movements from the concerto in G major by De Berfot and a group by Hubay, Dvorak-Kreisler and Wienaski.

His sister, Miss Ruth Taylor, a junior in Doane, is an exceptional accompanists as well as a soloist of ability. She played piano numbers by Liado, Palmgren, Chopin and Padrewski.

Sports frocks in a series freshly suggestive of youth—some in silk shirting, some in checked cottons, and some in plain linen. These combine the vertical with the horizontal effect—the skirts evenly kilted and having the pleats sewed down in vertical lines, the blouses using the stripes horizontally. Lingerie chemisettes and frills are enlivening touches. Sports skirts remain short. The frocks are often sleveless and are usually accompanied by a cardigan or a hip-length jacket. Vivid blue used for yachting costumes.

Pyjamas for varying occasions and, therefore, varied accordingly—from sturdy beach pyjamas to totally different models in diaphanous fabrics for the tea-hour. Characteristic sports pyjamas developed in light woollens—such as white flannel trousers belted around a high waistline, with contrasting jersey tops and short coats. Much brilliant colour used, notably scarlet. Tea-gowns for the informal home dinner have many original elaborations.

The daytime silhouette is expressed in movement; upward in the front, downward in the back; flat at the front and back; fairly full at the sides. Waist-lines show a tendency towards the higher natural line, often accented by a belt. Numerous boleros.

Scarfs, sometimes separate, sometimes attached to the dress or coat, are much in evidence. The kerchief scarf is seen, but the most effective form is the long, narrow scarf made by piecing together strips of flat crepe in different colours. This scarf is worn in a number of ways; it may be loosely knotted at the neckline, with one long end extending down the side front of the dress and passing underneath the belt.

* * *

Ensembles for the afternoon are composed of frocks in plain or printed crepe de Chine, tussur, or georgette, with cloth coats matching the predominant colour. Three-quarters and full-length coats have large fur collars—frequently fox dyed in costume shades. Asymmetry and incrustation are apparent in coats of all lengths. Many wraps of autumnal or winter character are shown, including fur.

For evening, printed mousselines de soie, with strass or bright bead embroidery used at the neck or outlining the armholes. Lace, georgette, tulle, and a new crepe with a satin finish are favourite materials. Colour combinations are striking and bold—such as red and green or vivid blue and yellow. Multicolored floral designs. Plaids. Some taffeta. Many boleros, both simulated and actual. Some removable little jackets, capes.

* * *

The evening silhouette is characterized by a flat bodice, moulded to below the hips; full skirt, long in the back, or trailing occasional trains or very long panels. Low back decolletages.

* * *

MINERVA'S MAIL

Take Your Troubles To Minerva

Self-Control Is Merely Intellect Mastering Elemental Impulses, Says Minerva, in Advising a Young Wife to Curb Her Jealousy—A Girl, Who Craves to Be with People, Revolts Against the Prospect of Following Her Husband to a Lonely Mining Camp Which Offers Him Prospects of Great Material Advancement.

No Time for Jealousy.

"The human intelligence is a highly complicated organism in which intellect is forever conflicting with elemental impulses."

We can all testify to the truth of that, can't we? Even the most highly civilized humans easily revert to the savage when moved by over-mastering passion. Self-control is merely our intellect mastering the elemental impulses.

Dear Minerva: Two years before I met my husband he was engaged to another girl. Since we have been married he has received several love letters from her and then a letter telling him of her engagement. My husband suggested me writing and wishing her happiness, and said if I didn't he would. Her folks are old friends of my husband's folks. In her last letter she told him she would never love another as she loved him. Shall I write her or shall I let my husband? I want to do the right thing. E. B. L.

A—Why not both write her and wish her joy? That would show a charming spirit and also that you know the correct thing to do if she doesn't.

The Other's Happiness.

"Human nature frequently bungles in love making. A cold wife is only another way of expressing a disillusioned, disappointed wife. The husbands of cold wives have only themselves to blame; they have never taken the trouble to master the art of making love.

"The authentic article (love, has but one vital desire—and that is the happiness of the beloved. It is utterly selfless. It is equally prepared to go to the uttermost ends of the earth with the beloved—or to stay out of that person's life forever."

That is what a famous beauty, who had scores of lovers, said of that most talked of passion—love. Not many of us can measure up to her standards, can we? We demand possession of the loved one.

Dear Minerva: I have been married just one year and am very much in love with my husband. We have been very happy the year of our marriage. We have so much in common that we are great pals.

But now a serpent has entered our Garden of Eden. I call this serpent ambition. Maybe it might be called greed. Anyway my husband has an offer of a position that will take us to a small, primitive mining camp. The pay is over twice what he is now getting, with a chance for making quite a large additional stake if the mine turns out as expected. He is just wild to take it and will not listen to my pleas that I cannot live in such a forlorn, remote little place.

I have always lived in a city, and have lived right here for fifteen years. Our parents both live here and we have many friends. Our life is simply ideal as it is. Why should he want to change it just for more money? I haven't any pioneering blood in me. I hate camping and roughing it in general, although I like riding and all kinds of outdoor sports. I love lots of people around me and would simply wilt away from own folks.

Now he says he is going, whether I go or not. I say he does not love me if he will leave me for a job. He says I do not love him or I would be willing to go with him. There will be five other young college men and their wives in the camp, which he thinks will give me companionship enough.

Since I am utterly content to live always on his present salary rather than go to such extremes for more money, don't you think he should be content to stay here. Many men have mercenery wives who drive their husbands to great odds to earn more money. But I am not that way.

Life is so short. It seems to me we have no right to go so far from our folks. What do you say? Betty.

A.—I say that your psychology is all twisted.

In the first place, it is the wife's duty and should be her pleasure, to follow her husband wherever his business ambitions carry him.

A man cannot be happy unless he is living a creative life nad carrying out his own ambitions for success in his own fashion. His desire to improve his opportunities does not spell greed. It merely means the fulfillment of his normal craving for betterment, for attaining higher ends.

To stand still, to remain in one position and one place, simply because life is pleasant and established there, means going stale and getting in a rut when there are bigger opportunities ahead.

Be a good sport and look at the problem from your husband's point of view. You want to be an inspiration and a help to him, not a drag. Go into the venture with him with enthusiasm and courage.

You will probably be amazed at the fullness of life which you will find possible in a small mining community. You will doubtless live in a place of great rugged natural beauty. Most mines are located in such spots. You will find that you will not only get nearer to nature in such a place, but nearer to human nature as well. Your neighbors and friends will mean more to you. There will be so many things you can do for others, for the children of the foreign laborers hired there, for the men who are alone and lonely. Social service work in such a community is not a harsh, hard thing, but a work of direct, warm contact.

Stay in your own snug little circle and you will become bored with your round of parties and social outlets, or become narrowly self-satisfied. Go with your husband, put your shoulder to the new enterprise, and you will grow with him and live a rich, broad life of service and happiness.

Questions In Brief.

L. O.: I think I would stop worryin about the boy, as you are both so young. Be friendly to him, as he says he will be to you, but that is all. I think you will feel better so.

Irish: Just let the boy friend have plenty of rope. Why not accept dates with other boys. Practice your dancing so you will feel sure of yourself, and have as good a time as you can, and maybe he will get tired of his freedom and come back.

Anna: By all means introduce the silly young girl to this man's wife. She will probably feel remorse or at least lose some of her confidence when she sees what a sweet, trusting little wife he has. She is, of course, just a headstrong, silly girl to think she can carry on a flirtation with a married man and get away with it. When she meets the wife she may be brought to her senses more quickly than through any opposition. For, unfortunately, opposition often just feeds the flame of an illicit affair.

Winifred: He doesn't sound like a very strong character to me. Maybe he lost his girl because his mother ruled him too much. Just be a good pal and don't let your heart run away with your good judgment. And don't write him notes, even if he does ask you to.

FOL SUNDAY MINERVA

A Back Seat.

Should the girl friend take a back seat for the boy's relatives? That is the problem of one young lady. If he has a date with her, should he break it to take his mother out or to entertain relatives? I think I'll probably get in wrong whichever way I answer, but I'll take a chance.

Dear Minerva: I am a girl twenty years old and have been going with a young man for over two years. We were going to a party the other evening but he called and said his mother had asked him to take her to visit a sick relative, that he was sorry but he had to cancel his engagement for the party. Once before I stayed home because some relatives had come to visit them and his mother wanted him to drive them around.

It is very annoying and hurts my pride when I have to ask some other boy to take me or stay home while he humors his relatives.

He is very good to me and does what I want him to do unless he has to do something for his folks. Do you think if I let him keep on favoring his people like that that it would cause a good many disputes with his people after we are married? We have planned on getting married in midsummer. FAN.

A.—It depends entirely upon you, as far as the last question is concerned. If you are unselfish and thoughtful for his people, remembering that after all he belongs to them, too, you won't have any trouble. But if you insist upon having him all to yourself, regardless, you probably will have disputes. I would think that the two times he has broken dates with you for his relatives were quite within reason. The fact that he is loyal to his mother and wishes to please her only augurs well for his future thoughtfulness of you. You don't want the mother to entirely lose her boy just because you have a share in him, do you?

A Case of Pride.

Dear Minerva: I am going with a young man whose mother does not like me because people have told her untruhts about me. I love this man very much and although we are not engaged, I do not care to go with any other man and he never goes with any other girl, so I believe he likes me very much. He even says he loves me, but that he is unwilling to propose to me because of his mother's objection to me. What can I do to make his mother think better of me. I have never met her and do not feel that I want to meet a woman who is so prejudiced against me. Please advise me what to do. MARJORIE.

A—If you are in love with this man and he is love with you, certainly you have too much at stake to let your pride conquer what may mean a great happiness for you. By all means arrange some way that you may meet the young man's mother and by your association with her show her that you are not nearly as bad as you have been painted. Pride is a terrible thing at times and causes much unnecessary grief. Just put your pride in your pocket for the time being and say to yourself that you will convince this woman that she has been mistaken.

The Fruit of Gossip.

Dear Minerva: Your article on gossips recently interested me. Like the poor, we have them always with us.

Recently in our circle of friends a divorce was nearly caused through a gossip who spied on others, believed the careless evidence of her eyes and carried tales to another woman.

It was this way. She told that she saw a certain husband coming out of an office building about noon one day and getting into a taxicab with a pretty lady and a suitcase. She said she just happened to see them later getting on a train several miles from where they left the office building. How she happened to see all this, I don't know. At any rate she told the story and it found the ears of the wife of the man and she was a jealous woman. The husband refused to answer her questions and there was a family feud lasting several weeks. It lasted, in fact, until the explanation was possible for the husband to give.

Now if this woman who spied had followed this man on the train she would have found that he got off at a near-by station and that he put this woman in charge of a woman detective who was on the train for this purpose. For the man was a lawyer and was helping this woman to get evidence on her husband who was traveling on that train. He couldn't tell the wife, for his client had sworn him to secrecy.

And now the story has spread so that many people believe that the husband of the wife who boarded the train got the divorce from her, not she from him, and that it was because of the trip with the lawyer. And there are those who severely censure the lawyer's wife for continuing to live with him. When all he was doing was his professional duty. Fortunately the lawyer's wife did not let her jealousy carry her to exertme measures as many might have done. LONG SUFFERING.

All Are Pretty.

Dear Minerva: The world is so full of pretty girls, how can a man ever decide to settle down with one of them? I am twenty-six years old. I have no desire to be frivolous all my life. I have an awful reputation of being a good-for-nothing flirt. I have no ambition for such a reputation or game.

This is my trouble though. I meet a girl and think, "Aha, she is the girl I have been looking for all these years," and I give her the mad rush and think I am madly in love with her for an indetermined length of time. Some crushes last longer than others. They usually last until some time I meet some other girl who for the time seems to completely eclipse the girl I had thought perfect. And on it goes.

I am afraid to tell a girl I admire her now, for fear that she will take me seriously and I will soon find she is not as charming and beautiful as I had thought her.

It's terrible to be so fickle, but what is a man to do in a world of lovely girls. I swear I would be afraid ot marry, for fear the disillusionment or displacement by another would come after the ceremony. DICK.

A—Better not marry while your fancy darts from this to that type, from this to that girl. You might find it a help to regain normalcy to let them all alone for a while and spend your time with your men friends.

I am not greatly alarmed over your condition however. You may simply be the non-marrying sort. Sure most likely, some day you will fall so had for a girl that no other girl could possibly pick up the pieces.

Five hundred girls were shown through the museum Saturday afternoon, on a trip sponsored by the city Y. W. C. A. The exhibits were pointed out to them by F. G. Collins, and an explanation was made to them by Miss Marjorie Shanafelt of how fossils are obtained and cared for. Things for which Nebraska is noted were emphasized by both Mr. Collins and Miss Shanafelt.

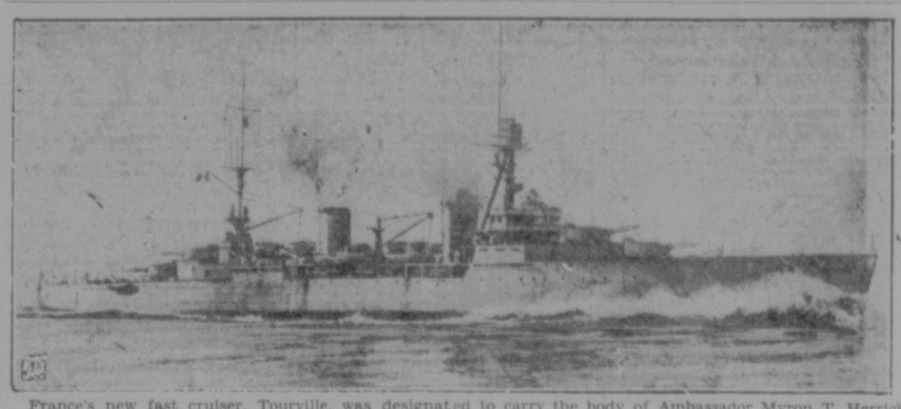
French Cruiser to Bring Herrick's Body Home

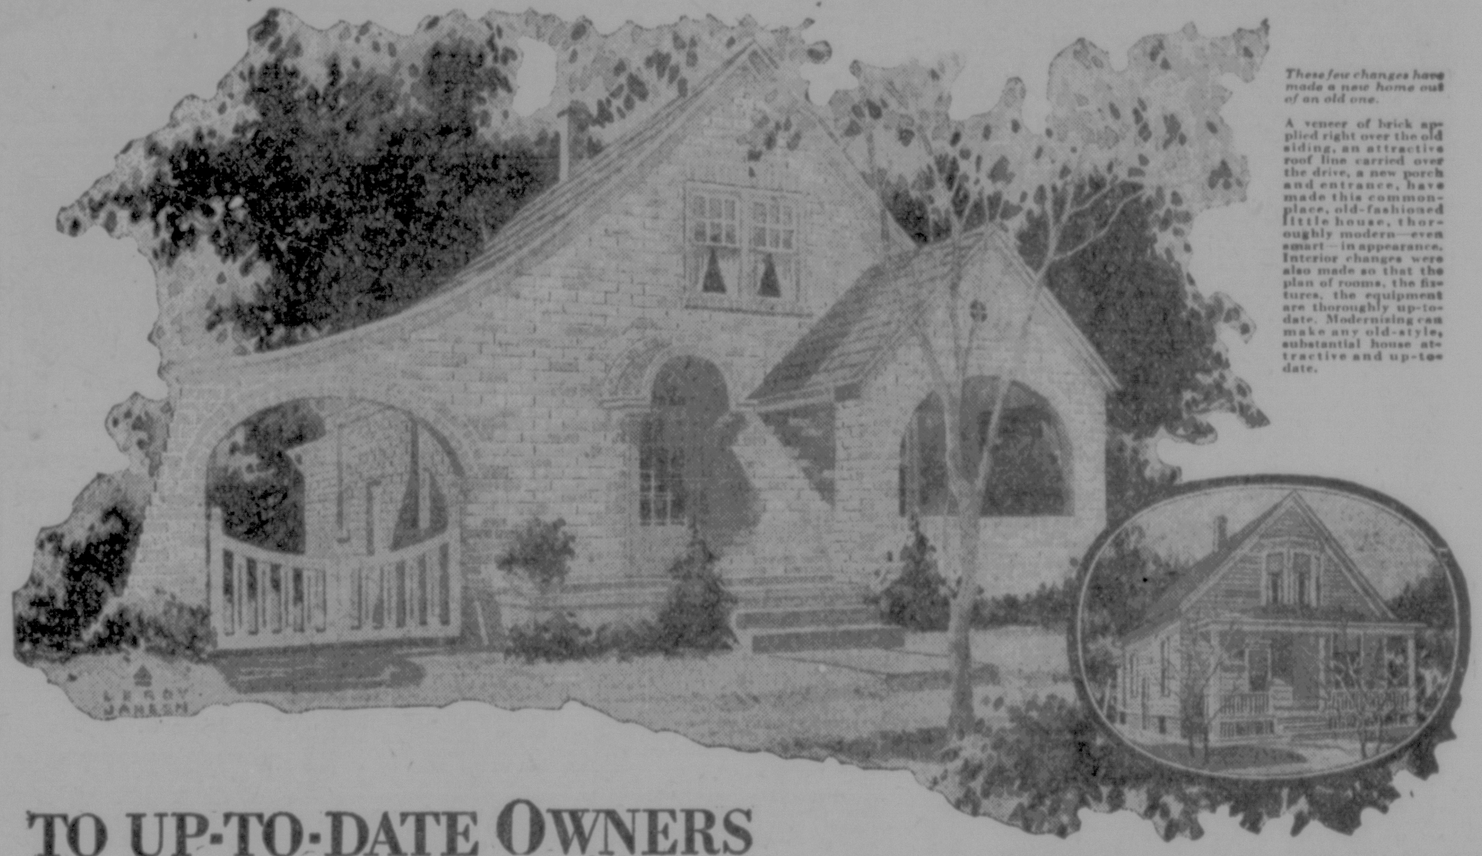


France's new fast cruiser, Tourville, was designated to carry the body of Ambassador Myron T. Herrick to the United States following funeral services in Paris.

Cotner Notes

Dr. Hamilton P. Fox, pastor of the First Methodist church, Lincoln, gave the chapel address Thursday, describing the city of Jerusalem, which he has visited. This talk was especially appropriate to Passion week.

The Y. W. C. A. elected officers for next year as follows: president, Wenona Mills, '30, Lincoln; vice president, Frances Smith, '30, Lincoln; secretary, Esther Logan, '31, Longmont, Colorado; treasurer, Lillie Krick, '32, Minden; council representative, Cleon Oldfather, '31, Lincoln.



These four changes have made a new home out of an old one.

A veneer of brick applied right over the old siding, an attractive roof line carried over the drive, a new porch and entrance, have made this commonplace, old-fashioned little house, thoroughly modern—even smart—in appearance. Interior changes were also made so that the plan of rooms, the fixtures, the equipment are thoroughly up-to-date. Modernizing can make any old-style, substantial house attractive and up-to-date.

TO UP-TO-DATE OWNERS

OF OUT-OF-DATE HOMES !

Learn now how other home owners have added comfort .... attractiveness .... value .... to substantial but unmodern homes

ROWS of houses structurally sound, but sadly out-of-date. You see them everywhere. Here and there a fine old home with queer gables, gingerbread, and old-style windows. Modern once, but entirely out-of-place now. Obsolete in appearance, in sanitation, in heating, lighting and cooking facilities. And hard to sell at any price!

Your home may be one of these. It may not be satisfactory to you as a home—yet because it cannot be sold except at a loss you are forced to keep it. There is no need to live in an unsatisfactory, old-fashioned home. No need to sell at a tremendous sacrifice just because it's out-of-date. Find out how easily you can modernize it.

You can easily give it new lines . . . new equipment . . . new conveniences . . . new comforts. And by doing so, you will increase its value far beyond the cost of modernizing.

We will gladly tell you how your home can be made modern. Tell you for instance, how one home valued at $4,000 was remodeled for $3,600 and then sold for $11,000. How hundreds of others have been increased tremendously in value. We will tell you how you can get plans, how you can have the work financed in the same way new construction is financed.

TWENTY-SEVENTH YEAR. LINCOLN, NEB., SUNDAY, APRIL 7, 1929. SECTION D EIGHT PAGES

WHEN NEBRASKA WAS A TERRITORY

Charles B. Strong, Now of Havelock, Was Absorbing The Vivid Experiences of A Pioneer Child And Meeting Men Whose Names Today Are Listed in State History

BY LULU MAE COE.

When Nebraska had been only two years a territory and included half the middle west, more than a decade before Lincoln was so designated, and when it was casually known as Salt Flats, three years before the Colorado gold rush, and years before motor cars, electric lights, radios, permanent waves, and lumber jackets for the drawing room, the W. H. Strong family came to Johnson county, prepared to make a home in the new country.

Government surveyors had just completed their county surveys when the family came in September, 1856. Noble Strong, brother of W. H. Strong had come to Nebraska the previous June, when surveying was under way, and had located a couple of claims for himself and his brother.

As the land had been surveyed, but not offered for public sale, the Strongs at first were squatters on their claims. When the land came to the market a land office had been established at Brownville, and the newcomers filed their declaratory statement, to obtain land under the provisions of the pre-emption act. Each qualified pre-emptor, a year from the date of his statement, was entitled to 160 acres of minimum or double minimum lands subject to pre-emption by paying the government price, $1.25 in the former case, the price paid by the Strongs.

Located Near Vesta.

The W. H. Strong quarter-section was located west of Vesta, where he was later the first postmaster. The town was named by his brother, in honor of a former favorite pupil in his school in Connecticut.

A 5-year-old son of W. H. Strong, Charles, came with his parents to Nebraska, and was destined to witness many of the interesting events of pioneer days. Charles Strong will be 78 years old April 16, but he is as mentally vigorous as a man many years younger, and he enjoys recalling the hard days of a pioneer youth, and reminiscing of some of the noted characters of the day. Mr. Strong now makes his home with his son, Hubert Strong, 840 L street, Havelock.

Mr. Strong was born in Litchfield county, Conn., in 1851, and a year later was taken by his family to Ohio. From there, they removed to Jones county, Ia., about thirty miles west of Davenport, and in September, 1856, when Charles B. Strong was a little more than 5, the family came by ox team to Johnson county, crossing the river in a flat boat at Nebraska City.

About the first thing he saw was a company of thirty horsemen going along the river on this side. The horsemen included Jim Lane, first lieutenant of John Brown, and leader of the Free State party in Kansas, and a group of his supporters, who were patrolling the river to keep Missourians from running slaves across to Kansas.

Recalls Hard Winter.

We've had a hard winter, this year, we think, but Mr. Strong has no difficulty in remembering a much harder, longer, hungrier winter than this. The cold months of 1856-57 were known as "the hard winter," and the settlers suffered. Mr. Strong's father built a tiny cabin, covered with hay, for his family, immediately upon arrival, and then the arrivals turned their attention to putting up hay for the stock, a group putting their cuttings together. It was cut with scythes, and an early frost injured it before it was stacked.

Winter had come early, and as soon as the hay was up, a few settlers from Yankee creek, the site of the Strong claim, and from Tecumseh, known as Maulding settlement in those days, started to drive to Missouri for provisions. They crossed at Brownville easily enough, but before they could recross with the flour, bacon, and meal, slush ice had formed in the river. Ten days elapsed before the crossing could be made, and the Strong claim was forty miles from there.

When the teams did not come, Mr. Strong's father had walked to Tecumseh, ten miles, to make inquiries of the lost men and teams. The provisions of the settlers on Yankee creek were entirely gone, and starvation threatened if the food did not come. The settlers had been sharing their stores, but there were no more stores left to divide. No word had been received at Tecumseh, also lacking food, and Mr. Strong returned home. That night, Mrs. Strong put her five little children, all scarcely more than babies, to bed hungry, having divided a squirrel, which some neighbor had given, and a pint of milk among them.

Traveled During Night.

No sooner had Mr. Strong left Tecumseh than the weary, cold, harassed men with the provisions drove into town. Hearing of the plight of Yankee creek, they ate dinner, fed their teams, warmed themselves for only a brief time, and set out through the cold and snow again for the creek. The teams arrived at 1 o'clock, and Mrs. Strong made Johnny cake and fed it to the hungry youngsters in the middle of the night.

Food was monotonous that winter, until Noble Strong, going to feed the cattle one morning, killed five deer, and two more at a later date. They filled the shed where they were hung, but they brought fresh meat, other than rabbit and squirrel to the family. The Pottawattamie Indians, camped nearby, tanned the hides on shares, and the Strongs had two pairs of trousers, and whip lashes for years to come as a result.

From September until June, the Strongs had no mail, and then they had to go to Nebraska City for delivery, and no mail route was established until 1859 and 1860. In 1864, Mr. Strong's brother, a couple of years older, was carrying the route from Brownville to Beatrice, and, in common with most folks of those days, took chills and fever in the autumn.

Without a mail carrier, there could be no mail. So the elder Strong wrote a note to "Pap" Towle at Beatrice, and sent out what is probably the youngest mail carrier on record, Charles Strong, aged 13. He carried two trips for his brother, and his great load for one trip was one letter.

Remember "Wild Bill."

Arrived at Beatrice, "Pap" Towle inquired of the Nebraska City carrier, with whom he rode from Tecumseh on, "Who's this young fellow you've got with you, and where's the mail carrier?" The note from the father fixed up matters, and the young mail carrier continued his duties for a brief time.

Although but a child, Mr. Strong recalls "Wild Bill" Hickok, and Leroy McCanless, brother of David Colbert McCanless, who was killed by "Wild Bill" at Rock Creek station July 12, 1861. David McCandless didn't come into the Yankee Creek vicinity, but Leroy, who was later called by his other names, James Alexander, settled on a claim adjoining that of W. H. Strong on Yankee creek. "And he was a good neighbor, too," Mr. Strong vows.

David McCanless left North Carolina in May, 1859, and bought Rock Creek station, where Colorado gold seekers camped, on the Oregon trail. Shortly after this he wrote his brother, Leroy, to come west, and he settled in the Little Blue river bottom at the mouth of Rock Creek, three miles south of the station. According to Mr. Strong, trouble separated the brothers, and Leroy McCanless removed to Johnson county, fifty miles away, but different reasons are given for his change of residence, one of them that he wished a more populous region for his home.

Hickok a Rancher.

In 1861, the stage company sent James B. Hickok, a young man later known as "Wild Bill," from head-

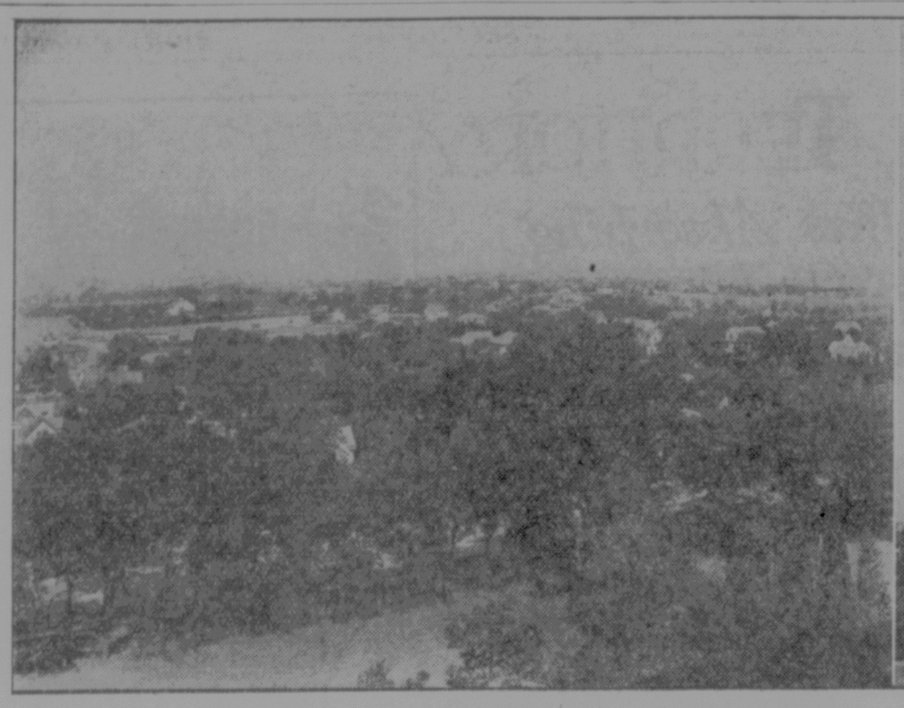
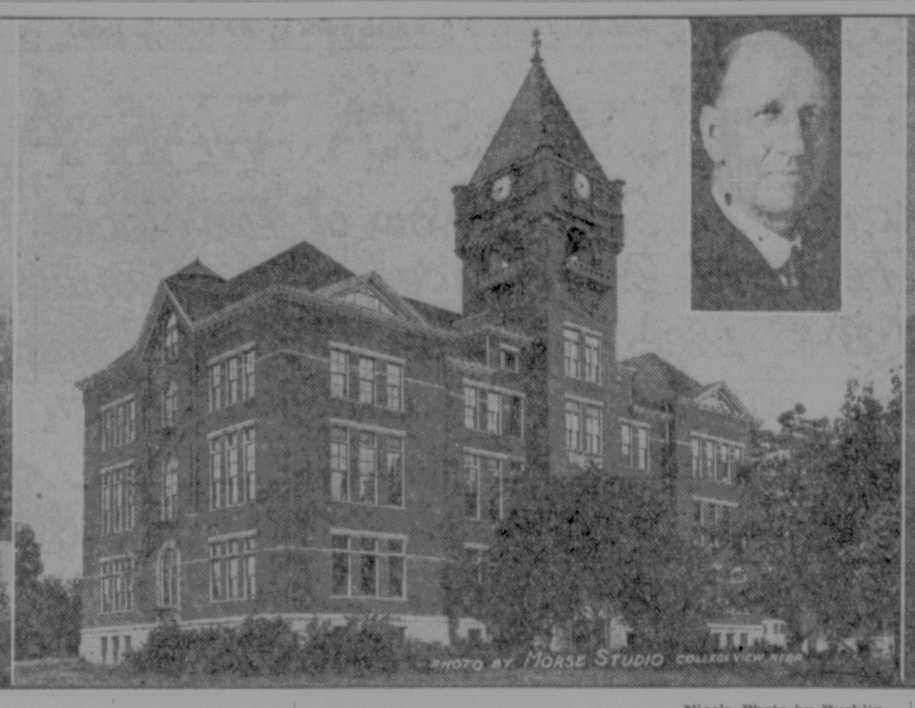
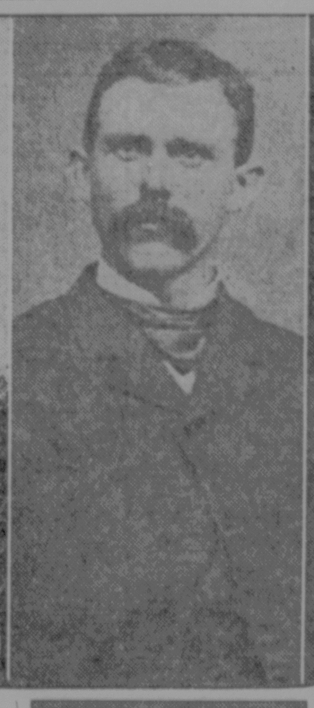
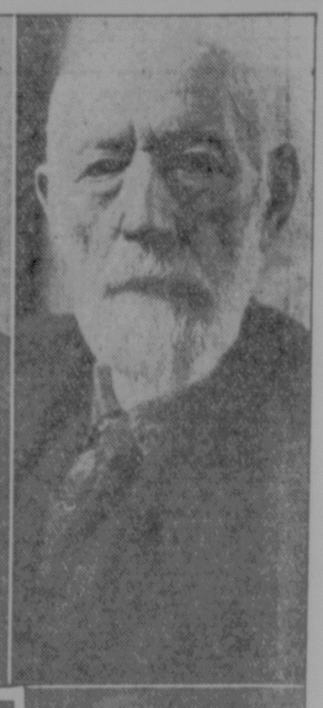
College View, Which May Be Part of Lincoln, Grew Up Around Adventist School









When College View becomes a part of Lincoln it will bring all the composite parts of a town with it, churches, schools, paving, sidewalks, and homes. An airplane view of the southeast suburb, showing the roof tops of the several hundred homes among the many more hundreds of trees is on the upper left, a College View that will add a couple of square miles to Lincoln. When annexation is completed, Lincoln will be the site of a third denominational college, Union college, maintained by the Seventh Day Adventist church, of which the main and oldest building is pictured. W. W. Prescott, first president of the college, is shown in the insert. E. A. Jenkins, second from the right, and L. Nicola, right, are two of the first trustees of College View who still reside there.

On the lower right is Christopher Kuhner, chairman of the board of trustees of the suburb, and second from the right is P. L. Thompson, president of Union college.

A bigger and broader Lincoln will become a fact when College View becomes a part of Greater Lincoln.

Lincoln became Greater Lincoln October 13, 1926, when Bethany and University Place officially came into the fold. No plans have been made for the reception of the suburb to the southeast, but if all the ifs and whens and buts are satisfactorily disposed of, Lincoln will have a group of new residents, more churches, another college, and some more school buildings at a future date.

In common with the two communities previously annexed, College View grew up around a denominational college, Union college, founded and maintained by the Seventh Day Adventist church. The college was located when the present town was a corn field and Lincoln was quite a distance away. Two years elapsed between the selection of the location for the college, and the incorporation of College View, and the school was dedicated seven months previous to the organization of the town.

In fact, the trustees found the spot satisfactory because it was a distance away from the city of Lincoln. It is the policy of the church to locate its colleges in such a manner that the students will have a rural atmosphere for their college days, and a quarter section of land is generally purchased for the college site. However, the town, whose inhabitants were mainly members of the Seventh Day Adventist church in the beginning, attracted by the college, is now separated but by the width of a street from the center of College View.

Incorporated in 1892.

College View was incorporated April 28, 1892, in response to a petition signed by M. W. Newton and seventy-nine others. J. D. Morton, W. T. Henton, J. S. Unangst, L. Nicola, and E. A. Jenkins, the latter two still residents of College View, were the first trustees of the village.

Mr. Nicola, one of the trustees of the first Seventh Day Adventist church in Iowa, with Mr. Jenkins, are the only present residents who were in College View at the time of its incorporation. The town had a gradual growth, residents coming in one by one, as it was not founded as a church project but rather attracted those who wished the educational advantages of the college.

Mr. Nicola found College View an open field when he came there in 1890, and he almost solely built the early part of the town. He built the first store building, on the corner when the bank now stands, started the first store, the first barber shop, and started the blacksmith shop. He had a coal business for a time, and was the promoter of about all of the business of the town.

Objected to Name.

There was considerable discussion about the name of the town, when the time for incorporation came. The residents liked the name, as it seemed applicable, but the postoffice department objected, declaring in favor of a one syllable name. After a time, Mr. Nicola wrote, saying that no one syllable name could be agreed upon, and the new town was to be known as College View. And so it has remained.

Educational work among the Seventh Day Adventists in the Mississippi valley began with the Minnesota conference school in Minneapolis in the fall of 1888. Although the school continued for two years, its accommodations were too small, and a council was held in May, 1889, to plan for better facilities. It was recommended that the several conferences of the northwest unite in establishing a well-equipped and centrally-located school, and that a committee be appointed to act in the matter.

The council at which the report was to be made was never held, and at the general conference in Battle Creek, Mich., in October, 1889, it was decided to establish a denominational college at some point between the Mississippi river and the Rocky mountains. A committee, after receiving invitations from seven states, selected Lincoln, the seat of three universities, and a city with good schools and churches. At a meeting at Knoxville, Ia., January 18, 1890, Lincoln's offer was accepted.

Lincoln Donates Land.

The citizens of Lincoln donated three hundred acres of land, three and three-fourths miles southeast of the capital. The general conference association of Seventh Day Adventists gave a $100,000 bond to erect, by July 1, 1891, buildings to cost not less than $70,000, to be known as Union college.

April 10, 1890, ground was broken for the main college building, and May 3 the first stone was laid. The buildings were dedicated September 14, 1891, when 500 attended the ceremonies. Elder O. A. Olson, president of the conference, presided, Prof. W. P. Aylsworth of Cotner read the scripture, W. C. Sisley, the architect, presented the keys of the buildings to the trustees, A. R. Henry received the keys for the trustees, W. W. Prescott, first president of Union college, spoke; Chancellor J. S. Canfield of the University of Nebraska gave a speech of welcome, Elder Uriah Smith, editor of the Review and Herald of Battle Creek, Mich., gave the dedicatory prayer, and Elder W. B. White, president of the Nebraska conference, the benediction.

This main building, together with two dormitories, normal training building, a gymnasium, with maintainance structures, will add to Lincoln's colleges, with the perfection of annexation. This oldest Seventh Day Adventist college, although not the largest, has 375 students from Nebraska, South Dakota, Iowa, Kansas, Missouri, Colorado, Wyoming, Oklahoma, New Mexico, and states east of the Mississippi. The college has four schools, normal, literary, theology, and commercial, with a faculty of thirty-six. P. L. Thompson is president of the college. The campus has ten acres, with 160 acres in the farm nearby, which supplies the farm and dairy products for the college.

All Students Work.

All students defray certain of their expenses by some sort of work, and the entire institution functions with student help. Originally, the work included manual labor only, but that has been enlarged to include work in the office and the print shop. Students care for the lawns, the buildings, help with the laundry, do the dining room work, help in the kitchen under the supervision of the matron, work on the farm, and some of the girls shell and pick out pecans for the commercial market.

Because it is a denominational college, attendance at Friday evening services, Sabbath school, and Sabbath morning services is required. On the seventh day, the students are expected to conduct themselves in a quiet, decorous manner, and the rules say that use of cameras and kodaks that day is out of harmony with the spirit of the day. Worship is held at 6:30 in the morning and at 5:40 at night.

The college has no interscholastic games, but it provides tennis, baseball, and football for its students. Aiming at the promotion of the best spiritual, cultural, and social values, all Seventh Day Adventist colleges restrict their enrollment at 500, so that the instructors may have individual contact wih he students.

Girls over 17 years of age are expected to wear their dresses four inches below the knee, and sleeves to the inside of the elbow. The latter restriction is to be changed next year to allow shorter sleeves. These rules are not rigidly enforced, but the individual in each case is considered, and the regulations are made to offer some uniformity of dress and to encourage the students to avoid extremes. There is no regulation on bobbed hair.

The present board of trustees of College View is composed of Christopher Kuhner, chairman; W. T. Etmund, treasurer; Charles H. Lile, clerk, and M. H. McVay, Rex Jacobson, Edwin Irvin, and E. A. Kremer. Mr. Kremer is chairman of the water and light department, Mr. Jacobson of finance, Mr. Kuhner of public safety, Mr. McVey of streets, and Mr. Irvin of sewers. A new board was chosen at the last election, but its incumbency depends upon annexation. Mr. Kuhner is mayor, and has been a member of the board for six years.

When College View becomes a part of Lincoln, two square miles will be added to the city territory. It has a population of 3,000 to add to the 87,917 federal estimate of Lincoln's population January 1, 1929. College View has about 800 homes.

Valued at $2,387,945.

With annexation, Lincoln will take over a high school building, a fireproof, well built building, and two grade schools, the south ward, and the north ward or Andrews school. The south ward building, with a kindergarten and six grades has an attendance of 234 and a faculty of seven, the north ward, with four grades, four teachers and ninety pupils, and the high school has 172 pupils, with seven faculty members full time and two part time.

The assessed valuation of College View is $2,397,945, which adds on to Lincoln's assessed valuation of approximately $116,855,000. College View has 10 miles of paving, and 35 miles of sidewalks.

Three church structures will be added to the city list when annexation is completed. The Seventh Day Adventist church, the Sheridan Boulevard Baptist church, a new, modern structure, and the Union church. The Masons and the Knights and Ladies of Pythias have local organizations in the suburb.

Charles Strong Of Havelock Recalls When Nebraska Was Still Territory

quarters at Leavenworth, to Rock Creek station. Latest reports says that he was an assistant stock tender, but Mr. Strong recalls that he was known as a rancher.

Two or three days before the Rock Creek tragedy, "Wild Bill" stopped his team at the Strong home, watered it from the ceek, fed it, and ate his own dinner. W. H. Strong, with Charles and another son, went out to talk to him and the older Strong remarked that "That is a pretty bid load for a little horse," to which "Wild Bill" agreed, and asked Mr. Strong to guess at the cost. Charles Strong remembers that the visible wares were a couple of barreis of whisky, and the balance of the load was goods to sell at the ranch station and purchased in Nebraska City. The Denver road passing the station made selling brisk.

"Wild Bill" planned to make the water holes between Yankee Creek and Bear creek that day, and be back at the station the next day or so. He must have followed his plans, for word of the murder of David McCanless, James Gordon and Joseph Woods at Rock Creek station came within a couple or three days. Word was brought to Yankee creek by a young boy on David's horse, who had traveled all night and the early morning to get Leroy McCanless.

There are many versions of the events at Rock Creek station that day, but Mr. Strong, although only a boy at the time, recalls that word coming back through the ranchers was that Hickok had fired on the three men from behind a blanket, hung at one end of the one room and lean to station to mark the bedroom, after argument of one kind or another, some saying an argument over whisky, Mr. Strong says, and some said, an argument over money owing McCandless from the stage company.

"Hickok wasn't a bad man," Mr. Strong avers.

"Up to that time, he was one of the best ranchers in the vicinity. He allowed whisky and gambling, but he always kept good order."

Following the killing and the burial, Leroy McCanless brought Mrs. David McCanless and the five children to Yankee creek. Monroe McCanless, David's oldest son, 12 years old and a witness of his father's murder, played with Charles Strong while living on his uncle's claim. The following year Mrs. McCanless took the children back to their own home.

Leroy McCanless, a southern democrat, but well liked by the people of the community, was running for sheriff. According to Mr. Strong, he became involved in an argument with a Mr. Cartright over some alleged election promises, as Cartright was riding home on load of corn with W. H. Strong, and in the course of events, called him "a dammed liar." McCanless struck Cartright, who fell, and then kicked him, Mr. Strong says. Cartright died turning to Strong, said: "I guess I've done it."

"McCandless was a good neighbor, though. I never remember him really drunk, but he was disagreeable when he had been drinking," Mr. Strong says.

Only Doctor Chased Away.

All experiences were not so noted, but some were equally alarming. In the summer of 1861, Mrs. Strong and the five children had typhoid fever, even though they had the best well in the vicinity. The doctor came to see Mrs. Strong and the brother, each once, and Charles, who for three weeks was unable to recognize anything, and the younger children, less seriously ill, was forced to do without a doctor's care or medicine. The only doctor in the county was considered a southern sympathizer, and he was run out of the county.

During the Civil war years, the border counties were troubled by the Kansas Jayhawkers and the Missouri Bushwhackers. The Anti-Jayhawkers league with Leroy McCandless as captain, was organized to keep unwelcome visitors out of the county.

Word came that three horse thieves with four horses were headed for a ranch in the vicinity, and men organized into the league went to the ranch to put the thieves under arrest. The previous night the plans were made to capture them, for horse thieving was not among the accepted crimes. A group of the thieves had stopped to water their horses at the Strong ranch, with the little boys standing around wide-eyed, knowing who the visitors were but nevertheless thrilled at the sight. A report later came from Nebraska City that the thieves had been put under the ice with very little legal formality, but that was only a report. However, they were never seen again.

For the first three or four years of their residence in Johnson county, the Methodist circuit rider of the southeast Nebraska district held church in the Strong cabin on his visits in the vicinity. Neither Mr. or Mrs. Strong were members of the Methodist church, but their log home was most suitable for the service, and arrangements were made to hold it there.

Walked Miles To School.

The territory had no school funds, and the first school was maintained by individual contributions. Mr. Strong attended one of the first of the county schools, seven miles west of Tecumseh and taught by Mrs. Frances Butler. He and his sister, Mary, two years younger and five years of age, walked 2½ miles daily to the three months of school in the summer. Mr. Strong was 16 before he attended school in the winter, and fifteen before a school house was constructed, classes having been held in log houses.

Mr. Strong freighted in 1872 and 1873, driving for George Laflin, who had the contract for hauling freight to the Cheyenne and Comanche Indians from Wichita to the Indian territory. The trains consisted of twenty-two wagons, with three or four yoke of oxen on each wagon.

For twenty years, Mr. Strong farmed, and for a dozen years had his own blacksmith shop, three years in Tecumseh and eight or nine years in Sterling. He homesteaded in northwestern Kansas for a couple of years, before returning to Tecumseh. From 1898 until 1901, he was sheriff of Johnson county.

About sixteen years ago, he removed to Oregon, and to Utah where he spent a number of years with his daughter and his sister. For the last five years, he has resided in Havelock.

Rock Garden Near College View, Containing Many Curiosities, Result Two Years of Work

The rocks that one farmer was happy to be rid of have made interesting and unusual ornamentation in the garden of a home in College View, now owned by J. E. Titus. G. A. Girl, who recently sold the property, built a sunken garden, on the lower left, a lily pool, bird bath, and numerous ornamental arches and flower baskets, shown in the other pictures, from rocks picked up in a field east of Lincoln.

By LULU MAE COE.

Some people spend a generous share of their lives taking rocks out of their garden, but G. A. Girl brought in as many stones as possible during two years' occupancy.

On a slightly hilltop east of College View, but off the main streets, Mr. Girl constructed his rock garden during his leisure moments. The highest peaks and arches of his work are visible from a lower roadway, but the sunken garden and lily pool and the little paths are seen only by those who climb the last long hill.

For two years, when not planting hardwood trees, flowers, and shrubs, and when not building his house, Mr. Girl brought rocks from five miles east of town for his landscaping. About the middle of February he sold the property, located at Eighth and D streets, College View to J. E. Titus. He is now residing on a farm near Brownville, where he is continuing his work with stone.

On the north of the grounds is a sunken garden, outlined with low stone arches, the center ones on each side being higher than the adjoining arches, and from each is suspended by a heavy stone chain a rock basket filled with small stones. At the back are crossing arches on four large rock pillars, with a stone birdhouse topping the structure, and another rock basket swinging from the center of the arches. The entrance to the garden is down a couple of wide stone steps, with a tall rough stone pillar on each side, holding a large stone composed of smaller rocks.

Within the garden, the side flower beds are marked by much lower, smaller arches, similar to the eleven of the bounding circle. The depressed circle of the pool is centered with a pedestaled urn topped with crossed arches, and topped with a white rock in red mortar. All of the sunken garden wall, the main arches, and the supporting posts are done in the red mortar, with the upper part of the urn and the bird house in the blue mortar.

All of the paths and flower beds in the garden are outlined with the rough pink stones, and Mr. Girl made them into large stone flower pots, which later in the summer will be hung with vines. All are on pedestals, and some are smaller, probably knee high, and others are four or five feet in height. One is in the shape of a huge rock basket, in the design that bridesmaids carry in wedding processionals.

Eighty Varieties Plants.

At the north entrance of the garden is a tall stone arch, and nearby is a decorative pedestal, with the rough stone base forming a foundation for an upright circle of stones. Between the sunken garden and the house is the peony bed, where Mr. Girl planted eighty varieties of choicest plants. Mr. Titus is continuing the planting and the landscaping of the grounds.

The main feature of the south garden is the lily pool with its spring, which in warmer weather slips down a depressed course in a shaped mass of red to the pool, outlined with the uneven red stones. A tiny brick bridge crosses the pool and constructed between the pond and the spring course. The red pile is topped with a turret-like structure of four white pillars on a red base, and sheltered with a little peaked roof. On the right side of the spring is a Temple of Venus, with four large white pillars on their rounded stone, which stands on a red base, and a mushroom roof with a fat white knob. At the left is an urn for vines, in white, and behind it an arch, with one white and one red pillar, with the red stone arch and a white keystone.

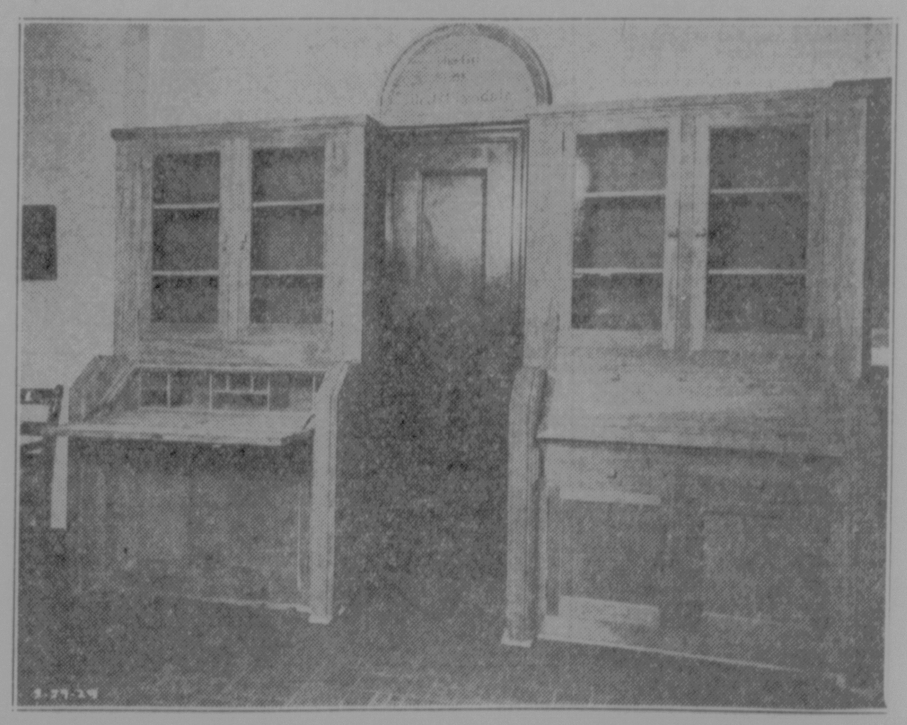
Near the lily pool is the bird bath, another pillared structure, with its white roof decorated with five heart-shaped figures, with big onyx balls between the figures. A compass is impressed into the base, above the figures "1927."

Marking one of the paths is a tall white pedestal, the resting place of two small brown owls. At the end of another path is a structure of four pillars, with the arches crossing and nearby is a pile of huge boulders for the iris bed. Separating one part of the south garden from the other are twin arches, from the center of each of which hangs a rock basket of stones.

When a boy, Mr. Girl's father had a stone quarry on his farm in Gage county, and shipped stone to a number of towns in the state. He became interested in stone work at that time, and, understanding quarrying, worked out some of the rock for decoration of the home yard. The rocks of the College View home were more easily obtained, as the owner of the field where he secured them was glad to have them taken away.

Mr. Girl is not a professional landscape gardener, but he has studied landscaping some himself, and finds great pleasure in it. He gained his first ideas of the variety of stone work possible from viewing the old missions in Texas when he first went there twenty years ago. Mr. Girl spent another year in Corpus Christi about three years ago, and did some work in the city park there.

Gives An Alcove to Medical Library



A research alcove has been added to the library and club rooms of the Lancaster County Medical society. It is the gift of Dr. J. H. Tyndale. A photographic reproduction of the alcove is shown in place on the north side of the library on the sixteenth floor of the Sharp building, at Thirteenth and N streets. Over the top is the inscription, "The Gift of Dr. J. H. Tyndale."

Dr. Tyndale is one of the oldest physicians in Lincoln and is well known to all of the older medical men both of the city and state through his many years as a practitioner here.

Knowing how keenly he felt the need of a place to pursue research work in his younger days, and realizing that with the great advancement of medicine the need was even greater now than in his youth, Dr. Tyndale decided upon the alcove as a memorial to himself.

Here students and young doctors will be permitted to study in quiet. Scores upon scores of valuable books in the library will be at their disposal, and because of the privacy of the club rooms they are assured that if away temporarily, their work will remain undisturbed.

In one of the cases there will be an authoritative history of medicine. The other will contain valuable reference books and curios. Both will be lighted on the inside. They are solidly made and finished in walnut, and should last as long as the library, according to Dr. H. W. Orr, librarian.

In addition to being noted as a physician, Dr. Tyndale also is well known as a theatrical critic. His earlier years were spent in New York City and it was there he first became fafiliated with theatrical affairs.

After coming to Lincoln his always was a familiar face to first-nighters, and he never missed the one night stands of the better class shows. Theater-goers looked for his criticisms. He could be caustic when occasion demanded and often was scathing in his denunciation of plays which he believed should not have been produced. His causticness, however, did not prevent Dr. Tyndale from giving praise when due. Regardless of whether he was condemning or lauding a play, he was fearless and fair, those who knew him best, declare.

Dr. Tyndale's gift to the medical society "is one of the finest that has ever come to the organization," in the opinion of Dr. Orr. It fills a long-felt want, he declares.

Chadron Normal

Excavation for the new library building was begun Wednesday, March 27.

Golf Links and Drives Laid Out and More Than 20,000 Trees Planted at Pioneers Park

Pioneers park is beginning to take shape. Several crews of workers have been there all the past week planting trees, clearing away underbrush, burning dead grass and piling old wood and debris. They also have been cleaning out the bed of Haines branch, a stream of spring water that flows through the southern side of the park. While these workmen have been busy others have been hauling the accumulation of rubbish away and doing the dozen and one other tasks that can be found only in connection with starting the development of such a tract as Pioneers park.

The principal effort the past week has been toward planting trees along the boundary lines, and this was completed Friday night. Along the east side honey locusts in a double row have been set out. They are about ten feet tall. Along the north and west boundaries there are 20,000 Austrian pines. These are about three inches tall and when grown will form a mass covering a space about fifteen feet wide. The work is under the direction of Ernst Herminghaus, consulting landscape gardener to Commissioner Bair, head of the city park department, and Clarence Kittinger, park executive.

Timber Along Creek.

The timber already along the banks of Haines branch will form the boundary along the south side of the park, and along which runs the main line of the Burlington runs. The trees are not so high, however, that a splendid view of the lower stretches of the playgrounds, and much of the golf course cannot be seen from the windows of passing trains.

American elms, poplars and honey locust will form a screen along the north side of the brick yard from the main entrance to the top of the hill where the boundary changes direction to the south and meets the south line at Haines branch. This side also will be screened to shut off as far as possible views of the manufacturing plant from the golf links and passers by in motor cars on their way to the play grounds.

The past week also saw the driveways staked out, and a central court located where will be placed the life-size buffalo in bronze, the gift of John F. Harris and Mrs. Harris of New York and Palm Beach, donors of the park.

Is Formal Garden.

This spot will be in the nature of a more or less formal garden on a promotory about 300 yards inside of the east line of the park. It will be about 300 feet in diameter and will be reached by lanes leading from the two corners. These will be eighty feet wide and lined on both sides with Moline elms, inside of which and fringing the drive will be lilacs. Those along the north lane will be pink and Persian varieties will be along the south one.

A driveway circling the bronze buffalo will be the same width as the lanes. Radiating from this to the northwest and southwest will be the lanes leading to the drives into the park proper. These lanes also will be eighty feet across and when completed will be lined with some species of trees. For a distance equalling that of the two entrance lanes the trees will have an inside border of blue lilacs to the northwest, and white snowballs to the southwest.

The snowballs will be discontinued at the edge of a lake nestling at the base of the promontory to be replaced by a border around the water, 1,500 spirea, red and wellow twig dogwood, forsythia, golden currant and fragrant sumac, taking their place.

Crosses Top of Dam.

Where the drive comes to the lake it will cross the top of the dam which makes the lake possible. From thence it will go by gentle curves to the top of a hill where is marked the east line of the south section of the park, and the western boundary of the brick yard, and on down onto the flats south of the links. It is this drive that will follow on through to the western boundary, where the sightseer will have one of the most picturesque drives and at the same time beautiful views to be obtained on the entire tract.

As is the case with the drive to the northwest from the central court that skirting the western boundary is close to the golf grounds, at some places being close to tees, but never close enough to fairways or greens to endanger anyone from a wild ball. This section of the drive is unusually rough but, as Mayor Hedge said Wednesday afternoon, one will be well compensated for the trouble experienced in making it. The statement followed after he had just driven over the route which had not yet been graded.

The northwest drive leads directly to the north boundary, where it turns west and follows the border hedge of pine for some distance only to turn in a long, sweeping horseshoe curve to the east. At the eastern extremity of the curve it reaches the top of a hill that offers one of the best views of the city found in the park. It then winds gradually to the southwest until it is only about 1,200 feet from the road leading across the lake dam. It also finds its way onto the playground flats.

The lake near the buffalo is the only one that will have shrubbery of any kind along its bank. This is being done here only because artificiality is needed to fit in with the decorative scheme of the central court.

The past week saw the final layout of the Pioneers park golf course in the hands of the city council, after having been prepared by Willie Dunn, golf course expert of international reputation.

In laying out the course, Mr. Dunn incorporated the standard complements of length, yardage, holes of varying distance and strategy, continued interest in the play through the green, yet retaining the completed balance for the whole. None is too long or drab or uninteresting. Neither do they entail arduous physical effort in climbing hills. Each gentle slope has been so utilized that the objectionable features have been eliminated.

The natural beauty of contour has been enhanced here and there. A grassy swale has been set up in front of a green to bring it out in the mind's eye. A gently terraced green, others undulating, bowl-like effects, sloping greens without any effect of being too precipitous: all the arts of golf architecture have been employed to merit the player's praise.

The traps and bunkers have been designed to seem naturally a part of the whole. Hidden ones have been avoided but the design is such as to evoke the golfer's skill while avoiding extreme penalties for truant shots. Each shot through the fairway has been thought out with a view to finding a very fair shot, and a good lie for the next.

Consider Wind Weather.

Weather, wind and climatic conditions also have been considered as they affect the shot, turf, grasses and the green.

Each little lake or ravine has its greens and tees, each differing in its setting, and nearly all visible from the clubhouse. This alone, according to Jack Thomas, Mr. Dunn's assistant who prepared this description at the dictation of Mr. Dunn, makes the beauty of Pioneers park course superior to any other championship course, including Oakmont, Merion and many others.

A panoramic view of the golf course that is to be built in Pioneers park, Lincoln's new playground, is shown herewith. It is to be a standard layout of 27 holes and Willie Dunn, the architect, declares it will be one of the best in America. The picture is reproduced from a drawing by Mr. Dunn after going over the ground several times and then shooting a golf ball over the proposed route after he had laid it out.

In making this course a modern championship one "we have kept in mind the reaction of golf architecture to greater simplicity," he stated. "We have avoided putting traps too close to pin, permitting a reasonable amount of liberty for reasonably well hit shots; with generous fairways wisely bunkered to avoid severity. The wonderful natural scenery has been employed at every opportunity to enhance th varity in play.

Here is the description of the three courses as dictated to Mr. Thomas by Mr. Dunn:

Middle Course.

Starting the play down the middle course we have three holes of sufficient length to get all players wel laway from the first tee, thus avoiding congestion and at the same time affording an opportunity to loosen up the swing at the start. Unlike champions, most players do not have time to do this before the game.

Hole No. 1—Slopes downward all the way to the green, adding yards to the drive just where it is needed. The distance is 565 yards. Par 5.

Hole 2—A not long two-shot hole across a wide grassy valley to a green set up to view and protected by a natural sharp declivity to the left and left front. Because of the valley this hole appears to be longer than the 410 yards. Par 4.

Hole 3—Continuing the gentle downgrade you cross this same vale in a wide expanse of fairway along the southern limits of the course, overlooking the boulevards, lakes and trees of the park proper, to a green nestling almost under the trees back of the lower lake of the chain and constituting one of its shady satellites. This distance is 530 yards for a par 5.

Pitch Across Lake.

Hole 4—Upon the dike of this same lake we pitch from the very edge over the water to a green on the opposite shore, protected at the left by the neck of the lake, and trapped both to the right and rear. The shot is 115 yards on a par 3.

Hole 5—The short safe player can easily find a good lie from the tee for his second, but the ambitious fellow will do well not to slice or he will be in the rough at a lower level that would call for an iron shot. A shot well placed from the tee, however, opens up an easy par 4 or birdie. The green is slightly higher than the tee, with a diagonal greasy swale between tee and green which, if you fail to carry and are not off line, leaves a shot to the green that is not at all difficult.

Hole 6—This hole opens up a wide level fairway to the edge of the lake you just shot over on No. 3, or thirteen on the sketch. The only penalty for slicing off line here is being in the rough. But get to the left and you are in a swale which runs into the lake and on the edge of which sets the green. The distance is 405 with par at 4.

Hole 7—On a gentle side slope. It skirts a rise to the green and is slightly higher at the lower end of a plateau, and reaches gradually from there to the clubhouse. It is a par 4 at 260 yards.

Hole 8—A good test for the mashie. Well trapped and is par at 3 for the 140 yards.

Hole 9—A wide fairway home, up a gradual slope of plateau to clubhouse to a beautiful large level green. ake this 415 yards in 4 and you have shot par.

The West Course.

On the west course the player has two good wood shots on the first hole, down a gently sloping wide fairway to a green across a gentle swale, setting it up to the vision from the tee. There is no hazard needed here, except at the green. Any golfer knows the mental hazard at the first tee is the greatest of all.

Teeing from the opposite side of "burn" at first green, the second green is seen on a line with the first hole. It rises across a gentle valley almost 500 yards away, yet just below the level of the tee and evoking all that the player has in bringing distance with his driver and brassie. At that this hole is not difficult for a par, and the very fine golfer should win a birdie or an eagle 3. What appears to be a green with out of bounds at its very edge turns out to be, for the overly strong shooter, amply backed with room for a chip back thus encouraging him to still try for par.

Hole 3—This hole demands accuracy from the tee—one shot from the green, 230 yards, if par is to be had. The prevailing wind will be an aid and many satisfied pars should encourage play here. The green is in a valley made just to reward and hold your good shot.

Hole 4—A continuance of 3 up along the valley and calls for an iron on the second shot to a gently undulating green half terraced and inviting a firm hit with no penalty if gone over, but by no means an easy approach putt if short.

Change In Direction.

Hole 5—This hole turns in the opposite direction but is gently sloping to a green that is small and trapped to demand a short accurate chip to reach and hold.

Hole 6—A wide expanse of fairway here, and it is welcome as you strive to pick up a stroke on par. If you shoot well the green can be reached in 7, and reach your desire—providing you make the hills and hollows in two putts.

Hole 7—Teeing above a small green only 120 yards away one must be exact with mashie niblick here to carry the grassy ravine above whose steep sides this green rests, to hold a par 3.

Hole 8—In the northwest corner of the park. A natural setting with out of bounds on the left of fairway and ravine on right. Not an easy par here, yet not at all hard as to distance to be negotiated.

Hole 9—Although the player may have played well thus far there cannot be no letdown here. Two good shots are required to reach a green just below the clubhouse, otherwise he will be playing from the ravine which juts into the fairway almost to the center and in which the "rough" is allowed to encroach. The distance is 435.

THE EAST COURSE.

Hole 1—The first tee on this course is on a gently sloping lawn in front of clubhouse veranda. The The fairway is sloping with a gradually deepening gully or ravine, starting about 80 yards from the tee and running diagonally across the fairway which must be carried from the tee to the 140-yard mark. This will be followed by a shot of easy length for the second, to a picturesque green framed at the back with a pretty lake and small canons to right and left. From the tee the green appears to be sitting on the edge of the lake. On reaching it, however, it is seen that there is distance for a pitch-up shot if the approach is too strong, with still a chance at par 4.

Hole 2—This tee is just above the margin of the lake and immediately above your drive up a gradual slope over a grassy ravine with a carry of only 100 yards or so. This leaves a chip to the green at 24 yards from the tee on a par 3.

Hole 3—Again the tee-off plays a very gently sloping plateau to a green nestling along another and more beautiful lake. From the tee there is a vista of the city, the state capitol, as well as the country surrounding the park for many miles. This green seems to be one of many clustered around the lake shaded in the back by stately trees and giving a view of the beauties of the lower lake and boulevard surroundings.

Large Valley Behind.

Hole 4—Teeing up just east of this green the player is on a gently sloping rise with a large valley behind.

Hole 5—To the left on a slope after teeing off one looks across a valley. At the foot of a hill is the green along the edge of a lake to the left of which you play. A dog-leg to the right and around the ravine opening out of the lake, and the green is just above framed in a background of natural bushy copse of darker hue.

Hole 6—Driving across a gently sloping ravine a good tee shot will reach the crest of a rise on the opposite side and slightly higher than the tee. Just below is another lake among greens, your objective seemingly rising right out of the water. On reaching the green, however, it is seen that the too strong shot over it is still lying good for an approach. On either side are natural swales to catch and hold the erratic stroke, with a possible shot from a good lie for a par 4 on 355 yards.

Lots of Lattitude.

Hole 7—This hole allows considerable lattitude in where you tee up your pitch of 140 yards, carrying to hte opposite table-green, a grassy hollow jutting in on each side, bunkered at the back for an overly stout shot.

Hole 8—From the tee this hole presents what appears to be a formidable road to a picturesque green nestling in an angle formed by the boundary line of the park and Van Dorn street. It is protected on the right by a deep ravine inside of bounds and carrying a small gully out from the tee. The tee shot comes to rest on a beautiful plateau with two other ravines intervening. As you proceed these hazards are discovered to be only grassy declivities from which your shots can be hopefully played. This is a par 4 on 425 yards.

Hole 9—This is the home hole. Shoot directly across a grassy declivity to the left of clubhouse along a beautiful lawn-like fairway to a spacious green to an easy, beautiful and delightful journey's end for a par 4 on 330 yards, and a 72 for any two courses if played in par.

Building the golf course will start as soon money is available. The tees, fairways and greens have been staked out for the twenty-seven holes and, according to golf experts, the course will be one of, if not the "sportiest" in the country.

The yardage and par play for each hole follows, with the total yards and par for the course.

Lincoln Airport Will Have Grou nd-Plane Radiophone Station to Guide Mail Ships

An artist visualizes the practical use of the radiophone recently installed on the Boeing system transcontinental mail, express and passenger planes after more than a year of research and test flying. Radiophone permits telephone communication between the pilot and the ground, and between planes in flight. With this arrangement Boeing pilots now talk with stations from an altitude of 12,000 feet.

Lincoln has been designated as one of twelve cities between Chicago and San Francisco in which a ground radiophone station is to be installed by Boeing Air Transport, Inc., carriers of air mail, express and passengers. Lincoln has also been designated as a division point on the Boeing system.

According to the announcement that Lincoln will be a division point, and have a ground station, the station will be completed and all planes equipped prior to the inauguration this summer of Boeing's expanded operations with 18-passenger transports operated on a day and night flight of approximately twenty hours between the Windy City and the Pacific coast.

Telephone communication between the pilot and the ground, and between planes in flight, long a dream of the aeronautical world, has been perfected by Boeing engineers. Such has been the efficiency and every-day workability of the instruments in tests, that W. E. Boeing, head of the company which bears his name, himself made the announcement that twelve stations would be opened. They will be in seven states: California, Nevada, Utah, Wyoming, Nebraska, Iowa and Illinois.

To Be On 35 Planes.

Thirty-five Boeing Planes already have been, or soon will be equipped with the radiophone sets.

Radiophone, for aeronautical use, has been a goal sought since commercial air lines scheduled operations calling for flying, irrespective of weather conditions and at night. Now that the phone has come it is hailed with delight as it is considered a decided forward step in whipping fog and bad weather.

With this phone, officials announce, it will be possible for pilots to talk to and hear from ground stations on the entire flight of 2,000 miles between the Golden Gate and Lake Michigan. This will be true even though the pilot be 200 miles from a ground station and 2½ miles above it.

In addition, pilots on two planes as distant as 175 miles can phone to each other. A pilot flying east from Oakland, Calif., can talk directly to a pilot flying west from Reno, Nev. When the planes are more than 175 miles apart they can communicate through ground stations. The message is sent to the nearest station and from thence relayed to a station hat is within speaking range of the plane a pilot may want to reach. This latter sta-

Lincoln Children Building Houses To Attract Feathered Songsters

—Bucklin Photo.

Pleasant apartment, an airy location,
For robins or bluebirds and all their relations.

Neat, modern bungalow, wonderful view;
Swept by the breezes and sprinkled with dew.

Bath, running water within easy flight
Of orchards or garden; well lighted at night.

Markets convenient—a few little hops
To bugs, worms or cherries, your favorite crops.

Children are welcome, their noise no objection.
Robin or bluebird, or martin or wren,
Bird-houses wait for your coming again.

Ready today for the earliest bidder;
Rental is free, though your notes I'll consider.

Daisy W. Stephenson.

Furthermore every house carries with it a guaranty of protection from cats and other enemies. The only requirement and it can be wavied, is that tenants stay until the season is over. A return visit next year would be highly appreciated.

A Favorite Bird Resort.

As a resort, Lincoln rates as highly with birds as the Riviera Biarritz and Palm Beach rate with human beings. Its reputation has been achieved without a line of paid advertising or publicity. Nevertheless it has taken much effort and time to get the news around that Lincoln is a most hospitable summer resort for feathered folk and that their patronage is appreciated.

Did you ever stop to think of what a drab place this city would be if spring and summer should pass without a cheering note from a single bird? If you are one of those fortunate, but rare persons who have a lawn, or a garden tenanted each spring by a host of winged guests, and find a real pleasure in listening to a sudden burst of song from out a shadowed thicket ,or watching the swift flight of a wren overhead ,thought of a birdless summer would be appalling.

As long as hundreds of Lincoln school children make bird houses every spring; protect the birds from harm and feed them when food is hard to find, then Lincoln's trees and shrubbery, parks and play grounds will be inhabited every spring and summer by thousands of birds of countless descriptions. That is the kind of advertising that has made Lincoln so popular as a bird resort.

All over the city, in every elementary school, hundreds of pupils are busily engaged in building bird houses that will serve ,it is hoped, as a home for some little songster. In the photo is seen a group of Bancroft pupils with the bird shelters, bath and food table which will be erected in that community to induce Mr. and Mrs. Robin-redbreast to locate there.

Miss E. Ruth Pyrtle, principal of the Bancroft school, has devoted much personal effort and time towards inspiring her charges with a love for birds and the out-of-doors generally. Due in a great measure to her leadership, Lincoln has become what may be termed "bird-minded." She derives a great pleasure and satisfaction from birds an dnature study and has succeeded in sharin git with hundreds of with hundreds of her pupils.

It isn't work, her pupils declare. It is fun. Fun just to make the bird houses; but much more fun to find that some homeless bird family has decided to settle down and get its mail there for a while. The result is that around the Bancroft school ,and every school where the pupils show hospitality to birds, bird baths and bird houses are found almost everywhere ,and they aren't tenantless. As a bird resort, Lincoln may not realize on inflated real estate prices, but it is a better city for the presence of thousands of birds which make Lincoln their summer home.

"I'd Like to Be a Dancer!"

Sang Lindy's Fiancee in Verse, "A Slim Persuasive Dancer, A Scarlet Spanish Dancer, If You Please!"

(Exclusive Central Press Dispatch to The Lincoln Star.)

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., April 6—Anne Spencer Morrow, Lindbergh's fiancee, was a lover in poetry long before the world knew her as a lover in fact. Her college verse reveals that.

Some months ago a Central Press dispatch contained her poem, "Height," which appeared in Scribner's magazine, New York. It ended up with:

"Still like a singing lark, I find
Rapture to leave the grass behind.
And sometimes standing in a crowd
My lips are cool against a cloud."

Most surmises are Miss Morrow already was dreaming of Lindy.

* * *

But she had many dreams, always looking upward from her tiny height . . . and once more she looked up, to the art of dancing. Here it is disclosed in "Caprice," written for Smith College Monthly, at Northampton, after seeing Raquel Meller, French dancer, at a Springfield, Mass., theater in 1926:

"I should like to be a dancer,
A slim, persuasive dancer,
A scarlet Spanish dancer,
If you please!"
"'But,' he said, "just now we're crowded,
With these Carmens simply crowded—
I can't find,' his forehead clouded,
'Vacancies.'
"'I suppose you want to tango,'
And he sighed—'or a fandango,
Scarlet cigarette and tango,
Scarlet smile—.'
"'In a century or twenty
We may want you, we have plenty.
Just at present—more than plenty
For a while.'"

"Now and again Miss Morrow turned to poetry," says President William Neilson of Smith college.

He describes her as a cultivated, well-bred girl, somewhat diffdent in strange company (how like Lindy!), but gay and spirited among her college friends.

Sang Anne:

"Spanning a tree height with my eyes
Suddenly I soared as high
And fixing on a star I grew,
I pushed my head against the blue."

* * *

Her mother, who also was a graduate of Smith and is a member of the board of trustees, likewise writes verse for publication.

BELOW THE MASON-DIXON LINE

Elizabethton first came into national prominence because it was chosen by the strategists of the Hoover campaign as the logical point where the republican candidate should deliver his only address to the Southern people.

A sleepy, little town of 3,000 people, tucked away in the mountains of Tennessee, Elizabethton put on her best bib, awoke to the fact that she amounted to something, and put on a show which drew 50,000 people. Twice since then she has been in the national spotlight in the news dispatches. With the announcement by a German syndicate that a $37,000,000 rayon factory would be completed and put into operation shortly, Elizabethton proudly proclaimed she was going someplace and was going to do things. Almost overnight her population increased to 15,000 people, and with the great rayon industry operating full blast she anticipated the federal census of 1930 would reveal more than 20,000 people.

At this time, Elizabethton is again in the public eye. She is having her first taste of labor troubles. It is charged by President Green of the American Federation of Labor that representatives sent to the Tennessee city to organize the rayon workers were compelled to leave town. Five citizens have been arrested upon the complaint of resorting to intimidation and coercion. That bright promise of a few months ago may fade away if the bitterness and misunderstandings created in this labor war are allowed to become permanent.

There are many economic factors which have been driving manufacturing, particularly in the textile lines, from its traditional home in New England.

The rigors of New England climate during the winters, late fall and early spring add greatly to the living expenses of the families who work in the mills of Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Connecticut. Their homes must be heated for several months of the year, and the fuel bill amounts to a most important item. They must have warm, stout clothing and heavy foods to resist the nipping cold and the snows which bury New England under a mantle of white for three or four months each year.

In the South, even from such an outpost as Elizabethton, this is not necessary. The winters are not so cold. Homes are not built so warmly. Fuel is plentiful, with unlimited coal deposits within arm's reach. It is not necessary to buy so much or so heavy clothing. The growing season is much longer than in New England, and these industrial workers, with their comfortable little homes, find it possible to maintain gardens to supplement the food on the table for many months of the year. Under these conditions it is apparent that the southern industrial work has an inherent advantage over his competitor in the North, particularly in New England, which will permit him to live far more comfortably and ideally on smaller wages.

Naturally the manufacturer took these facts into consideration when he decided to remove his plant to the South. But he was even more deeply impressed with the fact that Southern labor was largely unorganized and he might hope to escape some of those costly struggles between employer and employe which have taken place in the textile cities of New England. That, perhaps, was a more impelling motive which sent many mills into the South.

The right of labor to organize has been recognized by both major political parties and by the highest courts in the United States.

It cannot be denied workers in southern mills if those who are employed in the factories are of a mind to pool their interests. It is inevitable that the movement to unionize should be accompanied by a certain amount of agitation. It will require a great deal of fortitude, of patience, of moderation both on the part of employers and employes if this cycle of southern industrial development is to be bridged over without serious troubles.

A glorious vista has opened in the South. Ten years ago she recovered from what had threatened to become permanent wounds received in a Civil war fought more than half a century ago. School and highway programs were adopted and inaugurated. Ambition surged in the breasts of Southern leaders to usher in a new type of civilization than that which grew out of the era of plantation days, its jingling melodies—its carefree indolent, happy-go-lucky atmosphere. With rich resources of timber and coal, with matchless cheap water power, with a soil and a climate of the most bountiful character no section has been striding forward more rapidly. It would be tragic if labor misunderstandings, of which this Elizabethton incident is a forerunner, should in anyway thwart the glorious future which is stretching itself before the South.

THE OBLITERATION OF EASTVIEW.

Money isn't everything.

The village of Eastview in New York has been sold for $700,000, and it is agreed by evexyone that this was a large price for the property, but the people who sold are sad; for they have relinquished their homes, and within a short time they must move from places where many of them, now old men and women, have lived during their entire lives. Here fathers and mothers passed away and in these same homes infants were ushered into the world, which many of these latter have gone forth to conquer.

But the boys and girls who have gone out from Eastview are expecting to return some day, for it is home to them, just as it is to the fathers and mothers who remained behind, tending the flowers in the dooryard year after year and watching in the springtime for the return of the robins, the martins and the catbirds. And since these youngsters went down the Hudson to the great metropolis or journeyed out into the endless west, there have doubtless been many Christmas reunions or golden wedding anniversaries when the boy or girl who had made good in some faraway place came back with wife or husband and their little ones, who for the first time saw grandpa and grandma.

John D. Rockefeller, jr., has done much to bring happiness into this world and is perhaps not to be blamed for wanting the 8,000 acres comprising Eastview to add to his splendid and extensive estate. As has been said, he paid a good price for the property, but there are some things that money cannot buy. Among these are the associations that cling round the home of one's childhood. These never leave the mind of the man who is worthy to bear that title, and no matter where he may wander, let his lot in life be what it may, he hopes some time to return to the place where he first knew mother love.

It is said that John Brown, who keeps one of the village stores, intends to retire. His home stands just behind his place of business and is more than a hundred years old. He was born there; and is it not certain that no other place can ever be home to him? Set before him the most gorgeous of landscapes, beguile his ear with the most entrancing music, still in his mind's eye will rise a homely cottage upon the shore of the majestic Hudson and he will listen ever eagerly for the trill of the oriole or the cardinal.

Near to Eastview lie Tarrytown and Sleepy Hollow, written of so charmingly by Washington Irving, and in his boyhood and youth John Brown and other Eastview boys were familiar with the retreat of every rabbit and knew the location of every bird's nest in that locality. There never was a place so full of thrilling delight.

Now when the boys and girls who have gone out of Eastview think of going home for the Christmas holidays, a pang will come. For the real home—the place that has been considered such ever since senses and reason first co-ordinated, has been swallowed up in the vast Pocantico Hills estate.

No matter what the price, it could not compensate.

BELATED RECOGNITION.

Eleven years ago next September, the great Allied drive against supposedly impregnable German positions in the Argonne forest got underway. One of the first objectives, reached September 27, a day after the initial thrust, was Charpentry, on the outskirts of that tangled jungle which was the Argonne.

Scattered through that section are towns—Charpentry, Very, Cheppy, Varennes, Exermont—whose names will forever revive sharp memories within the gallant legions which doggedly fought their way forward against machine gun nests and embattlements of solid cement. There was desperate, bloody fighting. There were shocking casualities in killed and wounded. There were epic feats of heroism and sublime acts of courage.

The War department has just now accorded recognition to one who deserved it for the gallantry which he displayed in this majestic climax of the World war. He is Don P. Coleman, a sergeant, a non-commissioned officer of the 139th infantry, of the Thirty-fifth division. It was Coleman, who in the fighting around Charpentry, revealing those qualities of leadership which characterize genius on the battlefield, wiped out a blunder.

No doubt the passage of years will reveal hundreds of cases of supreme heroism which passed unnoticed while the struggle raged. It was a battle which brought out the best which is in men.

COARSE STUFF.

Shades of Boss Tweed!

The poor old fellow will probably turn over in his grave if he gets a copy of the affidavits which Senator Smith Brookhart is placing in the congressional records as the chairman of the committee investigating patronage matters in the South.

The republican organization in the South, Senator Brookhart shows by his evidence, collected funds from postmasters by the thousands, sold federal jobs, and revealed a callousness of public decency which would make Tammany even under its old regime a sweet-scented organization.

In Mississippi, 110 postmasters donated $12,000 for the grand old party, but it appears that some of the funds went to the husband of the republican national committee woman of that state. An Arkansas postmaster avers that he paid $378 to the republican committeeman of his state to obtain his job. In Tennessee another federal officeholder in the postal service paid $200 and two hogs while in Alabama a reputable witness said he understood federal appointments were placed on the auction block and went to the highest bidder:

That is the foundation upon which the republican party must build in South. It is what called for the sharp condemnation from Mr. Hoover in his notable statement recently. Either the republican organization nationally must decide to wipe the slate clean, create an entirely new lily white party, or reconcile itself to the fact that the gains recorded in southern states last November were only temporary. The Southern voter is not going to compromise his conscience with what he has recognized to be a notorious scandal for years.

A TEAR FOR GOVERNOR KOHLER.

When Governor Walter Kohler of Wisconsin decided he had accumulated enough millions in industry to warrant giving some of his time to public service, probably he had little idea he would be placed in the embarrassing position which now confronts him.

Wisconsin voted to repeal its prohibition enforcement law last Tuesday by an overwhelming majority.

Within a very short time a bill will be put through both branches of the legislature repealing the state enforcement law. It will go to Governor Kohler for signature and he must either approve it or reject it. There is much unpleasantness in store for him in the event he jumps either way. He cannot overlook the preponderant vote of the citizens of his own state in favor of repeal nor can he forget that only a short time ago President Hoover issued a stirring appeal to the American people to give rigid adherence to the prohibition amendment. Governor Kohler is a warm, devoted admirer of the president. His candidacy was inspired by the desire to strengthen Mr. Hoover's chances of carrying Wisconsin last November—a forlorn chance it seemed—but it was realized, as it was furtherance of his ambition.

Governor Kohler cannot very well escape from the pointed criticism which President Hoover directed at those who winked at the prohibition amendment should he sign the repeal bill. He cannot evade the comment that he is lending himself to a movement to strike a sharp blow at a part of the American constitution. Neither can he get away from the fact that the people who elected him have given him an express mandate to do what the president said was lawless. Certainly no one will envy Governor Kohler his job during the next few weeks when "wets" and "drys" alike will be sticking their fingers in his eyes demanding he come to their rescue.

IT RUNS IN THE FAMILY.

"Senator Allen" says the Atlanta Constitution, "will be the second of the name to represent the Sunflower state in the federal senate, but he will be a distinctly more acceptable and valuable member there than was William Vincent Allen, the populist."

Which leads The Kansas City Star to suggest that it learns something every day. The Star goes on to say that it never knew William V. Allen represented Kansas in the senate and then suggests The Constitution might have had in mind Ingalls J. Peffer, the gentleman who introduced the anti-congressional bill in the nineties. After due research The Star concludes the Atlanta editor referred to William V. Allen, who twice represented Nebraska in the "greatest deliberative body in the world."

Senator Allen did hold a seat in the senate by virtue of Nebraska's favor and he holds the record for long distance speaking even to this day in spite of the competition of such fellers as Blease, "Hi" Johnson, and a score of others. In a filibuster Senator Allen spoke for three days and a half. Our recollections of some of Henry J. Allen's political addresses and after-dinner speeches leads us to believe that in this respect the family name will remain untarnished.

Society note: Miss Fewclothes has arrived to spend the summer season.

Prohibition Has Its Inning.

Coming Home from Panama.

BY WILL ROGERS.

Well all I know is just what I read in the papers, Politics, Inaugarations, base ball training, cabinets being sworn, indignation over Vanderbilt book in Reno, Mexican persuit race, and all those things are all as nothing in the press the last week or so compared to what has happened along the prohibition enforcement lines. Sinking that boat down in the Gulf of Mexico come pretty near being another sinking of tea in the Boston Harbor. You know we had a World series with England over that little incident, and when we sunk this one it looked like the Dollar a year men would be out again.

The whole argument was, "How far out away from land was the boat when they first took after it?" The old-time law said three miles was the limit that a Country owned from its shore, then when Prohibition come in we wanted to take in more territory. We was enforcing it so good out as far as three miles that we had a Treaty made with England. For it has always been considered that England practically owns the ocean. So naturally in dealing with anything that comes up regarding water, (especially if it is salt water) why we have to confer with England. Not on account of her importance as a Nation, for perhaps they are no more important than France, or Germany, but its their Navy that makes the difference. Its like a rich man in a Town, he may not really be as important, or know as much as dozens of others, But its his dough that makes the difference.

Country Known By Strength.

You give Equador England's Navy and right away Equadors ambassador would be seated next to the president at official functions, and England would go to the foot where Equador is now. A country is known by its strength, and a man by his Check Book. So we met England and made a treaty with them that would give us about 12 miles to enforce in. In other words we were just enforcing so good that we figured in order to keep the boys from just laying off all the time why we would give them nine more miles. Well we took care of that so well that we met England again and asked for some more of their Ocean, so we drew up a Treaty that give us something like this. "Its our Ocean out as far as a Boat can go in one hours travel." It dident State how the boat was to travel. It dident say whether it was as far as a sailing boat could go in an hour with no wind, or whether it was as far as the same boat could go if it had 25 Wright Whirlwind Engines in it. It was just to be an hour's travel. Now evidently this "I am Alone," this one they sunk, could travel pretty far in an hour, for it went so fast that it took our Coast Guard Cutters the biggest part of a week to catch up with it and sink it. Well they shot at him for days before they could sink the boat. If they had taken all the bulletts they shot at it, and put them on the boat it would have sunk immediately from the weight.

Well, we was just getting over the excitement of all that in the papers when away out in Aurora somewhere they shot a woman, beat up her husband and then their little boy shot one of the officers. Well that caused more arguments than the boat sinking. I dont know which side you are on in that argument. But you got to admire the kid. He come through when his parents were in danger. Whether your parents are good or bad, thats not your business, but stick with 'em when they are in trouble.

Well then to cap it all and make 100 per cent prohibition week why a bunch of Congressmen landed in New York from Panama Canal where they had been at Government expense to see if it really did connect the two Oceans, or was it just propaganda. Well they got back here to New York and they only searched one of their baggage and found four quarts. He had forgot to claim Government privelege. (Thats a gag where if you leave the Country, you can come back with anything you want and they can't search your baggage). The other 14 had claimed it and they got home with theirs. All but Congressman La Guardia, an Italian American (and a good one). He admitted that he had started from down there with a few steins of Grog, but had drank it up before arrival at quarantine, purposely. Now he will be ostracised in Congress for honesty.

Jones Saw Nothing.

Then all this was no more than happening than this fellow Wesley Jones that put in the Woolworth bill 5 and 10, Five years in jail and 10 thousand fine, he up and says that he has never seen any drinking either among Congressman, or too much drinking even among senators. Some young lady interviewed him in Washington and what the man hadent seen is almost remarkable.

On the same day our great author, and dramatist, Booth Tarkington had admitted that he was blind and had been for some time. To read Mr. Tarkington's statement and to read Wesley Jones, (Author of the Jones Bill) you would have thought that it was Jones that was blind, and had been for the cours of his natural life, and you would think Tarkington was the one that could see.

And by the way wasent that wonderful what he said about the blind. (I mean Tarkington, not Jones.) He said it was so wonderful to be blind and not have to look at a lot of things that he dident want to see, wasent that great? What an encouragement to the blind! What a real love for his fellowman!

Well Jones is all right too. He wants to give this fellowman free room and meals for five years, and all he has to pay for it is ten thousand bucks. That's two thousand a year. Well that's about as cheap as you can live outside. Course what I have always thought was that Jones could have improved on his bill by making it Ten and Five. You see if you get ten years in jail and only have to pay five thousand why you get your rent and board five thousand cheaper. Its a great world though, watch her go by.

Here and There

News Drift.

(The Chicago Tribune)

Like the highlands above a great valley, Canada drains into the United States, and the northern half of the continent that in 1921 had 8,788,000 Canadians now has only 9,655,000, or a few less. Canada is shrinking, says an M. P. from Vancouver: men and their money and the products of the earth move south into the giant vortex of living and are absorbed. Like the sun, the United States draws lesser bodies towards its burning core.

Canada is a land of agriculture and minerals and of fish and forests. When crops in the west no longer have the heavy surpluses of the present, Canada will expand again. It is a great potentiality, and as long as rains fall and the black earth of the glaciers remain Canada will be a gracious land where men will wish to live.

Different is the gray Sahara that marks a belt of desolation across all northern Africa. Once this land was green and human beings lived there. For the great ice that lay on Europe left the Sahara a growing place. The races of mankind that later penetrated Europe found beginnings there and on the broad reaches of temperate land that lay across the present Mediterranean bed and on to the Caspian sea. Then the ice withdrew. The sea broke into the Mediterranean area and the Caspian region withered down slowly to the rigid steppes of modern times. Men were dispersed and the early races filtered into Europe.

But Africa has fish as well as camels, and with the coming of British gill nets fishing in the far waters of Nyanza has become an industry. One fish in this great lake at the headwaters of the Nile is new and good to eat. The "ngege" fish is its name, and a fish survey of Lake Victoria Nyanza has been undertaken. Fish are stable animals. Drought never worries them.

And whales flourish as of yore in the polar seas. A Norwegian whaler has returned from four months in the antarctic with 63,000 barrels of oil. Whales, 732 of them, were captured, and the Norse whaler carries the flag of the world's record as a whale killer. The whales, it would seem, need a new Moby Dick.

Meanwhile teachers in Madison, Wis., may not get married, according to an edict from the superintendent's office. Marriage bothers them, the edict indicates, and weddings in school hours or school months strictly are prohibited. From Wisconsin such paternalism is strange, but from whales to the Sahara and to married teachers the world drives on.

Even artists have their tariff problems, and the massive grinding of the mills of time leave them their grist. American painters desire duties on French importations, but what the tariff experts will do remains a question. Art is a virile but tender power that never has survived the thrust and pressures of restriction and outside censorship. Whether the censorship be moral or political or—as these artists ask—ecenomic makes little difference. Tariffs on art will weaken more than help art in America.

Fifty per cent ad valorem on Wagner's Tannhauser would be hard to levy. Sixty per cent on Cezanne's Bathers is hardly artistic.

But the big chimney of the Art institute smokes as usual deep in Grant park. Though the locomotives of the I. C. R. R. may be electrified, as a writer in the Christian Century, says, are smokes on. Perhaps the Art institute can be electrified too.

A New World Figure in Track.

(The Kansas City Star.)

Some question arises whether Claude Bracey of Rice Institute, Houston, Tex., broke any world 100-yard dash records last Friday and Saturday. Friday he ran the distance in 9:5 seconds, and Saturday in 9.4 seconds. But Saturday's mark, two-tenths of a second faster than the accredited world record, probably will not be accepted, because Bracey had a strong wind at his back to abet him. As to Friday's, that remains to be seen. No doubt it will be investigated with microscope, caliper and slide rule, and it may be that young Mr. Bracey will set at naught a record which has stood since that June day in 1906 when D. J. Kelly astounded the world by running 100 yards in 9.6 seconds.

Kelly's record has been equaled nine times, but never officially bettered. Charley Paddock, who is credited with having run the distance in 9.6 five times, ran it three years ago in 9.5 to take the American track record. But that didn't go with the International Amateur Athletic Federation.

Whether Bracey's 9.4 or 9.5 is allowed to stand as a new record, there can be no gainsaying the fact that he is a fast traveling young man. One-tenth of a second is an infinitesimal measurement of time, but let anyone who thinks it isn't important try to shave it off a world's record.

Stubbs of Kansas.

(The Brooklyn Eagle.)

Walter Roscoe Stubbs, former governor of Kansas, who has just died, stands out in political memory as a man of honest convictions, firm purpose and practical ability in getting things done. Some things that he helped do, or tried to do, came undone later, or stayed undone. He lacked the divine gift of being always right in major matters; he was right at least in the essentials; in a belief that things needed doing and in the courage of his convictions.

The noon of his political life coincided with the period of the highest ascendancy of Theodore Roosevelt. He entered active politics at the age of 45, in 1903. He went in as a republican reformer and ultimately went out as a Roosevelt Progressive. The defeat of the Roosevelt third party in 1912 set the limit to Governor Stubbs active political career. It shut him out from the possibility of the senatorship and of the cabinet. But while his day lasted he made one governor of Kansas and himself twice won the governorship of the state.

A vigorous anti-trust man, a persistent opponent of the old-line republican machine in many of its works, he was essentially a combatant in politics. It seems safe at this distant date to chance the guess that if he had won his way to greater power a certain sound practicality in the man would have limited him to such courses as would have benefited the country. He was neither a temperamental subverter nor a dreamer. His hand was firm—some found it heavy—but it was steady. He represented the best things in the middle west; its courage, its directness of purpose and its will to turn ideas into realities.

Famous Pets Of Famous People

The Horse on Whose Neck Edmund Burke Wept, Causing Rumors That He Was Insane.

"Burke has gone mad it was said."

BY PRESTON WRIGHT.

A pathetic picture has been preserved of a little drama in which Edmund Burke, the great friend of America, and a horse figured in the declining days of the statesman.

It was after Mr. Burke had retired to his farm at Beaconsfield. Henceforth the capital was not to know him. He had taken his last part in the historic forensic battles which had made his name so prominent in Anglo-Saxon history and which had secured to him a heritage of love and respect and gratitude on this side of the Atlantic.

Up to London from Beaconsfield came a strange rumor. It was whispered about that the gigantic brain which had been as a beacon light to the progressive-minded of two continents was diseased.

Burke had gone mad, it was said.

Claims were whispered about that he had been seen going around in his park, kissing his cows and horses.

The incident which gave rise to this unjust fable is meltingly sorrowful. One does not have to be a lover of animals to understand and appreciate it. It is true that Mr. Burke at this period was in a melancholy frame of mind. But whether his reasons was affected it remains for the reader to judge.

In his old age, a disaster had come upon him. His only son had died. In his grief he had with him a daily testimonial of his bereavement in the shape of an old pet horse belonging to his son and which he naturally had inherited.

No treament was too good for this favorite animals, which had been the constant companion of the younger Burke. It was turned loose in the park and left to its own devices. Often in his morning walks, Mr. Burke stopped to greet it and caress it.

The horse would recognize Mr. Burke at a distance and of course at once walked to meet him. On one occasion coming nearer and nearer, he eyed Mr. Burke with the most pleading look of recognition, and said, as plainly as words could have said, "I have lost him, too!"

Then the poor beast deliberately laid its head upon Mr. Burke's bosom. Overwhelmed by this tenderness the illustrious statesman for a moment lost his self-possession and clasping his arms around his son's favorite animal, lifted up that voice which had caused the arches of Westminster hall to echo to the noblest strains within them, and weut aloud."

This affecting story, brought back to London by a man of high station who made it his business to go to Beaconsfield on a journey of investigation, as soon as the rumors of Burke's mental condition began to spread, quickly reassured the public and gained the retired statesman fresh sympathy in his bereavement.

It is related that when the investigator cautiously broached the subject of the rumors, Burke brought to him for reading several excerpts from his "Letters on Regicide Peace," which he was then writing. This was a sufficient answer to the reports.

QUESTION.

Navarre, Ohio.

Why is Satan designated in the Scriptures as the "prince of the power of the air."?

ANSWER.

The air was regarded by the Jews and other ancient people as inhabited by spirits, and more especially evil spirits. In the "Testament of the Twelve Patriarchs," "Beloir" is called a sipirit of the air, and in a Jewish writing known as "The Ascension of Isaiah," the firmament is depicted as a region between the earth and the first heaven, filled with contending demons. From these references everywhere current in Biblical times, it is not difficult to understand why Satan should be styled "the prince of the power of the air." The title is now freely bestowed on radio orators.

QUESTION.

Flushing, N. Y.

What has happened to the Hindu named Krishmurati? Was he not heralded as the new Messiah?

ANSWER.

This young gentleman was introdued here by Mrs. Besant as her candidate for that high distinction, but he utterly failed to capture more than an evanescent interest. Just now Krishmurati has no chance. Another and a very different young man, a Sandinavian-American who hails from the prosaic life of the Occident and worships the only Messiah recognized by Christians throughout the world, recently flew across the North Atlantic. Upon Lindbergh, as our messenger of goodwill to Europe and South America, the United States has concentrated its capacity for hero worship.

Mrs. Besant is a gifted lady and one wonders she did not foresee that the somewhat aenemic specimen of Messiahship she exhibited would be entirely foreign to the genius of our citizens. Nor was the he sufficently accredited in India, the land from which he came. It is prolific in gods and goddesses, cults and their devotees, but the spiritual leader of today it patronizes is Mahatma Gandhi.

Radio Digest

Requirements of Loud Speaker.

A loud speaker should be sensitive to or reproduce equally well all frequencies from 16 to 12,000 cycles per second, 16 cycles being the lowest organ note. It has been found that a frequency range of 30 to about 10,000 cycles per second will give almost perfect reproduction of both speech and music. A speaker which reproduces over the range of 30 to 5,000 cycles will give excellent results.

Fading No Fault of Transmitting Stations.

The mysterious dying of programs cannot be blamed on conditions at transmitting stations, is the opinion of radio scientists of the United States bureau of standards, after carefully studying irregularities of reception. It has been found that the trouble is due in part to the fact that the waves sometimes follow a multiplicity of paths in going from the transmitting to the receiving station. This is due to the varying ionization and other conditions of the atmosphere. Experiments with various combinations of transmitting antennas have shown that conditions at the transmitting station have little efefct on the wave behavior.

To Locate Stations on Short Waves.

With the proper adapter, virtually any receiver can be converted into a shortwave set, with loud speaker volume. Tuning a short-wave receiver is tricky and rather difficult, but, once a listener learns how to do it, he finds it interesting. He will find plenty of harmonics. Time and again he will wait for a station to sign, only to find that it is a "repeat" from some transmitter on the regular broadcast band. He will pick up local stations far more frequently than is enjoyable. He will encounter squeal after squeal that will develop into the rapid-fire chatter of code stations.

Outdoor Antenna for Loop Set.

An outdoor antenna will boost volume and increase the distance range when coupled to a loop set. To make this change the antenna wire cannot be connected directly with the set. They must be coupled by means of a wave trap and energy intercepted by the antenna is transferred to the loop and receiver by induction. Connect the lead-in to a bindin gpost of the wave trap placed close to the side of the loop or resting on the frame. Connect the other binding post of the wave trap to the radiator or cold-water pipe. Tune the set as usual. Then tune the wave trap and move it about in different positions in relation to the loop, but keep it close to the loop. Once the best location is found, the trap need not be moved.

Weather Maps Important for Radio Reception.

It is important that the radio enthusiast consult the daily weather map issued by the local fgorecaster of the weather bureau to know what may be expected, in a general way, in broadcast reception. The location of highs and lows on the chart show the type of contours which will tend to either mar good reception that night or indicate a very favorable evening. Except in the cast of local thunder storms in the immediate vicinity ,the power of the local stations generally is strong enough to override the level of the grinder or hissing type of static, one of the most annoying and aggravating types to good reception. Grinder static is most pronounced on long distance stations, as the power from a distant point cannot override the static level under certain weather conditions.

For the Notebook.

Tubes used in broadcasting stations cost from $75 to $300 each.

A. C. tubes with defective filaments will cause a receiver to fade and become very noisy after a few minutes of operation. The defective heater wires make and brake the circuit periodically.

The quality of a loud speaker is ofttimes blamed for its poor reproduction, when the trouble is really due to the placement of the speaker causing vases and other objects in the room to vibrate.

Radiograms.

Units of the National Guard of Oklahoma are now linked by radio.

There are more than 200 broadcasting stations in Europe; South America has 62; Australia, 25, and Japan, 7.

More than 80 concerns manufacture radio tubes in the United States. The retail sale of tubes in 1928 reached a total of $110,000,000.

Owners of receiving sets pay a license fee to their respective governments ranging from 5 cents in France to $18 in Salvador. The British tax is $2.45; the German, $5.70; the Australian, $5.85, and the Japanese about $9.

A "Radio University" has been opened at the University of California through Station KEJK at Los Angeles. Listeners are given examinations and chredited as in ordinary extension courses.

TOURISTS WILL VISIT LINCOLN

Arrangements for Stopovers Made by the Burlington Railroad.

From 100 to 300 Passengers to Stop Here Every Sunday.

Beginning Sunday, June 16, and continuing every Sunday thereafter until the close of the summer, from 100 to 300 tourists from all sections of the United States will visit Lincoln under arrangements made by the tourists bureau of the Burlington railroad. They will be here from 2:30 until 5:45 o'clock.

Upon the arrival of the tourists they will be taken in Traction company busses for an inspection of the city and its environs. Included in the tour will be the university and agricultural college campuses, the residential sections, and probably the new state capitol. The hospitals, including the site of the new government insitution, also will be visited. This also will be true of the schools and college campuses in the suburban districts.

To make the tour more appreciative to the guests arrangements are under way to have representatives of the real estate board on each bus. H. P. Kauffman, city passenger agent of the Burlington, and E. R. Heiny, general manager of the tram company, are looking after this part of the arrangements. Those named by the realtors to arrange the itineraries are R. E. Harrington, Harvey Rathbone and L. M. Troup.

The personnel of the group that will accompany the tourists has not been completed, but each will have complimentary bulletins for distribution among the guests. In addition to these there will be statistics and interesting facts about the city and its people.

This is the first time that Lincoln has ever been included in any of the special tourist sightseeing trips conducted every summer by the railroads. "In view of this," it is declared by officials of the chamber of commerce, the real estate board and civic and commercial groups, "Lincoln should rise to the opportunity that is hers. Every citizen of the city should come forward and help maintain its reputation as an ideal hostess."

York College Notes

The best record in the history of the school was made by York college debaters this past season. The teams won seven out of eleven debates. The affirmative team of Onita Stone, Schuler Phillips, and Ual Henshaw won four out of six debates. Of the sixteen judges of the six debates nine awarded them their decisions. The negative team, Wilhelmina Feemster, Homer Crosby, Harlie Allen, Sutton Hice, won three out of five debates. Of the thirteen judges who judged their debates, nine gave them their decisions. The question debated was: "Resolved that the present jury system should be abolished."

At the meeting of the National Educational association in Cleveland, O., recently several York college graduates were present. They were Dr. E. A. Bishop, '11, Dr. Guy T. Buswell, '13, Dr. Wayne Soper, '13, Dr. L. R. Gregor, '17. Dr. Bishop did graduate work in the University of Wisconsin, received his Ph. D. degree from Columbia and at the present time is teacher of sociology in the University of New Hampshire. Dr. Buswell received his M. A. degree and his Ph. D. from Chicago university, and is now professor of educational psychology at Chicago university. Dr. Soper received his degree from Nebraska university and his Ph. D. degree from Columbia and is professor of education in the Pennsylvania State Normal at Westchester, Penn. Gregory received his Ph. D. degree from Columbia university and is now assistant superintendent of schools at Louisville, Ky.

The sophomore class of York college recently enjoyed a party at the home of Miss Cosette Carter, one of the member freshman made the usual attempt to get the "eats" but their plans were frustrated.

Through the efforts of alumni, the gymnasium has been converted into a library.

When the new gym took concrete form the alumni association saw the possibilities of utilizing the old building for the much needed library. A referendum vote of the alumni association gave the approval of the organization. Earl Caldwell, an alumni member residing in York was appointed supervisor.

The building is now completed and very attractive in its new paint, cream and tan walls, and tan curtains. A new system of lighting provides a light over every table and book stack. There are on the balcony twenty study booths, each with a flat top desk. There is also a conference booth on the balcony for debaters. One hundred new chairs have been added. Books and stacks are now being moved and remodeling the old library room for other uses is in progress. It is the plan of the alumni association to remodel the basement of the present library into physical labratory quarters.

Hotel Prayer Book Vow Constitutes Marriage, and Girl Wins Estate

BY KEEN A. RAFERTY.
State Correspondent for Central Press and Star.

BALTIMORE, Md., April 6—Alone in a hotel room in New York City in 1923, Claire Ulrich, dancer, and Charles E. Whitehurst, wealthy Baltimore theater owner, opened a prayer book, took their vows and signed their first names on the book.

Such is the contention of the dancer, and upon the basis of this "ceremony" Miss Ulrich has just been declared the legal widow of the late Mr. Whitehurst under the laws of the state of New York, and has been named in the opinion of the Maryland Court of Appeals as the one to administer his estate of $280,000.

Thus the little dancer who met Whitehurst while she was appearing at the Century theater here when he owned that theater, comes into a fortune to which she has been asserting her right ever since Aug. 6, 1924. At that time she filed a petition declaring herself to be the widow.

Wins Narrowly.

Even in this now favorable decision, however, Mrs. Whitehurst won by only a small margin. The favorable opinion was written by Judge William H. Adkin and five other members of the court concurred in it, while Chief Judge Carroll T. Bond and two others dissented.

Whitehurst died intestate on Jan. 30, 1924, and in February letters of administration upon his estate were granted by the orphans' court of Baltimore to M. Morris Whitehurst and J. Herbert Whitehurst, his brothers, and Mrs. Anna L. Whitehurst Taylor, his mother.

It was a few months after this that Miss Ulrich (or, rather, Mrs. Whitehurst began her court battle and told of the prayer book marriage in the New York hotel. Shortly after her revelation she signed a deed disclaiming any rights to be called the widow, receiving $11,000 in return.

Mrs. Claire J. Ulrich Whitehurst.

Now the court holds that she does not have to return the $11,000 and that she is Mrs. Whitehurst, under testimony of a New York lawyer, who told the court that the requirement of the New York law is first, that there be "two parties competent to be married," a man and a woman, and, secondly, "that there be an agreement presently to become and assume the obligations toward each other of husband and wife."

PIRATES AHOY! - - By CHARLES B. DRISCOLL

BLACKBEARD'S TREASURE

Blackbeard's treasure has been found! That's sensational news in pirate circles, but such news travels slowly. The actual digging up of a long-sought chest buried by Captain Teach, commonly called Blackbeard, took place during the latter part of last December. I have just recently had the story from a friend of mine in Edenton, North Carolina, and it is confirmed from other reliable sources.

Blackbeard was the most fearsome pirate on the seas during the early years of the eighteenth century. His exploits are mostly pretty well known, even outside the circle of those who particularly fancy the tales of the master pirates. He wore a picturesque black whisker, and presented a terrifying appearance in battle, when it was his custom to load himself down with pistols and knives, brandish a heavy cutlass, and park half a dozen smoking slow-matches in his whiskers. Thus the legend originated that he breathed smoke as he advanced upon his victims. The whole world was afraid of Blackbeard.

On land, however, Captain Teach, or Thatch, or Tinch, as he was variously called, had another personality. He was a jolly good fellow, which nobody dared deny. He lived in and about Edenton, Bath Town and Elizabeth City, North Carolina, and was always well supplied with money, flashy clothes, and beautiful young wives. Tradition says he had fourteen wives to whom he was actually married. When he tired of a wife, he took her for a ride on one of his ships. He generally returned with a new wife.

Governor Eden, of North Carolina, for whom Edenton was named, was a great friend of Captain Teach. In fact, it is of record that the governor personally performed the marriage ceremony for the pirate on one memorable occasion.

Governor Eden, of course, extended his official protection to Blackbeard, and in return was cut in on the profits of the pirate ventures of that worthy seaman. This caused a great scandal throughout the British colonies along the southern part of the eastern American seacoast, and eventually led to drastic action.

It was in June, 1718, that Blackbeard started upon a cruise in company with the wife to whom the governor of North Carolina had married him. She was only sixteen at the time of the marriage, and was the daughter of a planter in the vicinity of Edenton. So bad was the reputation of Teach in the neighborhood that the girl's father and mother at first absolutely forbade the marriage. But when the governor himself appeared at the planter's house and introduced Captain Teach as his very best friend, and stood on the veranda with his arm across the sea captain's shoulders, the planter and his wife decided that they had misjudged this honest mariner.

On the day of the wedding, all officialdom of the colony was present at the governor's house, where the ceremony took place with great display and pomp. The simple-minded planter and his simple-minded wife were overcome with remorse for their offense against the dignity of such a worthy, though rough-looking, gentleman as Captain Teach.

Nobody knows what the sixteen-year-old bride thought about it all. She didn't have much to say. She seemed sad, and not a little terror-stricken.

At the wedding dinner, Blackbeard made an announcement. He pointed to a big iron chest that occupied the center of the long table, and on top of which the wedding cake reposed.

"Tomorrow my bride and I start on our wedding trip," he told the assembled company, which was fairly well drunk at the time. There was a loud huzzah.

"See that chest?" asked the pirate bridegroom.

The company saw it.

"We're taking it along," he said. "When we come back, it's going to be filled right up to the brim with the richest treasure I ever brought into this town!"

Again much cheering, and the good governor stepped out of his place to clap the gigantic pirate upon the back and give him encouragement. Blackbeard scowled, and pushed the governor roughly aside.

"Nobody shares that treasure!" he announced loudly. Then he stood stock still, waiting for someone to challenge his statement. He looked long at the governor, who had returned to his place at the table and was looking hard at his plate.

"Nobody!" shouted Blackbeard.

Blackbeard bossed the job.

Oh, it was a very pleasant dinner. The bride cried nearly the whole time, and the parents of the bride went away without wishing bon voyage to their distinguished son-in-law.

Next day the Queen Anne's Revenge stood for the open sea, with Blackbeard and his bride and the iron chest aboard. During the cruise the bride never once appeared upon deck. Blackbeard was below with her a good deal during the early part of the voyage, but after the vessel was out in the track of commerce, the captain was on deck most of the time, bawling his orders and keeping an eye on discipline.

Half a dozen vessels were taken on the way to Bermuda. One was from Boston, and her the pirate burned, with all her crew on board. This punishment was meted out to a Boston ship because several pirates had been hanged lately in Boston. Mr. Teach had his own ideas of justice.

After four months, the pirate returned to the river anchorage that was his favorite haven.

Blackbeard did not come ashore for the customary celebration. When Governor Eden came to see him aboard ship, Captain Teach was formal and reserved. He had made a trip, yes. He had taken certain prizes, to be sure. But he had not anythnig of importance to report to the governor. He handed the dignified official a wallet, containing interesting gold pieces, and said to him, "I am very busy about this matter and that. Please excuse me from formal parties for a certain period."

"And how is the charming lady, you new wife?" asked Governor Eden.

"I must bid you good evening, governor," said the pirate. And that ended the conversation.

One evening, while the ship with the black flag at her masthead lay at anchor, a small party of Blackbeard's men took ashore the heavy treasure chest that had been the centerpiece at the wedding dinner. They buried it in the sandy expanse called Plum Point, beside the place were Bath Creek empties into Pamlico river.

Blackbeard bossed the job. The chest was set down upon a brick floor, hastily laid, and afterwards it was bricked in. The bricks were laid up in a heavy mortar, mixed by the sailors. The object of the brick structure was—well, what is the object of structures anywhere? To Captain Teach it seemed that this chest, with its precious contents, should be protected from everything, and above all, against the destroying hand of Time.

When the job of covering the chest with two layers of bricks, laid in mortar, was finished, the night had passed, and it was morning. For these men, you must remember, were not bricklayers. They were seamen, engaged in piracy and committed to the principle that everything should be done ship-shape. They didn't know how to lay bricks, but they laid them carefully and neatly, it somewhat slowly.

Then the hole was filled up. Captain Teach stood by, making drawings and notations upon a little map.

The planters had appealed to Governor Spotswood, of Virginia, saying that the pirate Blackbeard had become a scandal in North Carolina, and could not be reached through their own governor. Their appeal was backed up by merchants of many cities.

Governor Spotswood sent out an expedition after Blackbeard, in command of Lieutenant Robert Maynard, and that expedition is a great story in itself. Suffice it to say, within this limited space, that Lieutenant Maynard and his Virginian volunteers, won the battle, and sailed home with Blackbeard's fearsome head affixed to the prow of their viccorious vessel.

Blackbeard fought, when he was at bay, his most desperate fight. He fell, finally, with twenty-one mortal wounds upon his body.

But Captain Teach was slow about entering the battle. He knew the avenging expedition was coming to engage him, at least twenty-four hours in advance of the beginning of the battle, and he made no move to go out and meet the Virginians, to choose his battle-ground, or to escape without a battle. This negligence on the part of Captain Teach, coupled with his indifference toward his old friend and protector, Governor Eden, leads me to suspect that Blackbeard was not quite his normal self when he returned from his wedding voyage to Bermuda.

Be it noted that no woman was found, dead or alive, aboard Blackbeard's ship, when the Virginians took charge.

For more than two hundred years the legend of Blackbeard's Treasure has persisted in Elizabeth City and Edenton, and in the country round about. During all of that time, romantic individuals have delved and dipped in the sands of Plum Point. It was believed by conservative individuals that every square foot of the Point had been dug over, to a depth of at least twenty feet.

But on December 26 last, two hunters, out for their Christmas vacation shooting, made their way through the thick underbrush that covers part of the Point, and came upon broken brickbats. The crude, hand-made bricks and fragments of bricks, were scattered about in the sand. The hunters, always interested in developments in or near the yellow sands of Plum Point, were instantly attracted by this strange sight—bricks scattered about these uppeopled sands.

They found a great new hole in the earth. Eight feet below the surface, in a wide pit, newly dug, they found the remains of a vault. It was made of ancient hand-made brick, bound by mortar of a loose texture. The vault had been constructed around an iron chest, and the imprint of the iron straps and rivets was retained in the mortar, lavishly applied to all surfaces of the bricks.

Quite recently, probably within the twelve hours preceding the finding of the evidence, some person or persons had dug down to the vault, broken it open through the top and one end, tossed the broken bricks out of the hole, raised the iron chest to the surface, and dragged it along the sand to the bank of the river, where a boat had been tied. The path of the chest from the pit to the boat was clearly marked in the sand.

Three men had been seen walking and working about the Point on Christmas day. They attracted no attention, because hunters and diggers have always been familiar figures in that vicinity, as long as neighbors can remember.

What interests me is this:

What did the advanturers find in Blackbeard's treasure chest?

You may have your own visions of Spanish doubloons. I think they found the skeleton of a young woman—the last Mrs. Teach.

She put her whole heart and soul into her acting and didn't try to just look cute as so many of our own players do.

I am so sorry to hear of Mabel Normand's illness. I always had a great deal of respect for her ability as a comedienne, in spite of the fact that she got mixed up in that Taylor murder case. The public seems so relentless in some cases and so blind in others. I'm sure we have other players who haven't half as good to their credit as Mabel Normand has. I do hope she recovers. It seems like so many of our old favorites like William Russell and Theodore Roberts are passing.

I hope Mary Pickford makes a success in her new type of picture because she is too good to leave the screen like so many of our old favorites seem to have done. I just adore Mary for her sweet self and her good wholesome pictures. I like Doug Fairbanks, too, but get tired of his pictures because they are always the same. We know that he is going to do a lot of jumping around and fighting and will come out victor in the end.

I expect I'll have the whole flock of fans down on me, so I'd better run along with "Critic" and his gang until the bricks give out. Thanks you for the space.

CHUCK.

Dear Movie Editor—I never miss a Sunday reading your column in the Star. I enjoy it very much.

I noticed that one of the fans liked Stan Laurel. I like him, too. Seems like I have been seeing him in comedies forever. How long has he been working in pictures and how old is he?

Will you please give me the names of "Our Gang" kiddies? They are surely cute. Where may I address them?

Who played with Bebe Daniels in "Feel My Pulse." Was the rum runner in the picture William Powell or William Austin?

Who played with Marion Nixon in "Cream of the Earth?" Marion is one of my favorites.

I'm so sorry Phyllis Haver plans to give up her picture career when she marries. I like her so much that I almost wish she would decide not to marry if it means giving up seeing her before the screen. But then, I suppose she knows what she wants to do so we fans will just have to put up with it.

Did Greta Garbo play with John Gilbert in "Four Walls?" If not, who did? I didn't get to see the picture and I'm just sick over it, because John Gilbert is my ideal actor. I don't see how there can be any comparison between John and Ronald Colman. John is so romantic looking. I can't say that at all for Ronald. He looks like a rather self-satisfied, egotistical little man to me.

Hoping to have my letter answer soon. BLUE EYED LILY.

Stan is due for a "break" with the fans, since he has been exerting himself to make "whoopee" for picture audiences since 1917. He has spent his etnire life to date on the stage and in motion pictures, and he is now 32 years old.

Write to "Our Gang" at the Hal E. Roach studios, Culver City, Calif. The children who answer "present" to roll call in "Our Gang" at the present time are Joe Cobb, Farina, Jackie Condon, Jay Smith, Harry Speer, Jean Darling, Mildred Kornman, Jean Darling, "Wheezer" and Norman Chaney. Norman is the most recent member of the company. He will make Joe Cobb eat a few extra chocolate creams a day to keep up his weight, as Norman is only forty-seven inches high and weighs 106 pounds. He won the prize sponsored by the Loews Incorporated theaters in Baltimore as the imitator of Joe Cobb.

Richard Arlen was the hero of "Feel My Pulse." William Powell did the "dirty work."

Didn't you recognize Charles Rogers in "Cream of the Earth?"

Joan Crawford and not Greta Garbo was the object of John's affections in "Four Walls."

Apropos the Phyllis Haver lament, it may be a little consolation to you to remember that stars who have given up their careers for matrimony, have sometimes been known to return. Perhaps Friend Husband will grant Phyllis a leave of absence occasionally so that she may appear in a picture now and then.

Dear Movie Editor—I've been having an argument with the girl friend over Warner Oland. I say he is a Chinaman, and she says he isn't, but just makes up to look like one. Which is correct?

He is a very finished actor, in my opinion, regardless of the fact that he is of the Monogilian race. Will you please give us a little information concerning him, as I don't beleive I have ever seen his name in your colums.

We appreciate your courtesy in settling this argument, at least.

JIMMY.

You might just as well go right down now and buy that box of candy Jimmy, because "the girl friend" wins. Mr. Oland is Swedish, and was born at Malmo, Sweden. However, you had a perfect right to think of him as an Oriental, since he usually takes that type of role in pictures.

Mr. Oland was 13 when he first came to this country and as soon as he had learned enough English, he enrolled in a dramatic school. He soon got his first chance on the stage with a little "one horse opera company. His ability as an actor eventually brought him roles with such prominent stars as Nazimova, Miss Allen, Sothern and Marlowe.

His first screen role was with Theda Bara in "Jewels of the Madonna." He is now making talking pictures for Paramount and you will see him soon in "The Insidious Dr. Fu Manchu."

Screen Siftings

Wants Fiddling Hero—There's a big "break" waiting for some young fellow who can act and play the violin. It's the leading role opposite Colleen Moore in her next production, as yet untitled. The story calls for a fiddling hero.

Merger Rumors Denied—There will be no merger of Universal Pictures corporation with any other major film company, despite all rumors to the contrary, according to Carl Laemmle, president of the Universal Pictures corporation. Mr. Laemmle has been an independent producer for the past twenty years. The new season's program will include such elaborate features as "King of Jazz," featuring Paul Whiteman, "The Minstrel Show" and "The Shannons of Broadway." They will be made with both silent and sound versions.

Filming 'Hot Lemonade'—"Hot Lemonade," the new Christie talking comedy would just have to be good with such comedy players as Louise Fazenda, Johnny Arthur, Walter Hiers and Jimmie Harrison in the cast. The picture is based on the stage playlet by Florence Ryerson. Besides dialogue, it will introduce some novel exteriors filmed with the new Western Electric portable recording outfits.

Ann's In Hollywood—Ann Pennington, who has been the star of George White's "Scandals" for the past three years, is now in Hollywood making her first Vitaphone picture, "The Gold Diggers." This is not Miss Pennington's first appearance before the camera, however, as she starred in several silent pictures a few years ago. Such prominent players as Lilyan Tashman, Conway Tearle, Albert Gran, William Bakewell, Helen Foster, Julia Swayne Gordon, and Gertrude Short have already been signed to support the "dancing darling of Broadway" in "The Gold Diggers."

Monte Is Air-Minded—Monte Blue is another player who has become so "air minded" that he prefers that method of getting about to all others. When he was in Europe on his vacation he flew to every major city on his tour, and now he is planning an air trip north as soon as he completes work on "Skin Deep." Mr. Blue vacations between every picture.

Answers to Movie Fans

Dear Movie Editor.—Here I am once more. I just have to squeeze in a little time between classes for a letter to you. I'm a senior this year and it takes a lot of time for my studies.

Of course, the proper thing to do is to announce my favorites, so here they are. Jimmy Hall is just adorable. I wish we could see him more often, and Emil Jannings is wonderful. I saw him in "The Way of All Flesh" a couple of years ago and he has been one of my foremost favorites ever since.

I thought "The Way of All Flesh" was one of the most wonderful pictures ever produced. I wish they would make more like it. Is Emil Jannings married? I suppose so, but have never heard.

Why do we never see Mae Murray any more? Is it true that she has a son? I thought she was so and doll like on the screen. I just loved to see her clothes, too. She surely knew how to wear them.

Who played the part of "Paulette" in "The Cohens and Kelleys in Paris?"

Who had the role of "Annie" with Emil Jannings in "The Street of Sin." She was a very good actress. Fay Wray is cute, but I don't think so much of her acting.

Was it Lewis Stone or Clive Brook who played with Billie Dove in "The Yellow Lily?" I always get the two mixed up. They really don't look so much alike, either.

I must leave now, but will come back later for more, because the questions do pile up.—JUST DOT.

We always like to hear from you, but don't neglect your lessons to write. It will soon be vacation, then you will have plenty of time.

Your supposition is correct, Mr. Jannings is married.

Mae deserted the screen for vaudeville nearly two years ago. Of course, she doesn't work all of the time. Just a few weeks now and then in and about Los Angeles. There's a young son in the Divani family that looks suspiciously like Miss Murray. She is Princess Divani in real life, you know.

Gertrude Astor was "Paulette" in "The Cohens and Kelleys in Paris."

The Russian actress, Baclanova, took the role of "Annie" "The Street of Sin."

Clive Brook, not Lewis Stone, in "The Yellow Lily."

Dear Movie Editor.—Oh, dear! It just makes me tired! I'm with all the other fans who want to see Lon Chaney get the girl just once in the end and not have to turn her over to the younger and better looking man. I like Lon so much that I just hate to see him "left out in the cold" every time. It isn't always that way in real life, either. Look at John Barrymore and Dolores Costello, for example. I know of other cases, too.

I'm wondering what Connie Talmadge is going to do about getting married again. I think it's just too bad if she marries the fellow she has on the string now, and not Buster Collier. Buster is an attractive fellow and deserves to get Connie if he wants her. He certainly has been faithful for a long time.

Will you please give me the names of the 1929 Baby Stars? I know some of them, but can't remember all of them.

Is it true that Gwen Lee is from Nebraska? I heard she was.

I noticed in the paper that Ruth Roland married Ben Bard. Did he ever play in motion pictures, and if so, what one?

Where was Norma Shearer born, and when is her birthday? Is that her real name? I think she is just beautiful. Is she married and is so, to whom?

My letter is getting longer than I intended it should, so I'll say Good-bye.—A MOVIE BUG.

We'll just have to speak to the producers about Lon. He really should have a chance to "get the girl." But after all, who knows, he may live more "happily ever after" without her.

Constance has been known to change her mind upon one or two occasions, but it rather looks now as though she may go to the altar again without Buster.

The "lucky thirteen" favored by the Wampas club this year are: Mona Rico, Ethlyne Clair, Josephine Dunn, Helen Twelvetrees, Doris Hill, Helen Foster, Sally Blane, Caryl Lincoln, Doris Dawson, Jean Arthur, Betty Boyd, Anita Page and Loretta Young.

Miss Lee claims Hastings, Neb., as her home town.

Mr. Bard has played in several pictures. Perhaps you may remember him as "Brissac" in "Seventh Heaven" with Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell.

Norma is Mrs. Irving Thalberg in private. She will have a birthday August 10, that will make her 25. Miss Shearer was born in Montreal ,Canada.

Dear Movie Editor—I wonder why we don't hear more praise for Marion Davies. She is wonderfully attractive and about the best actress we have on the screen. I saw her in "The Patsy" and marveled at the way in which she "took off" such stars as Pola Negri and Lillian Gish.

Evelyn Brent is beautiful. I thought she was excellent in "Interference." I just adore Clive Brook. What nationality is he? Is he married? Is Evelyn Brent married? I'm so thankful for the talkies. I never did care much for pictures, but now that the talkies are here, I want to go to every new show. I hope they are here to stay.

Where was William Powell born and how old is he? He did some real acting in "Interference." Not many who could have handled that role as well as he did. Doris Kenyon certainly is beautiful. I don't know when I've seen such a figure on the screen. I loved to watch her walk up stairs. She did it so gracefully. Is she married and if so, to whom? How tall is she? She looked rather taller than the average player. Was she ever on the stage? Please tell me anything you may know concerning her.

Hoping to see my answer soon, I remain MRS. M. T. L.

Marion has been popular for a number of years, which is no doubt the reason we don't have more Fan letters concerning her. It's the over-night stars that draw the requests for information.

Mr. Brook is English. Yes, there's a Mrs. Brook.

Miss Brent became Mrs. Harry Edwards a few months ago.

Mr. Powell was born in Pittsbugh, Pa. He will be 37 this summer. He had a more sympathetic role in "Interference" than is usually his lot.

Speech! Speech! Miss Kenyon. The applause is deafening. In private life, Doris Kenyon is Mrs. Milton Sills. She is a trifle taller than the average as she measures five-six in her stocking feet.

Miss Kenyon is a talented musician, as well as an actress. She also writes poetry. She went on the stage in Victor Herbert's "Princess Pat", as soon as she completed her education at Columbia university.

She went from the stage to the screen as a player for First National pictures. She appeared opposite her husband in several features, among them "Burning Daylight."

Miss Kenyon has reddish-blonde hair and gray eyes. Syracuse, N. Y., is her home town. You might also be interested in knowing that there is a son and heir in the Sills family.

Dear Movie Editor—It was my good fortune recently to see "The King of Kings" after waiting so long to have the opportunity. I was not disappointed in it, either, as I so often am after waiting such a long time for a picture. It was perfectly wonderful. I thought H. B. Warner was ideal in the role of Jesus. Jacqueline Logan was good, too. So was Victor Varconi. In fact, I liked the whole picture. It would make a good talking picture. I wish they would re-film it and make it into a talking feature.

I only remember the names of the few I mentioned in the cast, and as I lost my program, I'm going to ask you please to tell me who had the role of the little blind girl? Also who was Simon and who Lazarus? I would like to have the names of the Twelve Disciples, too.

I come so often that I will not tarry long today. WILMA.

Muriel MacCormac had the role of "The Blind Girl" in "The King of Kings." Do you mean "Simon" the disciple, or "Simon of Cyrene?" Robert Ellsworth was the former and William Boyd, the latter. Kenneth Thomson played "Lazarus."

The Twelve Disciples were: "Peter," Ernest Torrence; "Judas," Joseph Schildkraut; "James," James Neill; "John," Joseph Striker; "Matthew," Robert Edeson; "Thomas," Sidney D'Albrook; "Andrew," David Imboden; "Philip," Charles Belcher; "Bartholomew," Clayton Packard; "Simon," Robert Ellsworth; "James the less," Charles Requa, and "Thaddeus," John T. Prince.

Mr. Prince, you know, is a former Lincoln resident.

Dear Movie Editor—There may be fans who are glad that Pola Negri has gone back to Europe, but I do not agree with them at all. I think she was one of the most finished players we have ever had on the screen. She was beautiful in a striking way. Individual and different. Not just a "baby doll" type as so many of the players like Nancy Carroll, Sue Carol and such new players are. I really think it's a crime for the American producers to let her return to her own country.

LINCOLN MUSICIANS' ASSOCIATION.

The Lincoln Musicians' association will hold quarterly meetings, instead of monthly meetings, in the future. The next regular meeting will be held Friday noon, June 7. The local association has a membership of more than 350 musicians, and is affiliated with the American Federation of Musicians of the United States and Canada.

The April number of the International Musician, a monthly paper issued from the national secretary's office, will announce the date and hour of the broadcasting of the opening addresses of the thirty-fourth annual convention in Denver in May, the first convention placed on the air. A train of thirty-four pullman cars with delegates to the convention will pass through Lincoln May 18. It is hoped the train will stop in Lincoln for a couple of hours, so that the visitors may see Lincoln.

The 1930 session of the Midwest Conference of Musicians will be held in St. Paul, Minn.

THE ROBBINS' STUDIOS.

The Bel Canto Oratorio society will have a special extra rehearsal Monday evening from 7 to 8 o'clock in the studios preparatory to the rendition of "The Death of Minnehaha" at Bethany Tuesday evening.

The blaze started in the basement from an unknown cause and before the flames were under control some of the furnishings were removed from the building, part of the first floor being destroyed.

Wampas Stars Get Leads.—Doris Hill and Jean Arthur, of the new crop of Baby Wampas Stars, have been given their first important screen parts. Miss Hill has the feminine lead in "The Studio Murder Mystery." Jean Arthur will be seen as the ward of a crafty high-class Chinese, "The Insidious Dr. Fu Manchu."

Tragedy Ends Her Love

Seeing no way to legalize his clandestine love affair with Eleanor Porter (above), Columbus, O., stenographer, E. A. Welsh, auditor of a Columbus milling company where Miss Porter also was employed, killed her and himself. Welsh's wife refused to give him a divorce.

Screen Siftings

Esther Ralston In Lead.—Esther Ralston is Richard Dix's leading lady for the third time in "The Wheel of Life." Miss Ralston had the feminine lead in "The Lucky Devil" and "The Quarterback" with Mr. Dix about two years ago. "The Wheel of Life" will be Mr. Dix' second talking feature.

Boyd Takes To Air—William Boyd will take to the air for his next Pathe feature, "The Flying Fool." Russell Gleason, son of James Gleason the well-known playwright, will play the juvenile role opposite Mr. Boyd.

Rehearsing "Thunderbolt"—Rehearsals are underway at the Paramount studios for "Thunderbolt," which Josef von Sternberg will direct. George Bancroft, who recently made his debut as a talking star in "The Wolf of Wall Street," is to play the title role in "Thunderbolt."

Such players as Conrad Nagel, Cliff Edwards, Anita Page, Bessie Love, Marie Dressler, Polly Moran, Joyce Murray and The Albertina Rasch Ballet will be featured in this new form of screen entertainment.

Another Marriage Film—Another story of modern marriage titled, "You Can't Buy Love" has gone into production at the Universal Studio. An all-star cast headed by Jean Hersholt, Edward Martindale, Charlie Chase and Kathryn Crawford are featured. Of course it wouldn't be a new feature without sound. STEPHEN LEACOCK.

MR. CHAIRMAN, I BEG TO MOVE.

Showing the Wonderful Effectiveness of What Is Called Legislative Procedure.

Mrs. A: I'd like to rise. The Chair. I don't believe you can.

"There is no doubt," says one of the recent Outlines of the Sidelines of History, "that the adoption of legislative procedure marked a great forward step in the progress of government. It lent to debate an order and precision before unknown; it clarified thought, and restrained the turbulence of argument by the dignity of formal address."

Quite so. But did it? Let us see how it has worked out in some of the meetings.

I.

The Man Who Started The Trouble: A. D. 1295.

Scene: Ye Chapel of St. Stephen's in Ye Borough of West Minster.

Ye Speaker: An it please ye, my good Knights and Burgesses, sith this is a regular or model parliament it would seem good to me that we frame or—as who should say—draught a set of rules whereby our parlement or, so to speak, our debate, shall be guided: Such as, first or primis, that none shall speak when I am talking; second, that when others speak all shall be in order and form, such that not twenty speak at once as hitherto, but only one, or, so to speak, solus—

Fascinated with the idea, the houses of the King's parliament of Edward I got together and made a set of rules of which the awful consequences are still among us. As witness—

II

The Familiar Scene When the Ladies' Three-Weekly Discussion Club Undertakes Its Annual Discussion of the Club's Finances. Verbatim Report:

Mrs. A: I'd like to rise—

The Chairman-Woman: I don't believe you can.

Mrs. A: But I am—

The Chair: I mean, I don't think you're in order. There's an amendment to the previous motion still, I think, before us.

Mrs. B: If you mean my amendment, I had something that I want to add to it anyway, but I don't mind leaving it over if Jennie feels—

The Chair (pounding on the table with a mallet): You're out of order.

Mrs. B: I only want to say—

The Chair: You can't. There's a motion still before us and an amendment.

Mrs. C: But can't she withdraw her amendment? I'd like to move that Mrs. B—

The Chair: You've heard the motion ladies? Or no, I beg your pardon, it hasn't been seconded. Doesn't any second it?

Mrs. D: Before you take up that, wouldn't it perhaps be better—

Mrs. A, B, C, and half the alphabet: Order!

Mrs. D: I'm not—

The Alphabet: You are!

The Chair (pounding): Ladies! Ladies!

Mrs. X: I'd like to second the motion, only I'd want to say at the same time that I think that Nellie—

Mrs. Q: Don't you think, Madam Chairman, that we've done enough for one morning? I'm afraid lunch will be utterly overdone if we keep on. I told them one o'clock in the kitchen.

The Chair: Will you move a motion to adjourn?

Mrs. Q: Yes, if it is necessary. All I mean is that lunch—

And so after a hard morning they at last get adjourned.

III

How the Committee of Professors Undertake to Bring in a Report to the Faculty.

The Chairman: Now, gentlemen, you have heard the remit, that this committee is to report on the question of the use of lead pencils in place of pen and ink.

Professor A: Mr. Chairman, I should like to ask a question, if I may.

The Chair: I don't believe you can. You see, for the moment there is no business before us, and until we have some definite corpus loquendi as a prima materies there is nothing on which a question could depend.

Professor A: May I perhaps submit a motion?

The Chair (looking in a book of rules and shaking his head: I don't think a motion would lie. It has nothing to lie on.

Professor B: I think, Mr. Chairman, that a motion that the remit be remitted would lie. Then I think Professor A could move for leave to ask a question as arising out of the remit.

Professor C: I don't want to delay the work of the committee, but I cannot agree with Professor B. I do not think that any motion can lie at all until the chair sua sponte, or to put it more simply still, ab origine voluntario, submits the remit to the committee. Till that is done the remit itself is in vacuo.

(General murmus of approval. Professor C has evidently hit out a home-run. And so by careful legislative procedure, crawling forward from cover to cover, they manage to get to Professor A's question.)

The Chair: I think, then, Professor A, that we may now hear your question.

Professor A: What I wish to ask, Mr. Chairman, is the precise sense in which the committee is to understand the word "lead pencil"; or rather, to be more exact, the sense to be attached to the term "lead." The word "pencil," I think, we may accept as a term generally understood. But the word "lead" offers difficulties. Does the remit include colored leads or only black; would this change permit the use of crayons, chalks, and indelible pencils? In other words, I think we must formulate a definition of the word "lead."

The Chair: I think Professor A's remarks are entirely to the point—Ha! Ha! Gentlemen, you must pardon me, I hadn't intended any witticism—to the point, ha! ha!

All the Committee: Ha! Ha! To the point—ha! ha!

The Chairman (wiping his streaming eyes): Order, gentlemen, order. (And when the laughter has all died down). Well, then, we must define the word "lead." Has anybody an encyclopedia here?

Prof. C: Yes, I have one in my pocket.

The Chair: Will some one move that Prof. C read what it says about it?

General murmur: Carried.

Prof. C: "Lead. A mineral carboniferous substance generally found in oleaginous rock. Lead was known to the ancients and was probably (but you can't bet on it) the plumbum of the Romans: whence the word plumb, meaning heavy or straight as in "plumb" line; the word must be distinguished from "plumb," meaning a fruit (Sanskrit, plupp), which originated in Cornith, which was famous for its fruit trees, a growth due no doubt to the favorable breezes from the Aegean, which was perhaps so called from its "Aege" or border as seen in Aegis, the shield carried by the Roman foot-soldier, but carefully to be distinguished from the pelta or shield of the Greek hoplite. The Greeks, in fact, were a great people —"

Prof. X (aged 79, waking up): I think, Mr. Chairman, that our meeting has been sufficiently protracted, and as I think I heard the dormitory dinner-bell—

The Chair: Shall we then defer progress and adjourn till this day six months—

IV.

The Crude Proceedings of Those Who Never Heard of the Model Parliament of Edward I.

The scene is laid in any boardroom where the directors of any great industrial company are making a simple little arrangement not involving more than fifty or sixty million dollars.

The Chairman: Well, then, what we want to do is to split the shares two for one. That's it, isn't it?

Murmurs of "Agreed."

The Chairman: To make 100 millions of the new stock, the holders to take up at par—

Murmurs of "Agreed."

The Chairman (to some one): Will you get that drafted, and will you see about the legislative authorization (they know all about it)—and—that was the only thing this morning, wasn't it? All right, then we'll adjourn till next time, eh?

Youngest Cabinet Lady Keeps Well Occupied With Five Youngsters

Mrs. James J. Davis above; and below, Secretary of Labor and Mrs. Davis and their children.

By BONITA WITT.
(Staff Writer for Central Pressand The Lincoln Star.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 6—Five lively, healthy, rosy-cheeked youngsters take up a great deal of the time of Washington's youngest and also oldest cabinet lady. Mrs. James J. Davis, wife of the secretary of labor. Although she is the youngest in point of age, Mrs. Davis has been a cabinet hostess for nine years. Andrew Mellon, who received a cabinet appointment at the same time as Secretary Davis, is a widower.

In spite of many demands on her time Mrs. Davis refuses to allow any of her social duties to conflict with the upbringing of her children. She passes most of the day with them.

Youthful and curly-headed, she is adored by the young Davis clan—Jane, nine; Jean, seven; Joan, five, and Jewel, three, who hold sway on the third floor of the attractive home on Massachusetts avenue, in a large nursery, filled with toys.

Tiny Joan delights in showing visitors through the playroom and, if big sister isn't looking, she manages to start the motor of a weight reducing contrivance which interests her as much as her dollies, whose number is legion.

James, who is twelve, seldom visits the play spot now.

Jean, whose hobby is dancing, proudly displays her costumes and confides that "mother makes them all." Dainty little ballet dresses testify to the expertness of Mrs. Davis' needle which she often plies despite her many other activities.

Notwithstanding the press of maternal duties, Mrs. Davis takes care of her own correspondence and does considerable entertaining. Last year she received more than a thousand guests.

Before her marriage, in 1914, Mrs. Davis was Miss Jean Rodenbaugh, of Pittsburgh, Pa. Since then many of her summers have been passed at Mooseheart, Ill., where the Loyal Order of Moose maintains a home for widows and their children. Secretary Davis was one of the founders of the home. She is intensely proud of her husband, who rose from a Welsh immigrant iron puddler to a post in the president's cabinet.

Until the appointment of Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur as secretary of the interior, the Davis family was the largest of any cabinet member. The Wilburs also have five children, but the youngest is a boy of fifteen. The others are married.

Uuiversity Notes

V. A. Long, instructor in physics at the University of Nebraska, has accepted a position as instructor at Manchester college, North Manchester, Ind., and will take up his duties there next school year. Mr. Long took his master's degree in physics here last year.

Between 8,000 and 9,000 children attended the winter museum programs this year, it was estimated by Miss Marjorie Shanafelt, curator of visual education at the university. The children's programs were held during twenty-one weeks on Saturday mornings and Sunday afternoons. The attendance at the program for adults, on Sunday afternoons, was slightly lower, the estimated total being 3,000 during the winter.

Although the series was completed with last Sunday's program, Morrill hall will remain open on Sunday afternoons from 2 to 06 o'clock during the remainder of the year.

The museum has purchased a specimen known as a phantom crystal. It is the first of this type in the Nebraska museum. The crystal is of quartz, having a smaller, red, stained crystal of the same general structure on the inside. The second one can be seen easily through the outer transparent crystal. It was found in the mining regions near Eveleth, Minn., by Cyril Wallis, who indicated that he would send some other specimens.

Louis P. Arms, E. E. '13, visited the college of engineering during the week. He is now an engineer with the Winslow Boiler and Engineering Co., Galesburg, Ill.

Henry Margenau, former instructor in physics at the University of Nebraska, has been warded a Sterling fellowship by Yale university and will spend next year in Europe studying in theoretical physics, it was learned by Prof. H. H. Marvin, chairman of the physics department here. Professor Margenau will probably study at the University of Goeltingen in Germany.

Proffessor Margenau took his master's degree in physicas at the University of Nebraska in 1926 and was instructor here the following year. He then went to Yale, serving as instructor there during this school year. He will receive his doctor of philosophy degree this spring.

tion will then send the message "up stairs."

The Higher the Better.

Where the stations already have been established pilots are now talking with stations at all elevations up to 12,000 feet altitude. Strangely enough, the pilot and the ground man can each hear the other more distanctly the higher the plane is. It is possible to exchange conversation at heights greater than this but Boeing experiments ended there as tha is above he maximum height at which their planes are required to be flown to cross the mountains on the transcontinental and Pacific coast routes.

On these routes pilots are now being given weather reports, dispatching orders and being told at what points they can get through fog or bad weaher. They also are being advised of the position of other planes on their course and warned against storm zones.

The total weight of a radiophone equipment is but 100 pounds. An 8-foot dural antenna is mounted vertically on the top of wing and stream-lined to reduce resistance to wind. It serves for both transmission and reception. Power for the transmitter on the plane is taken from the double voltage generator on he engine. The generator also serves to charge the batteries and operate the plane headlights used for night flights, and landings.

Is Nearly Automatic.

The entire equipment is nearly automatic in operation. It requires no adjusting on the part of the pilot whose attention can, therefore, be given entirely to the operation
